How Would You Like to Live in Russia?

Hard to Be Patriotic in a Home Like This...

The Official "Persuader" of Russian Artisans...

The Dark Years of War on Women as Well as Men

SUPPOSE you lived in Russia; can you imagine what would be the manner of your existence, as a Russian man or woman?

Can you surmise what you would be saying, doing, hoping, at this day and this hour?

It is not impossible to know. You need not rely on the vagaries of thought transference to waft to you impressions of that distant life or hire a Hindu fakir to do astral projection for the difficult project.

Here, simply with your eyes, you can see yourself, if you were born a Russian, and still fettered to the dire fortunes of your birth, engaged in every action, word and thought that rules and moves your being.

To begin with, your whole habit of life would be reversed. You would be saying far, far less than you were doing, and you would be doing far, far less than you were thinking.

So, like those maimed yet terrible mutes produced by the crude cruelties of the Middle Ages, you would seek to be dumb, you would aim to be deaf, yet always you would be a living menace, ripening for some horrific outbreak, the product of your wrongs, your wretchedness, and the inevitable revolt of your innate manhood.

Today—now—you would be whispering to one neighbor, out of many, who has uttered in the past such other whispers assure you he does not dare betray you.

"ALL of the grand dukes are to go."

"It is not true, little brother. Only one has gone—Nicholas, from the council for national defense."

"But the Grand Duke Serge Michaelovitch, the inspector general of artillery, has resigned."

"Pouf! Wait until that resignation is accepted—Ssh!"

An interval, while a man—an ordinary, harmless, unsuspicious human being—passes, thirty feet away. You wait, dumb, alert, until a shout could not reach his ears. Then you two whisper again:

"The Douma has cut all the claws in the army."

"These are words for Siberia, little brother."

"Dost thou fear to hear them, brother?"

"Greatly. But go on, yet speak lower. I have small children. Already we hunger continually. If I were gone, they would perish."

"Is it not true that the speech of Guchkoff, in the Douma, when he proved that all the grand dukes are dangerous to the army because they are above it, has made it certain they must go? Do we not know that Peter Nicholaeivitch must quit as inspector of engineers, that Constantine Constinovitch must leave the department of military schools?"

"Who knows?"

"Everybody. But it is to come gradually, so that they may retire with honors, and we may not think we gained a victory."

"But the Fortress Peter and Paul has doors that still open inward."

"Thou art again afraid."

"I have little children, brother."

"I am dumb once more. But there is now a hope."

"For the army, yes."

"But for the people?"

"I must go, little brother."

"Farewell, then."

That is what you would be saying, and the way you would be saying it, in Russia today.

Eagerly, or very timidly, if you were the typical Russian of the Russians, your long despairing soul, clamorous in your hungered, revolting body, would be seizing on the glimmer of hope held out during the summer by the action of the great, all-powerful czar in taking heed of the epochal address to the Douma by M. Guchkoff on the intrusion of grand ducal influences in the conduct of the Russian army.

The czar was so profoundly impressed with the facts disclosed in that vehement arraignment of the hereditary curse of Russia that he consulted with M. Khomyakoff, the Douma's president. Soon, despite the rigid censorship exercised over printed news throughout the desolated empire and despite the terrifying espionage that lurks in wait for the rashly uttered word, the presage of a new dawn tinted faintly the haunting nightmare of the national existence.

How faint the tint, how blackly dim the dawn, you would comprehend if you were one of the Russian people, a son of those serfs who were emancipated from slavery into barely nominal freedom and into realities of want and oppression beside which the candid, feudal brutalities of your ancestors' serfdom are now remembered as the bliss of a forfeited paradise.

You would fight? They have fought. You would submit? They have submitted. You would conspire? They all conspire. You would flee? They do flee, if they can.

But not until the last, desperate resource of evasion and the last, futile blow of revolt had failed would you resignedly die. And after that fashion, too, they are dying.

If you were a Russian and very young and sanguine with the leaping pulse of youth, you might believe that the czar of today is to be the czar of tomorrow. But if you were mature, with a man's nerves and stored with the bitter lees of a man's experience and observation, you would know your czar for the vacillating man he is, cursed with his indelible record of aspiring impulses fizzling out in renewed impotence, renewed odium, renewed out-Herodings of Herod in the slaughtering of innocents.

And you would doubt, very hopelessly, the rescue of any single, solitary department of Russian life, that promised loot, from the grasp of the grand dukes, a grasp which until now has been as inexorable as it is universal.

If you were a Russian, you would not be able to choose what sort of a Russian you should be any more than with all your ambitions and work you have been able to become the sort of American you want to be.

Indeed, your range of aspiration in that field of absolutely limited opportunity would be so infinitely little compared with the range America offers you, that you would have scarcely one chance out of 100,000 to change your station, against the 99,999 chances you have here.

MILLIONS FACING FAMINE

So if you were born in Russia, even as late as the last century, in 1897, and if you were now only 11 years old, the bitter chances are 97 out of 126 that you would be a Russian peasant, for then 97,000,000 out of the 126,000,000 people in the Russian empire were peasants, nothing more.

What kind of a peasant? Well, the chances are one out of two at best that you would be chronically hungry; one out of seven at best that you would now be starving.

If you lived in the fertile black soil provinces of Voronezh, the best in the land for crops, the net profits of your ground would be hardly enough to pay the taxes on it.

As late as four years ago if yours were one of the 28,295 families in Voronezh, you would have had just the chance out of two for escape from the condition of perpetual hunger, which has since beset 13,967 families out of the total.

A quarter of a century ago the proletariat—that class of the population who are so poor that their utmost endeavors cannot earn their daily bread—amounted to 5 per cent., or one in twenty among the Russian people.

In 1881 the proportion of the proletariat had risen to 15 per cent., or three desperately hungry people out of every twenty. There are now nearly 25,000,000 composing the proletariat, or one out of five or six who constitute the enormous army of ravenous.

Simply as a Russian subject, not with your chances limited by your pitiful estate as a peasant, but with all the advantages of the total population added to the calculation, you would have 42 chances out of 100 of knowing how to read and write if you were 21 years old.

"Come to New York, Ye Stagestruck Girls," Cries Caro Roma, "but Leave Your Talent, Your Soul, Your Heart, Your Bible Behind!"

"ROTTEN" CITY HOWLING OVER NAKED DANCERS

But the Worst Is Not Yet, Writes Singer, for "Garden of Eden" Is to Be Staged With Eve in Original Costume.

(BY CARO ROMA.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Perhaps ten years ago "The Clemenceau Case" was produced in New York City. There was a studio scene in which the model was to pose "in the altogether," and Laura Bigger, being at that time only a half-known actress, saw her opportunity of becoming "great" and grasped it with all her might.

The play was tremendously and lavishly advertised, heralded far and near, and all New York rushed to see "the naked woman."

The curtain rose on the studio act, and there was Bigger in a long robe, draped carelessly over her figure; the artist approached, removed the drapery, revealing her in full pink fleshings from neck to ankle, her figure turned at a "discreet" angle.

HORRIFIED AUDIENCE.

A gasp of horror went through the audience; women covered their faces either with programs or jeweled hands, and some few left the theater. When the curtain fell and the men went out for a smoke or a drink, all of them proclaimed it "daring." Next morning the papers came out "horrified," but Bigger had grown famous.

A few months afterwards, at Koster & Beal's Music Hall, a Frenchman put on "Living Pictures" reproductions of the greatest nudes in art. Here again were full-length fleshings, and New York flocked to see nude art while it sipped its beer and smoked its cigarette. The women were all beautiful in face and figure, and as they stood motionless, grouped in artistic pictures framed in a broad gilt frame, New York regarded them only as pictures—not human beings—and tolerated them.

Next came Miss Booth, the first naked artist on the "variety" stage (since called "vaudeville"), but as Dame Nature had "handed her a lemon" in the shape of a figure, her pads were too much "en evidence" when she faced the audience in full fleshings for New York to even glance at, and so, folding her pads like the tents of the Arabs, she silently stole away.

The Gibson Girl now enters on the scene, and to willowly, snaky Valeska Surratt must be laid the credit for a wonderful expose of a "V" back, a circular front and bare arms, combined with the Empire, long-trained, clinging skirt.

ENTER CHORUS GIRLS.

Just at this time the chorus girls' abbreviated skirts and the lace-trimmed petticoats disappear and the long crepe or liberty satin gowns take their place. Tights from the hips down, minus the trunks, are worn under the long skirts, so that the entire figure is concealed, yet revealed with every turn of the body.

"Thais," the new opera, is booked at Oscar's Manhattan Operahouse, and the beautiful Mary Garden appears in a clinging robe, its bodice cut to the waist line in the back. Ah! New York sits up and begins to notice! Flesh—real flesh! The Garden back "arrived," carrying with it the new opera. Poor Sybil Sanderson, ten years ago had also "dared," but New York only saw—well, a "half-low bodice," and neither Sybil nor the new Massenet opera created much of a sensation. "Very tame," said New York as it closed its eyes.

Lotta Faust now appears on the nude horizon, wearing a long, clinging Directoire with a bodice lower than the "Garden" back, the cut extending squarely under the arm-pits—the whole held up only by a mere strap.

"Ah!" cries New York in ecstacy, "Anna Held beaten! We're glad to see Lotta's back and her arm-pits in all their hairy glory! A new sensation!" and so they rush to the "Mimic World" at the Casino—not to hear the music, but to see Lotta's back and arm-pits!!"

Isadora Duncan comes quietly to the fashionable Berkeley Lyceum to give her classical dances in Grecian robes, but pshaw! she only shows her bare feet, and, as so very few women have pretty "toosie wootsies," she packed her robes and took her trunk and bare feet to Germany, where she at once became the Heroine of the Hour!

But little Maud Allen saw the game and said, "Ha! Ha! I'll go her one better." So adding bare legs to her bare feet, wearing only a small trunk of pigskin and a gauzy, veil skirt, the whole world has stopped to applaud "The Great Allen."

Behold! "Salome" appears on the boards of the Metropolitan Operahouse with Fremstadt as heroine. It is "The Dance of the Seven Veils" first, but neither the seven veils nor Fremstadt's Salome interested New York even for a moment, and the opera died a natural death!

But there was a wideawake little creature, "La Sylphe," who "saw" and, backed by a clever press agent and a more clever manager, guaranteeing she would appear in Salome's dance naked, caused all New York to rush to an obscure Harlem theater like small boys to a circus. The police rushed also; Bingham and Comstock, our wonderful purity brigade men, "also ran," and after an examination of her wardrobe, poor 'La Sylphe' had to wear tights!

FEASTING ON FLESH.

The "trick" had won, and today New York is feasting itself on bare flesh, served in all its glory, in all shapes, all colors—black and white alike—in all styles, and with all sauces.

Next, Gertrude Hoffman was sent over to London to see "The Great Allen," to imitate her dances and appearing in fleshings from waist to ankles (betrayed because they will wrinkle!) is now a headliner at Oscar's Victoria Theater.

Then comes Eva Tanguary, who sings "I Don't Care," and means it, too, appears in an original Salome dance. Grabbing blase New York by its neck, she is pouring down its rotten throat just what noxious medicine it has been howling for. She's naked to the waist, save for two jeweled saucers that fit over her full breasts; and naked below the waist, save for a jeweled girdle that fits over her stomach, and has a front piece extending to the bottom of her gauze skirt. She wears a jeweled garter, an anklet, and bracelets of gauze.

In her eternal whirlpool of motion the skirt flies away from her, revealing her naked flesh in all its glory! In her mad, reckless spirit, with her sinuous body full of red-blooded animal life, with a sweet childish grace born of God only, Tanguary is fell resurrected and glorified, and New York bows to her as the Great Salome! —God, Man and Devil, all in one!

THEATERS CROWDED.

Seventeen hundred dollars a week and not a seat to be had for love or money; you must wait your turn. The entrance to the theater is blocked streets around, reminding one of a London pantomime opening where they stand in line over night, or on a gala Patti night in 1868 at the old Wade Operahouse on Mission street, San Francisco.

Still, New York hasn't enough yet of nudity, for one of its "great" actresses (I can't tell you the name, as it's a secret and I've given my word) is to play the "lead" as "Lady Godiva"; like Coventry history, she is to ride naked through the streets on a white horse, her only covering a long wig, and New York is smacking its lips at the anticipation of being a "Peeping Tom!"

TO PLAY EVE.

That's the latest dramatic dish to be served, but the next vaudeville move after Tanguary—if, indeed, there can be any "after"—is the sketch, to be produced by a clever writer, called "Eden." Eve, naked (save for the fig leaf), turns her back to the audience on Washday, and, removing her leaf, hangs it on the line to dry! Curtain!

The "star" has been offered $2000 a week, and the end is not yet!

So come—all ye aspiring stagestruck girls, fresh from the peace and quiet of a loving home where you are protected by a good father's strong honor and a sweet mother's pure virtue! Your beautiful voice will not be needed the years of study and toil, of sacrifices untold to perfect your art will count for nothing; your gift that God himself gave you, that made all your poor, misguided friends say—"oh, go on the stage! You were born for it!" planting the first cursed seed of unrest in your poor little, ambitious soul—will bring you nothing. Come to little, old New York, the Mecca of art, with its great White Way, with its laughter and lights—leave your talents, your soul, your heart, and your Bible behind you in dear old California, and if you'll only come naked, facing the audience, there's $2000 a week waiting for you and one million souls to applaud you and hail you "The Greatest Artist of the Age!"

HOW WOULD YOU LIKE TO LIVE IN RUSSIA?

for only 42 per cent of Russian children today receive schooling of any kind.

If eleven years old at the last census, to 1897, and a man grown now, you were past the age when you could go to school, the odds are close to 5 to 1 that you would be a complete ignoramus, for the percentage of illiterature was .79.

Should you, your wife or your child fall sick, you would find only one physician to attend every group of 7920 persons in the population. Is it any wonder that your yearly chances of death would be 37 1 3 out of 1000—a death rate higher than that of any other nominally civilized country?

If you worked until your back was bent and your heart was broken under the incessant strain of your exertions, you would earn only $31 50 a year to keep body and soul together.

You would live in daily dread of the one chance out of 112 that you would be forced to become that miserable wreck, a Russian soldier. You would be tempted by the despicable opportunity, one in 900, to save your carcass from starvation by becoming a policeman, uniformed or spy. You would be tempted at all times to evade the doom of your dire and chronic need by joining secretly that irregular, enormous class of police hangers-on who are informers and stool pigeons, variously estimated as comprising from one-twentieth to one-tenth of the entire population.

The Russian authorities have just compiled the statistics of people who, during the year 1905, were wounded by firearms. Your chance of being shot was then just twice as good as it was in 1904; in 1905, 64,110 people were wounded with guns, revolvers and bombs, as against 32,090 in 1904.

If they missed you, there was still hope; between 6000 and 7000 people were stabbed and slashed with swords, while as many more fell under the blows of other weapons, from flails to horse's hoofs.

There are some 6000 people in the jails of St. Petersburg alone. The "houses of detention" held 1512 prisoners, at last reports, and their chances were four times as great for disease as they ought to be because their number was four times as great as the detention accommodations amount to. If Russia can always stretch her prisons, as America can always stretch her trolley cars.

You would have been better off had you breathed your breath of resentment against oppression in a more distant place, like Bielostock, where the odds of typhoid against your intestines are only three to one.

But if you had gone as far as Warsaw, where the courts did quite a lot of execution a year or so ago, you might not have had to wait for dysentery or typhoid. They killed 112 objectionable subjects of the Czar during a scant 9 months—and they didn't stop to count how many they shot, besides, under the drumhead courts-martial.

The whole land being afterward practically declared 'in a state of extraordinary defense,' the drumhead courtsmartial became too slow. The regular courts were speeded up, with a safe point of departure for all trials, that everybody was guilty until proved innocent, and nobody need be given a chance to prove innocence. With this, and with a cast iron rule that every case must be decided within seventy-two hours, the overcrowding of the jails has been considerably reduced. So has the population.

Siberia is helping a good deal, too. The interminable processions of such intelligence as Russia has developed toward the Siberian mines constitute simply long martyrdoms, in which women and men are maltreated alike, whipped naked alike, beaten alike, starved alike and worked alike. If you work, you die; if you don't, you are killed. The statistics of Siberia have not yet appeared. The statisticians are still adding up.

As for the death sentences, Tolstoi's observations recently made him estimate them as some seven per day, about 2500 a year. His opinion, expressed last summer after living in Russia some eighty years, was that he would rather be dead.

"That," declared Tolstoi "is why I write this and will circulate it by all means in my power, both in Russia and abroad; that one of two things may happen—either that these inhuman deeds may be stopped or that my connection with them may be snapped and I put in prison, where I may be clearly conscious that these horrors are not committed on my behalf, or, still better—so good that I dare not even dream of such happiness—they may put me, as on these peasants, a shroud and a cap and may push me also off a bench, so that by my own weight I may tighten the well-soaped noose around my old throat."

Ah, but you have read your Russia; Siberia is a veritable Promised Land of fertile plains, and the government encourages emigration, giving opportunity to the Siberian voluntary settlers to acquire ample acreage among the crown lands.

Well, more than 68 per cent of the peasants who, in 1902, made the journey of 1500 miles to the Altai, the finest of the Siberian tracts, returned total failures.

It seems, indeed, very hopeless for the peasants. But they are ignorant, beggared wretches, anyway.

Suppose you were at the other extreme of Russia fortune—a gentleman, a landed proprietor, one of the ruling classes, living on your inherited acres, with your chateau that is all but a castle, with the laws artfully framed so that all your peasants must work for you for nothing, and with the army and the police at your back and call, ready to shoot and hang upon the first provocation in the way of a peasant revolt.

Not three years have gone by since, as the compiled statistics show, those overwearied peasants turned upon the mighty, astute, dominant landlords, and plundered 2000 estates, with fitting accompaniment of arson and murder.

The landlords in 161 districts suffered; the loss was $16,000,000; the area of those razing riots covered 37 per cent of European Russia.

But if you were a woman, how would all these miseries and disasters affect you—not your husband, not your children; but you yourself, in your own proper person?

There would be only one difference: Your condition would be worse.

A peasant girl of, say, Lystcheffka or Gschatsk or Saroy, might be bought in her local marriage market, by a peasant husband with a sharp eye to the main chance of securing a profitable investment.

For a day—for one, brief day—you would have the happiness of the bride. Yet over it would lie the shadow of the whip that is to be at first your perpetual horror—the whip that the government evidently has no objection to seeing encouraged.

You may expect, as part of the ceremonies of your bridal, that you shall have made, with your own hands, a gaily colored yet effectively punitive whip, which you are required to present to your bridegroom. He will lash you with it on the shoulders, saying:

"I love thee as my soul—and I beat thee as my serf. I am thy master, and thou shalt obey me."

For that day—if your luck hold—the lash of the whip is ceremony only. But wait. The government sees to it, for the protection of the autocracy, that your peasant husband is brutalized down to that level of instinct and habit which shall deprive him of the initiative that might make him an intelligent conspirator with his fellows. It has vouchsafed him, after long, persistent agitation, the rudiments of education for half the alcohol-poisoned children he forces you to bring into your afflicted, gruesome world. But it takes good care to crowd upon him the vodka that takes from him the kindly and protecting instincts of husband and father as we know them.

For all dog's labors, for all visitations of brute wrath, you are your husband's chattel. But let any one of the numerous other brutes who are in authority over him desire the woman who is his. It has happened many times of late; it happens still as often. The brute who is your husband may murder you; the other brute may have him murdered, as a matter of precaution.

You would conspire? Others have. The more intelligent and the more highly born they are, the more they conspire. It is one way out—and in.

Xenia, of the Terrorists, conspired. Her comrades gave her a bomb, for Lieutenant General Rudiger, minister of war, a year ago. Her courage failed her, for she was only 18 years old. She dropped the bomb in the Neva, swallowed the poison she carried, and fell dying in the Tsarkoe-Selo Railway station.

You would do better? The Princess Meshtchirski last winter did better, when she hurled her bomb at the governor general of Moscow. It failed to kill him; but, at worst, she had done her daring part. They hanged her.

Ekatarina Mille, daughter of a rich Russian merchant of the Baltic, was her friend. Ekatarina fled to Paris, and gave to the poor, among the Russian exiles there, all but a starvation tithe of the monthly remittance of $250 which her wealthy father sent her.

Regularly, for two months, she pleaded with the Paris branch of the Terrorists for a commission in Russia which might permit her to avenge the ignominious fate of her friend. But the Terrorists refused, for at that time their program called for no assassinations. Ekatarina blew out her brains last January.

Katherine Breshkovskaja, "Russia's Joan of Arc," the beloved "Babushka" of the Russian party of freedom, has conspired for thirty years. The daughter of a nobleman, she was inspired to educate the peasants on the family estate. They responded with all the latent talent inherent in the Russian race; hope was born; pity was born; mercy was born, they showed such signs of becoming humane that they were almost human.

Then the Russian government jailed 2000 of them, the high-souled daughter of the nobility as their leader. She awaited her sentence in prison for four years, and she was given five years in the awful mines of Kara, with fourteen years more in a terrible penal settlement on Lake Baikal.

When at last she was freed, to find her son corrupted to hatred of the mother who bore him, she founded the Social Revolutionary party in Russia. Again she was marked for capture, but this time she escaped.

We have seen her here in America, that old, white-haired woman who, a couple of years ago, told throngs of thousands the wrongs of Russia; that gentel lover of her kind who had come in the end to see in the bomb the only possible means of deliverance from the agonies in which her people strangle.

They have "Babushka," too. From the first day when she conceived the peaceable, gentle plan of educating the poor that they might learn to win prosperity, she was marked by Russian autocracy as the most dangerous woman in the empire. The close of last year drew her, sunken with age and the barbarities of her punishments, yet indomitable still, back to the land of life in eternal hell.

The omnipresent Russian police captured her. She has vanished from the light of day like some stray ray of living sunlight ravished from earth by the powers of perpetual gloom.

If you were the czarina. You would be what she is now, for all the loftiness of her station—a neurasthenic wreck in woman's pallid form, perishing in your prime, of seeing your husband handle letters which, when you tear them from his incautious grasp, prove to be filled with nitroglycerin; anguished with the thought of your children ever un life, although immured in a playhouse that is in reality a fortress for their defense.

But you are not a woman, let us say. You are a man, with a man's courage, a man's resources, a man's determination. So, suppose you were the czar.

One day, out in the open, boldly before the Douma proclaiming your imperial will that the nation should have its giant powers freed, and you would have as your sworn allies every terrorist, every Nihilist, every peasant, every man who makes the Russian people what they actually are, all that they ever can be. You would have as your enemies passionate for assassination, every member of your family save your wife and children, every nobleman, every official in a land where all who are not officials want to be.

If you were Count Tolstoi you would be the only human being in that vast empire who dare say, as Tolstoi said recently:

"I deny my individual responsibility for the nation's crimes."

Suppose you live in Russia?

As peasant or as czar, as peasant's wife or as the high czarina, suppose you lived in Russia—

What would you do?

ARREST IS CERTAIN Whichever Court THE WOMEN OBEY

One Says "Leave It or Go to Jail;" Another, "Pay First or Go to Jail"

Mrs. Sarah Crispin and Mrs. Ora Green to Judge Ben Lindsey—"Guilty, your honor."

Judge Ben Lindsey to Mrs. Sarah Crispin and Mrs. Ora Green—"Pay the costs and get out of town before night."

Juvenile Officer Phillips to the reporters—"If they do not do it I will arrest them again."

Justice De Lappe's clerk—"If they try to get out of town without settling up Lawyer Sales' fee for services rendered they will get into a lot more trouble than they are in now."

DENVER, Sept. 26.—Mrs. Sarah Crispin and Mrs. Ora Green, the two Nebraska women whose escapades about town caused their arrest last Thursday night at 2310 Welton street, are free, but their freedom has a string to it which may lead to more trouble. Incidentally it looks like a clash between the justice of the peace and the juvenile judge.

The women, having previously entered a plea of not guilty, acting on the advice of Attorney H. N. Sales, appeared this morning before Judge Lindsey. It was not a particularly merry party. Mrs. Crispin spent her time playing with her little girl, but the baby's laughter brought no smiles to the mother's face. She was plainly worried over the outcome.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL SECRETARY.

Mrs. Green, who says that she is the secretary of a Sunday-school in Lexington, Neb., was also downcast, and Harvey Crispin, the husband, who came from Nebraska to help his wife out of her trouble, said nothing, but stood apart and watched the proceedings with the gloomy interest of a man about to part with money.

The only member of the party who did not seem to be affected by the situation was Dr. R. E. Thompson, a local physician, who has been mentioned in connection with several of the escapades of the women. The doctor was the human cherry in this sour cocktail. He "jollied" the women, played with the baby, prodded Pa Crispin in the ribs, and when the case was called before the judge in his private chambers the doctor marched in with the rest.

"GET OUT OF TOWN SOON."

The proceedings were short and crisp. The women changed their plea to guilty and were ordered to pay the costs and get out of town before night—back to their Sunday-school at Lexington.

This little matter being arranged, the party filed out once more and in the main room they ran into a bailiff from Justice De Lappe's court, who served them with a summons to appear on the 29th of the month and show cause why they should not pay Attorney Sales his fee of $100 for attorney's services.

This move seemed to strike Dr. Thompson as the merriest phase of the morning's entertainment. While Crispin and his wife were examining the legal document and exclaiming over the size of the fee for advice to plead not guilty, Dr. Thompson was over in the corner chuckling with his friends and explaining that pa was a tightwad and hated to give up.

"GO AND NEVER RETURN."

As the case stands now, quite an interesting tangle may ensue. Judge Lindsey has ordered the entire party to get out of town and take their children with them. If the women are in town tomorrow morning Juvenile Officer Phillips will arrest them for disregarding the order of the court. If they try to leave on the evening train for Lexington, they may be arrested by an officer from Justice De Lappe's court.

As it stands now, one court says, "Go, and I will arrest you if you don't."

The other court says, "If you do not settle before you go, I may pinch you myself."

There you are for a fine two-horned dilemma.

Woman Praying in Court; Thought it Church

"TAKE ANY SEAT,"

Said Cop to Misdirected Worshipers

NEW YORK. — Two young women, dressed in their Sunday best, walked up to a policeman stationed at the door of the West Side police court this morning, and asked if they might have a seat.

"Wherever it plazes ye," said the cop, and the young women walked halfway up the aisle.

Opposite one of the pew-like benches they hesitated, then, after crossing themselves, got on their knees in the attitude of prayer. They were opening their prayer books when an officer approached them.

"This isn't a church," he said. "It's a police court."

The young women got hastily to their feet and said that they were strangers in the city and had been misdirected.

Knits to Keep Arms in Shape

NEW YORK.—It is pleasing to behold graceful lines in the feminine form, and no molding could be more perfect than the contour of Mrs. Austen Gray's arms, which is preserved by two hours of industrious knitting after breakfast each morning. As she knits her hands are in the air above her, for her head is in the pillows; at her side is the breakfast tray, and around her plays the baby, which she amuses, knitting all the while, with a string of infantile gibberish that can be heard, but not translated, on the opposite side of Dresser street.

Women are After Political Positions

Pamela Elkins and Louise M. MacArthur are two New Jersey women, former school teachers, who have filed petitions for membership on the Board of Education. Their candidacy is a sequel to a campaign of education that has been conducted in New Jersey for the last six weeks by the members of the Arlington Women's Literary Club, of which Mrs. Minnie Latham is president, and the Arlington Civic Club, the Arlington Women's Christian Temperance Union, and the women's organizations of the West Baptist, First Presbyterian and First Methodist Episcopal churches. Several of the women's opponents who are prominent men of the town have been indorsed by political clubs. Mrs. Elkins consented to run for the office several weeks ago. Mrs. MacArthur decided to try for the place only a few days ago. Both are confident in their expectations to defeat their rivals at the primaries. They are the first women to run for office in West Hudson.

Divorce Granted When 'Papa' Says He Paid Bills

DENVER, Sept. 26.—"My husband never contributed to my support since our marriage," testified Mrs. Gertrude Babcock, a stately applicant for a divorce from Grover H. Babcock, in Judge Hudson's court.

"We were married in Chicago in 1906, and my father has supplied me with funds ever since. My husband drank and gambled. From the day we were married he made no effort to make a home for us, in fact, we never had one.

"Lately he commenced using vile and abusive language. I could stand it no longer, and came out here, where my father has a ranch."

Col. W. D. Wilcox of Griswold, Iowa, took the stand to corroborate his daughter's testimony.

"I am father of the plaintiff," said he, "and am well aware of the unfortunate circumstances of her marriage. Her husband never supported her since their marriage."

"How do you know he did not contribute to her support?" broke in opposing counsel.

"Well," responded Colonel Wilcox, quietly, "I ought to know, as I paid all her bills out of my own pocket."

Colonel Wilcox testified that he owned a large ranch in Colorado besides the one in Iowa. He is said to be one of the wealthiest stockgrowers of the latter state.

Mrs. Babcock was given a decree.

JUNE BRIDE IS SEEKING DIVORCE

DENVER, Sept. 26.—Wedded in June and you want a divorce in September? Three short months of married life. You can't have it. At least not until I have heard both sides."

In these words District Judge Shattuck decided to postpone his decision in the divorce action which Clementine S. Doktor, an 18-year-old girl, instituted against Robert P. Doktor, a carpenter.

The case was called this morning for trial and Mrs. Doktor on the witness stand, with tears in her eyes, related her troubles.

"They started a week after we were married," declared the wife.

"What caused them?" asked the court.

"I refused to kiss him," was the answer.

"What did he do?"

"He became grouchy, and since then he hasn't given me a pleasant word."

The culmination of the troubles was reached on August 9, according to the witness, Ella Carrick, a girl friend of hers, living at Erie, called to visit them. The wife insisted that the visit was upon solicitation of the husband, yet when the girl reached the Doktor home the husband became jealous and ordered the visitor from the house.

The defendant was not in court, so Judge Shattuck decided to take no action until he had heard the other side of the case.

SHORT WOMEN AND TALL

Averages for the height of women show that those born in summer and autumn are not so tall as those born in Spring or winter. The tallest girls are born in August. As far as boys are concerned, those who first see the light during the autumn and winter are not so tall as those born in spring and summer. Those born in November are the shortest, those in July the tallest.

Mrs. Wm. Astor Gives Her Views on New York's '400'

Believes Ideal Society Found in Old French Salon.

MRS. WILLIAM ASTOR,
Ex-Leader of New York's Four Hundred.

Mrs. William Astor, the oldest living member of the Astor family, who has just retired as supreme head of that exclusive set known as the New York "Four Hundred," has given to The Delineator her first interview on public affairs—in fact, it is her first public utterance. She says:

"I can speak with authority about our young people. I have always kept in close touch with them. They are of a new age and often have ideas different from my old, conservative ones. And they are full of health and abundant spirits, embodiments of the new age of athletic development and out-of-door sport. It is perhaps true that they frequently go into excess in amusement, but they are not degenerate and they are not vicious. Our young men enter seriously upon the business of taking care of their large financial interests and they often take up an individual business or profession in addition, going in for healthy sports only as a well-earned diversion.

DOMESTIC IN TASTES.

"Our young women are easily trained in domestic matters and taught to appreciate their responsibility toward the poor. There are no such barriers between the very rich and the very poor as some newspapers would have the world believe. All of my friends do a great deal for the poor, and their daughters are brought up from infancy to look upon their charity work as an important part of their lives. When our girls marry, they take up the management of establishments in town and country, they rear large families of children and personally supervise their education at home during the critical early years. They are in love with their husbands and devoted to their interests.

NOT SMOKERS.

"Yes, I have heard that our young women smoke and drink and do other terrible things. I know a great many of them and know them very well. I have known them since they were born, and I am quite sure there is not one in my circle who is a cigarette fiend or who drinks to excess."

One of the principal reasons for Mrs. Astor's life-long interest in society, she said, was her interest in young people. She enjoyed having them about her, enjoyed planning for their amusement. But she said that she felt also that a woman placed by birth or marriage at the head of a great family had no uncertain call of duty to maintain the dignity of the old name.

"That consists in setting a standard for true living in the private life as well as in the public," Mrs. Astor continued. "One must have high ideals and do the best one can to realize them. My ideals in society have always been very definite. I have not realized them, but who does realize his ideals in this world?"

CIRCUS TENT ENTERTAINMENTS.

"I am not vain enough to think New York will not be able to get along very well without me. Many women will rise up to take my place. But I hope my influence will be felt in one thing, and that is in discountenancing the undignified methods employed by certain New York women to attract a following. They have given entertainments that belonged under a circus tent rather than in a gentlewoman's home. Their sole object is notoriety, a thing that no lady ever seeks, but, rather, shrinks from. Women of this stamp are few in New York, but, alas! they are so appallingly active! They have done untold harm to the good name of American society in the minds of foreigners. When a distinguished man arrives from the other side, he is seized upon relentlessly, although possibly a total stranger to his hostess, and plunged into a mad whirl of extraordinary festivities. He enters upon them with much the same spirit that we would have as spectators of an Indian war dance. And thus he forms his opinion of all of us. I have never entertained a foreigner in my life unless he came to me with a letter of introduction.

"The best women in New York society, those of the greatest influence and those who give it its true tone, are almost unknown outside of their own circle. Society newspaper notoriety is interesting to them as it is to me, as a study, a very amusing one, too, sometimes, as one gains so much information about certain women supposed to belong to us, but whom we never see and do not know even by sight."

SOME AMERICAN IMPOSSIBILITIES

Mrs. Astor's ideal of society, she said, was the old French salon in the heyday of its power and prestige. Then history was often made where charming and intellectual women held court attended by the most distinguished statesmen, poets, artists and financiers, and elegance and breeding were as imperative as reading and writing.

"The political hostesses of London have a much better chance of realizing such an ideal today than we women of New York. Over there you find at the big balls and musicales a brilliant array of cabinet ministers, journalists, ambassadors, men and women of the stage, painters and poets, and the powers of the money world such as no leader in New York could bring together or would attempt to bring together. I have thought of doing it all my life, but have never seen the possibility of success. In the first place, we have too many politicians in America where in England they have statesmen. Many of our Senators and Congressmen seem to base their title to public favor upon their uncouth manners and lack of refinement, upon the fact that they have discarded socks or once wore blue jeans. If they were all like Mr. Roosevelt, what a difference there would be! Mr. Roosevelt is a true American, but he would be at home in the most elegant court in Europe. He is not above paying scrupulous attention to his wardrobe and his manners. Any hostess in New York or Newport would be proud to entertain him, and the men in Washington like him."

A Sure-enough Knocker.

J. C. Goodwin, of Relusville, N. C., says, "Bucklen's Arnica Salve is a sure-enough knocker for ulcers. A bad one came on my leg last summer, but that wonderful salve knocked it out in a few rounds. Not even a scar remained." Guaranteed for piles, sores, burns, etc. 25 cents at all druggists.

RE-WON WIFE'S LOVE ON A EUROPEAN TRIP

Husband Knew She Was Going on Tour, So Arranged His to Coincide With It.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Pupils of the girls' high school in Brooklyn are discussing with pleasure the romantic reunion of Dr. William L. Felter, head of the institution, and his wife, who separated a year ago today. they will return to live at the old home, No. 896 Sterling place, Brooklyn.

Dr. Felter, as tutor and proprietor of parties of high school girls, for years traveled abroad in the summer. This year, when he made plans for his European jaunt, he had learned the itinerary of a European trip to be made by Mrs. Felter with several women friends, and desiring a reconciliation he set about to win her.

When Mrs. Felter landed at Naples a message from her husband reached her, saying that he and his party would be glad to have her and her companions join them. His wife did not accept this invitation. Dr. Felter appeared in Rome about the same time his wife did, and their visits in Florence, Belgium, Venice, Milan, Lucerne, France, and England were simultaneous.

At Lucerne husband and wife exchanged bows in the dining room of a hotel. In Paris, where they next met, salutations were followed by a short conversation, and the tender by Dr. Felter of protection from a rainstorm, which Mrs. Felter declined.

By the time London was reached Dr. and Mrs. Felter had become sweethearts again, and although they returned to New York on different steamships it was with the understanding that upon their arrival they were to renew their home life together.

Dr. Felter several days ago gave up his apartments at the St. Mark's Avenue hotel and with his wife visited their Sterling place house to set things in order. The couple went Friday on a second honeymoon trip, and today will be at home to their friends.

Where Two Wives ARE BETTER THAN ONE

In his article in Harper for October on "The Home Life of the Eskimo," V. Stefansson, the ethnologist, tells of a conversation with his Eskimo host explaining his reasons for requiring two wives.

"It was after dinner one evening that I asked Ovayuak why he had two wives while no other man in the country had more than one. 'That was,' he said, 'because he was a prominent man, had a big household, and many visitors continually. A few years ago his first wife, Anaratziak, had said to him: 'I am becoming old now; my first daughter will soon be married; there is much work in preparing food for all your guests. Why don't you get a young wife who can help me with the housework?' That was why he married Ilierok, who is young and strong. 'But Ilierok is not so important as Anaratziak. See how Ilierok cooks the fish, puts them on a platter and brings them to Anaratziak so she may pick out for herself and her favorite son as many of the heads and tails as she likes. Ilierok does what she is told, for she is the younger wife.' And never did two women get along more amicably together than these two wives of Ovayuak's."

Sixty-Nine Years Married

LONDON, Sept. 26.—Samuel and Phyllis Risebrow, two old folks in humble life, have just celebrated the sixty-ninth anniversary of their wedding at Northreppe, Cromer. The proceedings were graced by the presence of Earl and Countess Carrington, Lord Wendover, and other members of the Carrington family. Risebrow was ninety and his wife eighty-seven last March. They are natives, and have never lived out of, the parish in which, in 1839, they were married.

Of their family of eight sons and eight daughters, five of the former and seven of the latter are living. At the celebration four generations were represented. There were 110 grandchildren and great-grandchildren, exactly fifty of each living, there being in all 122 living descendants. Risebrow and his wife were the recipients of many gifts, including a bouquet from Lady Carrington. In the course of a congratulatory speech, Lord Carrington remarked that two of Risebrow's brothers died fighting for their country at Waterloo, and that Risebrow had shown that in humble life also he could do his duty.

INDIAN BRIDAL CUSTOM

In India, with its teeming and poverty-stricken myriads, parents often find it no easy task to marry off their daughters, for a wife has to be bought by the suitor. Widows are cheap, and when a father finds his daughter getting on in years he makes a widow of her by the simple process of marrying her to a bunch of flowers. When the flowers are dead she is technically a widow, and can be offered at a bargain price.

IF a man has money to burn he can easily find a woman willing to furnish a match.

THE ORPHEUM IN OAKLAND---ITS GREAT SUCCESS IN ITS FIRST YEAR WHEN OVER 800,000 PASSED THROUGH ITS DOORS

By BETTY MARTIN

"Great!" ejaculated Mr. John Morrissey, with a smile and a comprehensive look at the gay crowd surrounding him. He would have said more, doubtless, but the surging throng carried him curbward, leaving to mental vision the clearly defined picture of a rather small man in evening clothes, wearing an enormous carnation of unusual brilliancy, and piloting as best he might, a lady.

This was a year ago, come Tuesday evening, and opening night at the new Orpheum Theater.

It was a gala occasion, red-lettered by the representatives of wealth, beauty, fashion and brains crowding the auditorium to its very doors.

RECALLS THE OPENING.

There had been speech-making, some of which it may not be altogether inappropriate to recall at this juncture. Particularly the little talk made by Mr. M. J. Laymance, who related a few facts concerning the erection of the theater itself. But Mr. Laymance, on that occasion, was brief-ness itself. He did not relate in detail the battle resulting in the building of the Orpheum, but he did say there had been "difficulties."

As a matter of fact there were "difficulties"—so many of them that most men would have laid down and quit the game through sheer disgust. But these discouragements only spurred Mr. Laymance to fresh effort.

WANTED TO COME HERE.

The Orpheum people wanted to come over to Oakland. They told him so. This desire was nothing new on their part. Long ago, before the shake, the move had been coveted, and all that lay in the way was the lack of a temple. Therefore Mr. Laymance discovered that it was up to Oakland to make good. But financing the scheme, laudable though it was, meant repeated failures. I would be ashamed to print the names of at least two representative men here who pledged support and at the last moment got "cold feet" and withdrew financial support. It was not until outside capital was invested that the enterprise came to fulfillment. And even upon completion of the handsome structure there were scores of moss-backs who volunteered opinions that the venture would never pay.

"What!" said they, "a theater way down on Twelfth street? Why, it's out of the trend. Never!"

BUSINESS FOLLOWED.

But even the optimist failed to realize how quickly other business enterprises would follow the theater, nor foresee that Twelfth for way beyond the theater would become an unbroken line of first-class business establishments.

The Orpheum building was begun under agreement of a ten-year lease by the circuit, but so enthused over business prospects did Mr. Meyerfeld, the president, become, that the Twelfth street building instead of being held on lease, speedily became the property of the Orpheum Company. And they're proud of it.

MEYERFIELD IS SHREWD.

Mr. Meyerfeld is a business man. John Morrissey says he's a "prince"—of that I know nothing, but I can say of a surety that he's a keen-headed business man. And once, about a year ago, he told me: "Oakland looks good to me. I'm doing business there now and when I'm in the banks and watch the depositors, I tell you the amount of money they bring in astonishes me!"

Maybe it was this very circumstance which prompted the investment, which, needless to say, is a paying one.

Above the theater is a hotel, conducted by former San Franciscans, and usually fully occupied. Below are thriving stores. And the showing at the end of the first year is better than even the enthusiastic promoters dared hope for. But then Mr. Laymance prophesied success.

PROPHESIES TRUE.

So did the other speakers on that auspicious opening. Among them Mayor Mott, John McElroy and Judge H. Melvin, the Mayor and the attorney speaking for progress and the judge calling to mind the enormous strides already made along the line. He harked back twenty years or more, when Oakland was a village and the site of the theater occupied by a young ladies' seminary. Then he pictured the future, roseate hued, after which the curtain went up, followed by burst upon burst of applause.

And the vaudeville bill of that night, not yet surpassed, proceeded without a single hitch—a most remarkable circumstance, all things considered.

800,000 PEOPLE AT SHOW.

I saw him again this week, together with Mr. George Ebey, the Oakland resident manager, who occupies a position here similar to that which Mr. Morrissey holds in San Francisco, and the two gave a joint interview regarding happenings of the year.

At the start here is a statement of Mr. Ebey's:

"The records show," said he, "that during the year about eight hundred thousand people have attended the Oakland Orpheum performances."

Sounds pretty big, doesn't it? But not at all improbable when the fact is considered that every day in the year, Sundays not excepted, two shows, in their entirety, are given. And when Mr. Ebey talked about the attendance I took occasion to jog Mr. Morrissey's memory a bit by asking:

AUTOMOBILE AUDIENCE.

"Do you remember wishing for an 'automobile' audience in Oakland, such as you have in San Francisco?" at which Mr. Morrissey laughed contentedly, saying:

"It's here already. You can look at the audience any day and see numbered among the regular patrons just the same class of people who came on account for this patronage by calling attention to the excellence of the performances.

"The performers have to make good, that's all there is to it. If they don't, we've no use for them. They come from all over the world," he added, while Mr. Ebey specified, naming the places most frequently drawn upon for talent.

RANSACK THE WORLD.

"Berlin, Paris, London, St. Petersburg, Vienna—almost every part of Europe," said he, adding the information that in a number of cases these performers have made a direct jump from Vienna or Berlin to Oakland, opening at this theater. Hundreds have come direct from New York; others direct from Chicago, and still others from different points on the Orpheum circuit.

"And they're the very best advertisers Oakland can have," remarked Mr. Morrissey.

"I had an idea they didn't see much of the place at all. That they went from hotel to theater and back again."

"Don't you believe it. They're entertained a great deal."

"Yes," interposed Mr. Ebey. "They are, indeed. Taken out autoing and all that."

ALL LIKE OAKLAND.

"They like Oakland, too, all of them," declared Mr. Morrissey, "and most of 'em know more about the town than I do. They tell me all sorts of things."

"I suppose they talk to you about the accommodations, for instance?" was the question which brought from Mr. Morrissey a prompt avowal that he was glad the new hotel was to be built.

"It is needed in Oakland badly," said he. "Why, there's a crying demand for it. The city of Oakland is prosperous. It's growing—going ahead—and increased facilities for entertaining are a necessity."

"You," I questioned, "are fond of Oakland?"

"Really," was the response, "I am speaking the truth when I say that I look forward to the days I spend here."

MANAGER GEORGE EBEY.

At one time, it will be remembered, when a resident manager had not yet been determined on, there were strong indications that Mr. Morrissey himself would be the man. If straws count for anything, Mr. Morrissey purchased a house in Oakland at that time, rumor having it that it was to be his home. But that point was settled when Mr. George Ebey came into the position. Much depends upon a theatrical manager, and Mr. Ebey is to be congratulated upon the skill with which he has presided over the Oakland house.

However, the necessary judgment and knowledge wasn't acquired in a day; nor did Mr. Ebey attain to the position in a single bound. He climbed and won out by perseverance and pluck, like most other successful men. It was a chance remark of Mr. Morrissey's which led to this discovery on my part.

MORRISSEY A VETERAN.

Mr. Morrissey has been connected with the San Francisco Orpheum since 1887; but "I have been in the vaudeville business all my life," he affirmed. "I won't say just how many years, but its a very different business now from when I first began. You remember, George," he questioned, "the theater I ran in Chicago?"

"I should say I do."

"Oh, then you're old friends?"

"I was a kid newsboy then, and used to run into Mr. Morrissey's place to get warm. Later I became a reporter, working in Chicago."

"With any definite aim?"

"I always had a passion for theaters and looked forward to being dramatic critic. Also there were other ambitions; notably the business management of theaters."

BEGAN IN NEW ORLEANS.

It is a well-known axiom that a man gets what he wants if he only wants it hard enough. Perhaps that's one of the reasons why Mr. Ebey is now Oakland manager of the Orpheum. About twelve years ago he became connected with the organization.

"Six years ago," he explained, "I was associated with Charles E. Bray in the management of the New Orleans Orpheum, but the yellow fever sent me to this coast."

In San Francisco Mr. Ebey engaged in newspaper work, doing dramatics for one of the dailies.

"Then," concluded he, "Mr. Meyerfeld and Mr. Beck gave me this house to look after. That's about all."

"Then you're not sorry," I resumed with Mr. Morrissey, "for making the Oakland venture, and you like the people?"

Again sounded Mr. Morrissey's optimistic laugh as he replied:

VENTURE IS PROSPERING.

"People like everybody when they're making money." After w[illegible]ch candid and gladdening admission I had no hesitancy in asking:

"You are prospering, of [illegible]urse?"

"Far beyond expectations. The Oakland house has been succ[illegible]sful from the very start."

"And you didn't have [illegible] educate the people to vaudeville?"

"No. They'd acquired th[illegible] habit already. Why, at least 15 [illegible]r cent of our San Francisco audience [illegible] used to come from Oakland. Now they attend the performances over [illegible]here."

"It is a rare occurrence," declared Mr. Ebey in support of this [illegible]tatement, "to find an audience of les[illegible] than one thousand people at any one [illegible] the daily matinees."

LARGE AUDIENCES.

This fact alone is regard[illegible] as marvelous by old theatrical [illegible]en. And more wonderful still is th[illegible] circumstance that last January, [illegible]when the Orpheum road show, und[illegible]r Martin Beck's direction, was her[illegible]—the receipts came near touchin[illegible] a high water mark in the history o[illegible] the company on its travels through [illegible]the land. Mr. Ebey is authority for [illegible]is statement; but another fact is gl[illegible]n showing that all is not income.

"During the year past, [illegible] bringing performers to this coast, [illegible]ere has been an expenditure by the [illegible]management of nearly $50,000 [illegible] railroad fares alone."

"This one item of railro[illegible] fares," said Mr. Ebey, "to say noth[illegible]g of the heavy charges for baggag[illegible], would equal the complete cost of a[illegible] average dramatic company in a stoc[illegible] theater for an entire year."

IMMENSE SALARIES.

Nor did he omit to call at[illegible]ntion to another matter seldom cons[illegible]ered by Oaklanders. And that is th[illegible] item of salaries.

"The salaries paid these [illegible]audeville people during the last year," declared Mr. Ebey, "represent an expen[illegible]iture in Oakland of nearly a quarter [illegible]f a million dollars." Then he call[illegible]l attention to the regular staff main[illegible]tained by the theater. Men who live [illegible]d make their homes in Oakland. Th[illegible] orchestra, celebrated for its effici[illegible]cy; the men in the "front" of the h[illegible]ouse; at the doors—in the box office; [illegible]nd the well-drilled stage crew. Al[illegible] experienced and well-paid people.

The house has been kept [illegible]n first-class condition from the start [illegible]nd it is purposed to maintain this sta[illegible]dard in the future.

MORE NEW HOUSES.

During the last few mon[illegible]s four new houses have been opene[illegible] in the Northwest. One at Portland, [illegible]nother at Seattle, a third at Spoka[illegible], with the fourth at Butte. These a[illegible] operated in conjunction with the regular theaters of the Orpheum circu[illegible], making seventeen theaters which [illegible] under the name of Orpheum and wh[illegible]h play Orpheum attractions.

A glance backward will not be out of place, just to determine [illegible]hat is meant by "attractions," and [illegible]owing the wide range and diversity of selection.

"There have been prima donnas of the Zelie De Lussan class," specified Mr. Ebey, "comic opera queens like Helen Bertram, Della Fox and many others—"

DISTINGUISHED ACTORS.

"No 'has beens?'" I ventured, only to be ignored as he continued. "Nance O'Neil, the tragedienne, represented one form of dramatic art, and in the same class with her have been such distinguished actors as William H. Thompson, William Hawtrey, Hilda Spong and their like."

Mr. Ebey is, ordinarily, a very quiet man, but on the subject of attractions—well, listen further.

"In the field of acrobatics, this theater has presented the greatest troupes and novelties Europe or America has produced. There have been big musical and dancing specialties where from ten to twenty people would be engaged in a single act, their salaries running up past the $1000 mark, and of comedians, illusionists, grotesque clowns and dancers there has been an almost endless procession."

OAKLAND ON THE MAP.

"We've been 'going some' with this array of talent, which represents something much more than mere money to Oakland. It means that the town is on the map. These people hear of the place; they come to the place and spend their money. They like the town and they go home and tell other people about Oakland. The town is in the metropolitan class from a theatrical standpoint, and largely because it has given such royal support to the Orpheum.

The system perfected by this great vaudeville organization is a wonderful thing.

"Our New York office," declared Mr. Morrissey, "looks like the business office of a big railroad."

Like a railroad, too, its facilities are constantly increasing. Just lately, for example, they have added a new department, with Charles Feleky at the head. Mr. Feleky accepts vaudeville sketches coaches applicants and then gives them an opportunity to appear on the circuit.

MANY DEPARTMENTS.

In addition, the press and advertising departments have recently been reorganized, with Mark A. Luescher, a New York newspaper man, at the head.

"It's very difficult to get a chance on the circuit, isn't it?" I inquired, to which Mr. Morrissey replied:

"We give everybody a hearing. We're constantly looking for new things. We want novelties."

Which dispels any illusions to the effect that only the privileged few are listened to. But the performer has got to show the goods.

At parting Mr. Morrissey made a remark most gratifying to civic pride.

"You have such beautiful streets here," said he, "well kept, attractive and clean." BETTY MARTIN.

Women in Anger Resent Scoring by Hetty Green

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Hetty Green, as a vacation pastime, has bestowed a verbal lashing upon American women, and these in return smarting from the merciless branding of their newest and severest critic, have loosened their tongues and heaped upon the head of Hetty Green a few ready but rancorous remarks.

This war of words now waging between the richest woman in America and Manhattan's matrons is directly due to the declaration of the female financier published in the Sunday World that finery loving and frivolous femininity is responsible for the present era of hard times.

"American women have helped to make hard times," said Mrs. Green. "All they live for, all they care for, is clothes—the latest shape in hats, the newest frangled skirts. And they have none too particular how they get what they want or who pays for it. Oh, I am not saying that American women are not moral, but I do say that they do not care what price their husbands and fathers and brothers pay for the luxury and finery they demand.

"More men are driven to dishonesty by the white hand of a woman, stuck all over with jewels, than by their own love of horses, rich food and gay times."

Already the bruised and batter fair sex have bravely withstood the attack of millionaire socialists and exotic professors who have dubbed them everything from sexless to money mad, but this latest scourging at the hands of a sinister sister has caused feminine ire to rise to the boiling point.

A tumultuous tempest is brewing throughout clubland in New York, and Mrs. Green's denunciation of Uncle Sam's daughters has become the newest teacup topic of conversation bandied about by the high-brow brigade who have come to the defense of their sex.

Mrs. Belle de Rivera, a prominent club woman, who lives at 494 West One Hundred and Fifteenth street, has replied to the woman wizard of Wall Street in terms of sufficient vehemance to carry to Bellows Falls, Vt., where the millionairess is spending her vacation, and to cause Mrs. Green's ears to take on a hectic hue.

"The whole is greater than any part," said Mrs. de Rivera.

"This is the only reply I can make to Mrs. Green's statements. It may be true that some women will stop at nothing to get clothes, but the percentage is very small. When one considers that over six millions of women are earning their own living and have something more serious to consider than clothes, it is easy to see that Hetty Green's ideas are grossly exaggerated. And if it is true that even a small percentage of women make clothes and extravagance their passion, who is to blame? The husbands, brothers and fathers who are martyred by Hetty Green.

Men give women nothing more to think about than clothes, they expect them to think of nothing else, and so long as they decorate their opera box and grace their table the husbands, fathers and brothers are satisfied. So long as men regard women as nothing more than a dummy upon which to hang their jewels and display their wealth to social and business competitors they can expect to encounter extravagance—it is the price they are willing to pay. Woman's natural inclination is to save, especially if she has children, but in order to add to the pomp and vanity of her husband she must dress to suit his position, or at least what she believes his position to be. Nine out of ten women don't know their husband's actual position, for they are the last to know of his bettings, his gay times and financial failures.

"The American man makes a mistake in hiding the business end of his life from the woman who has a right to know.

"If men would frankly tell their wives when money is scarce there isn't one woman in five hundred who would push him down to dishonesty with 'fingers stuck all over with jewels.' And jewels, by the way, are a very good investment for any man to make, for it is those same jewel-clad fingers which shed their rings for the pawnshops when ready money is needed.

SOCIETY Shocked at Discovering Club's Unlicensed Sale of Intoxicating DRINKS

NEW YORK—To be accused of mendacity is the common experience of the truth teller So I was not surprised in the least to be hanged, drawn and quartered so to speak and trailed through a veritable Jardin des Supplices upon the appearance of my information regarding the dispensing of liquors at the Colony Club says Town Topics I hear the commotion at the clubhouse on that memorable Thursday morning was limited only by the absence of most of the members from town Miss Maguire, one of the factotums, swooned, Mr Wheatland, the ladylike cashier, shrieked "Mercy!"

And I have no doubt that Mrs Bordy Harriman, wherever she is and Mrs Herbert Parsons and Mrs Archibald Alexander, up in Alaska, grow very warm under their diamond and pearl collars when the news reached them that it was all out in cold print before the whole world that they were officers in an organization engaged in the shady business of selling alcoholic cheer without the sanction of the law Of course, all said it was a perfect lie, and accused me of being the most pernicious falsifier of the stage. I hate to anticipate the course of human events and place my own halo, but proper self-appreciation compels me.

DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE.

Here I am going to give a little documentary evidence to prove that I was not suffering from an oxygen jag—the latest form that should be introduced into all well-regulated clubs—or dallying with my imagination Hypothesis is a delightful field in which to let fancy roam at will but I leave that to my daily contemporaries who have glutted the world at large with the results of their mental peregrinations Let us take up first the directions issued to the steward by Miss Mary Parsons, the acting chairman at the time, acting of course for Miss Elizabeth Marbury, a lady of mature years and matured development who certainly should know, if Miss Parsons did not that the unlicensed selling of rum is an offense punishable by law Miss Marbury is a pleasant person of advanced views and agreeable social attainments Her house in Irving place has long been known as the meeting place of a certain type of women of booklsh, musical and artistic tastes, who like things a little beyond the ordinary and who find there an atmosphere something like that—say of the Meynells of London

PURVEYOR OF PLAYS.

She is a purveyor of plays and in that capacity must read deeply and study the morals of the productions she would place before the highly estimable community of New York Indeed many of the pieces that have found their way to the footlights through her hands have sermonized against just such questionable practices as those I am criticizing at the Colony Club Miss Parsons also is a lady of some experience in the world, as are Mrs Borden Harriman, Mrs Richard Irvin, Mrs John Jacob Astor and Mrs Francis Higginson Cabot the clubs officers, and who must surely have known and sanctioned the arrangements

LIQUOR BILLS.

Space will not permit me to give all the lists and bills and menus I have to prove my contention But take the following First Liquors etc not in stock" The list runs over several pages, but the specimen will suffice the wine list and cigarettes and cigars' shows that the accommodation of those who want bottles or morsels is thoroughly provided for at regular bar prices bringing them quite within the reach of the humbles colonist The bill but one of those already quoted speaks for itself and in the order for Mrs Hamilton's ball no stretch of the imagination can it be made out that the seventy dollars' worth of wine was served gratis for the hundred and twenty five covers at $1 50 each I notice that nothing is said about the sale of drinks to minors There are a great many young girl members of the club and I leave it to my pulpiteering brethren to decide whether the ability to obtain intoxicants in surroundings where they will not be spied upon by the world at large is not something of a menace and temptation to unmarried women who may have a weakness inherent or acquired for alcoholic exhilaration

All wine must be charged by the bottle and not by the case when it is opened in the Club — It may be sold by the case if closed at the members' house unopened — Mineral and cigar lists must be made out soon and given to Stewards.

From Albert Weber to Paderewski

THE first Weber piano, made over a half century ago, represented the attainment of an ideal. In the piano to which he gave his name, Albert Weber succeeded in incorporating a quality of tone which made this piano a world-wide favorite.

Today the Weber's advance along the highest artistic lines has been so notable as to make it the choice of those whom musicians everywhere recognize as the highest court of authority.

It is of the greatest significance that not merely one, but both of the most famous pianists now living—Paderewski and Rosenthal—used the Weber exclusively on their latest tours of this country.

If you wish to keep abreast of the rapid progress that is being made in piano construction, you must hear the Weber.

OPEN SCHOOL FOR SALESWOMEN

NEW YORK, Sept 26—The first class of instruction in How to Be a Saleswoman ever assembled in New York will gather at public school No 25, in Forty-second street near third avenue, this evening and get its first lesson from Miss Diana Hirschler, organizer of this new department of education

W H Maxwell, city superintendent of schools is the father of the department, which he hopes to extend all over the city He is much interested in all plans to widen the scope of industrial education for women

According to Miss Hirschler's theory, good saleswomen for the most part are made not born To handle a customer properly and present goods in the most favorable light is not as easy as it looks, she says and she has had years of experience in instructing saleswomen in Boston and Philadelphia stores

The course which extends over a period of two years, will include lectures practical talks and scientific instruction in the art of selling, store etiquette, organization commercial arithmetic, elementary law and manufacture of commercial products

As many young women may be prevented from completing the two years' work it has been planned that certificates will be issued to all pupils completing them with the periods of work performed

The New Zealand postoffice has adopted a new time-saving device envelope with a portion of the front transparent Instead of typing the address on both letter and envelope the usual custom the department method is to start the communication Mr Lambton Quay Wellington the printed so that it comes on part of the envelope thus saving typing several capitalized words.

Suffragists to Hold Celebration

Anna H Shaw is the president of the National American Suffrage Association, and, with her sister officers, has called the fortieth annual convention to be held in Buffalo on October 15 to 21, to celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of the historic convention of Seneca Falls, which first formulated women's resistance to arbitrary limitations of their rights and privileges under law and in government. So effectually has that resistance operated that in four of our States full suffrage has been won, and laws relating to women have been improved in every State. This spirit spread to foreign lands and already several of them are advanced far beyond the United States.

Since the National American Woman Suffrage Association met in convention not two years ago, women in Norway have won full suffrage tax paying women in Iceland have been granted a vote and made eligible as municipal councilors; women in Denmark have been granted municipal suffrage, they may now vote for all offices except members of parliament women in Sweden, who already had the municipal vote have been made eligible to municipal offices; women of property of Russia have been given the proxy vote in the election of the Duma; and in Great Britain, where they long had possessed municipal suffrage, women have been made eligible as mayors, councils boroughs and town councilors.

Five hundred associates of men, organized for other purposes, and numbering millions of voters, have declared officially for woman suffrage only one, the organized liquor traffic, has declared against it The suffragists are hopeful now as never before

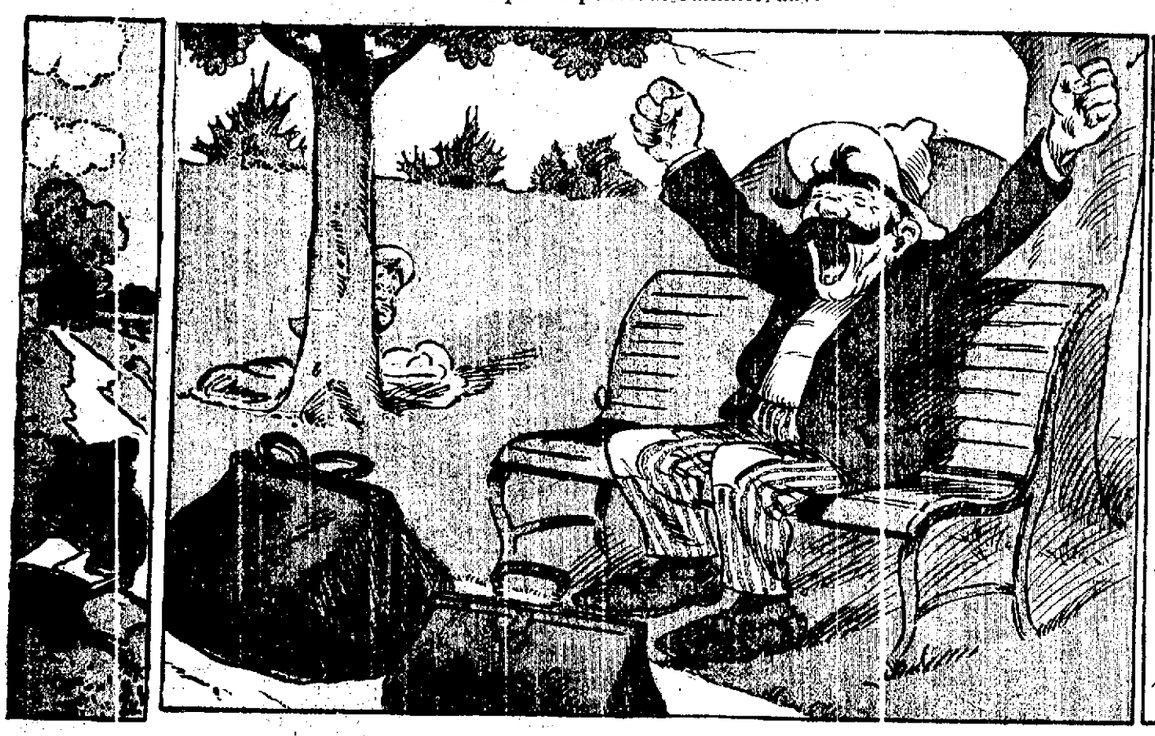
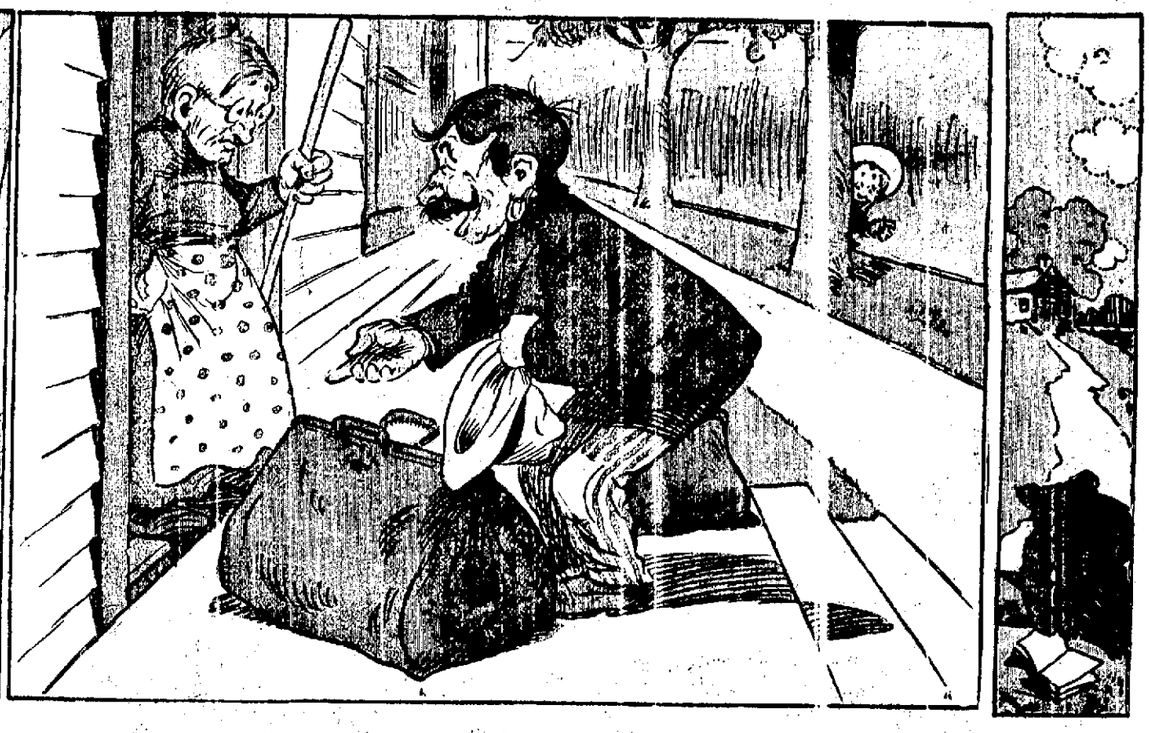
1.—A peddler snoring off his cares,
A naughty boy, some naughty bears.
Behold the actors in the play
Upon a peaceful summer day.

2.—The peddler's bag is opened wide,
And Johnny pops the Teds inside
It's rather tight, but they don't mind—
And not a one is left behind.

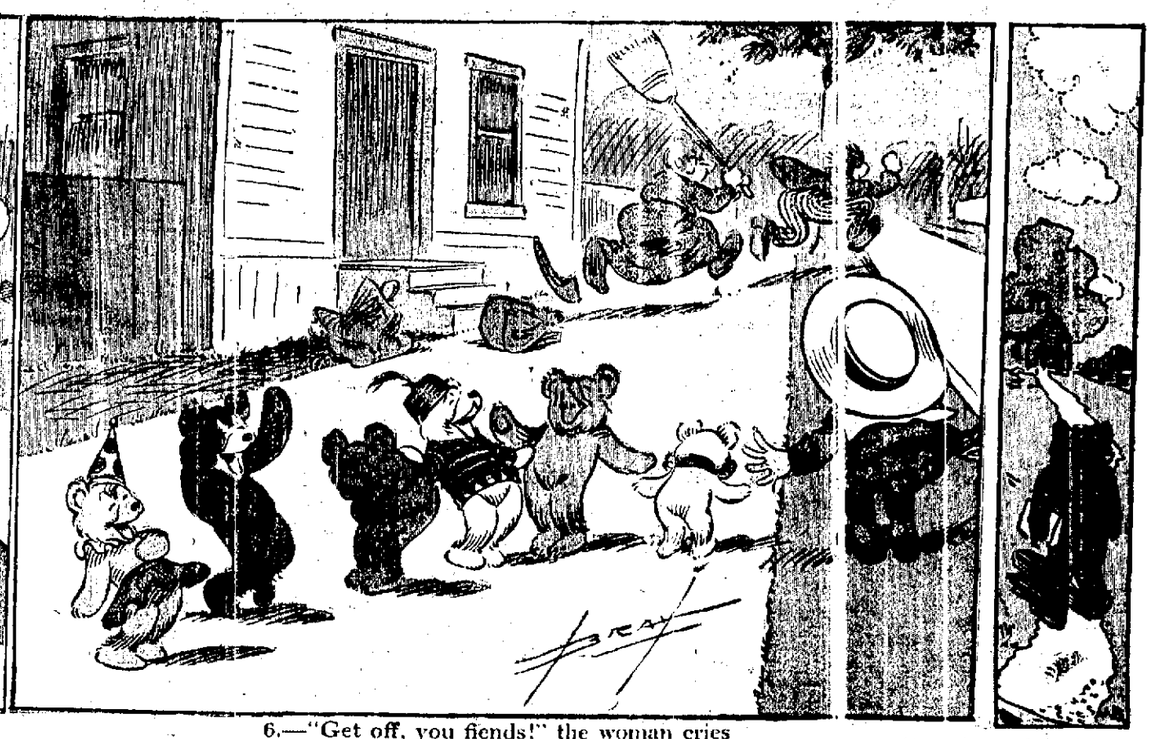


3.—At last, with one enormous snore,
The peddler wakes, to sleep no more.
He takes the bag up heavily,
While Johnny hides behind a tree.



4.—And now just hear that peddler try
To make a farmer woman buy.
He tells of oils and unguents sweet,
And poultices for weary feet.

5.—At last she bids him show his wares.
Hurrah! Out jump the Teddy Bears.
"Oils, unguents, poultices," they yell,
"And real, live Teddy Bears as well!"



6.—"Get off, you fiends!" the woman cries
When she has lost her first surprise.
"I'll oil you well, you dago man!"
And this is where the fun began.

The Smartest Fashions Well-bred Folk

A Dance at the Club

MY DEAR ELEANOR:

Out here in the country, where we are none of us blessed with much of this world's goods, we find that economy is a necessity, and to this end we plan our dresses that they may be remade in the latest style at the least possible cost. As an illustration of this idea, there was a dance the other evening at the club at which all the women wore gowns that were easily recognizable to the initiated as those that graced the occasions of early spring, but all of them had a new touch which showed that the women were constant readers of the fashion papers.

For instance, the costume Mrs. Morrison wore was once a lace gown made over a pink lining cut on princess lines. Did she wear such an old costume to the party? Not at all! She made a new lining of soft Nile green crepe de chine, over which she wore the gown of lace, while an artistic arrangement of soft purple ribbon fastened into a sash above the waist line and finished with two long fringed ends made the gown exactly up to date.

Mrs. Charlie Robinson had a seemingly impossible gown to transform in the way of a pink chiffon made quite plainly and trimmed in quite orthodox manner—but she did not despair. She purchased a few yards of pink bordure chiffon and arranged the length of material round her hips, apron-like, to finish in the back in two long ends. A little additional material was fastened over the shoulders in the style of bretelles, and her costume was complete at no unnecessary expense. Indeed, indeed, woman in her efforts to be a la mode will outdo the feats of Hercules; but one woman there was who decidedly "took the cake" as it were.

She was a little debutante of this year, but, up til now, has been earning her own way through college. She had very little money to spend on her clothes, and now that the social season is opening she would seem to be, as Jack would say, "rather up against it"; but not she! I don't know what kind of a course she took in college, but while she was there she certainly learned to dress. Hers was a little dotted swiss dress made decollete, quite plain and very stylish, which was turned into a ball dress of no little beauty by adding a sort of overcoat of violet messaline, fastened to the waist line in front and allowed to hang loose in the back. This covered all the defects of the old dress and left only the front breadth in view.

After hearing such history as this can you not see that we are economical?

Modesty forbids me stating what I wore—for the foundation of the dress seems to me to have dated back before the flood. When you come to see me again, and if I get the courage, I will show it to you.

It is such a pity that I cannot go to Polly Page's wedding. Be sure to write me every detail of interest. It ought to be lots of fun.

Always devotedly,

MADGE.

Ebell Club to Give Elaborate Reception to Honor Mrs. Jas. B. Hume, State President of Federated Clubs—Other Gossip of Women's Clubs

The club meetings during the past week have been of unusual interest to the members, as they have been out of the usual routine. On Tuesday evening Ebell invited her members and their husbands to an illustrated lecture on "Vesuvius," given by Dr. Gustav Eisen, which brought out an audience which completely filled the auditorium of Ebell clubhouse. The description of the recent eruption, which was so well illustrated, caused the audience to feel that they had actually witnessed the terrible disaster. Dr. Eisen is a remarkably able speaker, and his having been present upon the occasion rendered his talk doubly interesting.

The choral section of the club, under the direction of Paul Steindorff, meets every Wednesday morning, and is doing some splendid work. Mrs. James G. Allen is curator of this section, and Mrs. T. G Harrison assistant curator. The section is devoting its time to sight reading and part singing.

ODD IDEAS OF CIVIC RULING.

It is a curious fact that a thought along the same line as that of the British major-general prompted the question to many women in Seattle, "What would you do if you were Mayor?" Almost all replies were to the effect that if a women was head of the city good government would be assured. One woman said she would limit the height of buildings, tear down all billboards and lay out the city after the recommendations of a committee of civic decoration and architecture. Only one woman had a kind word for the present Mayor. He found a champion in Mrs. W. P. Harper, president of Seattle's Federation of Women's Clubs, who said she would do exactly as the present Mayor is doing

WOMAN CRITICIZED.

For this she was taken to task by many critics, and there was a sign of weakening in her explanation, "The Mayor is doing the very best he can done under the circumstances." Perhaps it is just as well the present incumbent is a man, for to judge by the great majority of answers Seattle would be stood on its head were woman its ruler

LEADING ECONOMIST.

At 24 years Anna Prichett of Louisville will have the distinction of occupying the chair of economics in Wellesley. She goes to Wellesley this fall and is the youngest professor in the history of the college. She also ranks with the youngest successful scholars who ever have had so important a post and leading experts in economics consider her as a brilliant woman. She has surpassed all students with whom she has studied. Her election to the chair in Wellesley is due to merit alone, and is another proof that in the realm of higher scholarship women have the ability to stand on a common footing with men

ASSISTS HUSBAND.

To the untiring campaigning of his wife, George A Hurst credits his election the other day to the Arkansas Legislature Mrs. Hurst has been described as the cleverest politician developed in that state, and it seems there is little flattery in the distinction. She was always at her husband's side in the campaign. She went through every handshaking and deal with him; she acted as his secretary, taking care of all the details of the canvass, and she wrote the majority of his speeches.

HOUSE TO HOUSE CANVASS.

She went with him on house-to-house canvasses in several towns, and frequently she took the platform herself and argued eloquently for her husband's election. Hurst received the nomination as an empty honor, for it was believed he ran no chance of success. His wife quickly became the chief figure in the stirring fight, and he won by a big majority. On the night of his election a crowd went to the Hurst residence to serenade the successful candidate. Hurst with difficulty prevailed upon his wife to go out with him on the piazza, and there he introduced her as the real winner in the fight. It was in that moment she showed the woman's heart, for, overwhelmed by the cheers, she tried vainly to speak, and then found relief in a hearty cry.

The first of a series of lectures on woman suffrage, to be given in the Roslyn school, Long Island, under the auspices of Mrs. Clarence Mackay, one of the commissioners, was delivered last week by Mrs. Harriett S. Blatch, president of the Equality League of Self-Supporting Women Besides the higher pupils of the school there were present as Mrs Mackay's guests Mr. and Mrs. Bourke Cockran, Colonel George B. M. Harvey, Bishop Burgess, and several others.

Mrs. Mackay has offered prizes for the best treatise on woman suffrage to be handed in next May, and the lectures are designed to prepare the pupils to write about the subject.

Baby Reconciles MILLIONAIRE FAMILY TO SON'S Actress Bride

HOPEDALE, Mass.—After two years of hard work as a laboring mechanic H. Bristow Draper, who was cast off by his multi-millionaire father, the Lieutenant-Governor, because of the young man's marriage to Queenie Sanford, the former chorus girl, who was in Sam Bernard's "Rich Mr Hoggenheimer" company, has returned to the home of his parents with his wife and baby son.

It is reported the grandchild brought about a reconciliation and that Draper, his wife and other members of the wealthy and socially prominent family, have consented to forgive H Bristow for not marrying in his own set, and to accept the former chorus girl as a member of the family.

HAS SHOWN GRIT.

Young Draper has shown a grit and an independence since his father's door was closed to him and his pretty wife that have won the admiration and respect of his friends He had been reared in luxury. Nothing that dollars could buy was denied him. He lived a life of ease, and was regarded as a sort of social butterfly.

But when he was thrown out on his own resources he showed the sort of stuff of which he was made. He donned overalls, picked up a workman's tools and changed in a day from the idle rich youth to a workman of worth. He has come back to his father a hardmuscled, deep chested man. Work has improved him in appearance and health. During the separation from the father young Draper has, so it is said, not accepted one cent from him, nor has he depended in the least on his influence to help him keep a job in the machine shop.

FATHER AND SON.

Just how father and son became reconciled is not known. From the first the father expressed his displeasure at the young man's marriage the life has shown a pride that was commendable. She not only refused to make advances to her husband's millionaire relatives herself, but she held her husband in check if he was tempted to go back to the old life of ease and seek his father's forgiveness. It is said here that the Lieutenant-Governor made the advances, and that he was drawn to his son and daughter-in-law by the baby. Young Draper and his wife have been living in Burlington, Vt., where Draper has employment in a cotton mill.

The millionaire's son and daughter-in-law, the young woman holding the fat, lusty-lunged baby to her breast, arrived here yesterday, and on alighting from the train climbed into the Lieutenant Governor's carriage and were driven away to the Draper home.

Mr. Draper met his son and his wife most cordially and then seized upon the grandchild eagerly.

A Climax

Surely in modern days
Woman has changed her ways;
Think of the games she plays,
Agile and active!
Anything man can do
She can—the whole list through,
Still she continues to Be most attractive.

Lately it came to pass,
Over my demi-tasse,
I asked a pretty lass
For her permission;
Turkish—the mildest brand;
She seemed to understand,
Answering smiling and
With a condition.

"Smoke? Yes, you may; but let Me roll the cigarette?"
Never shall I forget
Just how she joked it,
When—up to date for me,
Better than mine would be
One cigarette!—and she Lit it—and smoked it!

EBELL IS PREPARING A MOST ELABORATE AFFAIR FOR TUESDAY AFTERNOON; WHEN A RECEPTION IS TO BE GIVEN TO COMPLIMENT MRS. J. B. HUME, STATE PRESIDENT OF THE CALIFORNIA FEDERATION OF CLUBS.

Mrs. Hume has returned within the month from an extended trip through the East, and upon her return journey visited Alaska. During her stay in Alaska she had the pleasure of attending a woman's club in that far-away country.

Women's clubs are quite the same the world over, and quite as much hospitality was dispensed in Alaska as in our own home clubs. Mrs. Hume's chief object in visiting the East was to attend the biennial of federated clubs, which held its convention in Boston. Our state president has returned, and is a much-sought-for guest. She has learned much of federation and how much the club women need to organize, for during the late session "organize" was the watchword. A large number of cards have been issued, and it is expected that a large number of club members that be present to greet Mrs. Hume.

BERKELEY BRIDE.

Thursday evening, October 1, is the date announced for the wedding of Miss Sarah Wheat Matthew, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. W. S. Matthew, and Philip Hackley. Roy Hackley will attend his brother as best man. The bride's father, the Rev. William S. Matthews, will be the officiating clergyman. After a brief honeymoon journey the young couple will return to Berkeley, where they are to make their home.

Her young friends have been busy the last few days with farewell functions.

CONCERNING HEALTH and BEAUTY
By MRS. HENRY SYMES

TOTAL RELAXATION—THE ONLY REST

THE only real rest in the world is when every muscle in the body is relaxed. That is an axiom, a truth that admits not even of discussion. How can one rest when every muscle is tense?

Let your arm get tired some time either with writing, with working in the garden or with holding some weight, then let it drop at your side and pretend that you have not got it—that is to say, just let it hang of its own free will, with every muscle at rest—and see how soon it becomes rested.

There are some people who, untaught, cannot relax their muscles; who find it impossible to "let themselves go," as it were. Relaxation is an art that should be acquired early, although it is never too late to learn. To learn to relax, one must practice a series of exercises, just as one would take exercise to train the muscles to lift heavy weights or to go through acrobatic feats.

The first exercise in learning relaxation is to lie flat on the back and raise the right arm in the air, hold it there for a second and then allow it to drop with its whole weight on the floor. To prevent the hand falling with too great force, the elbow should be allowed to drop first, and then the hand dropped from that height; but all through the exercise the muscles of the wrist should not be flexed. This exercise may then be practiced with the left arm, with both arms, and then with the legs. It is impossible to tell if the body is entirely relaxed unless a second person is at hand to make the test—to take up the hand, to lift the head, to move the shoulders. If the body is absolutely at rest any member may be lifted and there will not be the slightest resistance.

It is a well-known fact that a relaxed body may fall almost any reasonable distance, provided it does not land on its head, without injuring itself. For instance, those who have acquired the art of relaxation (and there are a few) may with ease fall down an uncarpeted stairway and land on the floor at the bottom, not the least the worse for the tumble. For amateurs in relaxation, it is better not to attempt anything quite so strenuous. At the start it is an attainment to fall unhurt from a standing position to a recumbent position on the floor. This is done, as shown in the picture, by first dropping to the knees, swinging round from that position so that all the spine is resting on the floor, then falling back in whatever place the body may happen to land. This should all be done with no effort on the part of any muscles, save those of the neck, which should be flexed to allow the head to drop easily to the floor. Otherwise it would receive a rather severe bump.

From a perfectly reasonable standpoint it would seem that total relaxation is an art worth learning. How can one fail to be tired when every muscle the whole day long is on the alert? It is so much more comfortable to let the muscles not in use rest of their own accord.

When sitting in a chair, for instance, it is not necessary to hold the ankles perfectly stiff, nor is it necessary to have the wrists and hands rigid. Let the feet and hands fall gracefully and naturally, so that, when the respite is over, they may again take up their part of the day's work.

An Attribute to Attractiveness

A SWEET breath has an influence on beauty and on the preservation of the teeth. In fact, it is quite self-evident that pure and fragrant breath is a matter of supreme importance to a woman, and no one can afford to neglect to care for this detail. In a few rules we may sum up the general conditions which keep the breath pure and fresh: sobriety, good health an avoidance of onions and garlic, and clean, healthy teeth.

Should the breath be objectionable, such a condition may be caused by the stomach. In such a case, purgatives, mineral waters, magnesia or bicarbonate of soda may be used.

For the preservation of the teeth the Japanese eat the bark of the cinnamon, and it is very good. The resinous substance which flows from the bark of the mastic tree hardens the gums and gives a delicious odor to the breath. The Roman dames, if history may be believed, used toothpicks cut from the wood of the mastic tree.

A mixture of camphor and myrrh, a few drops of each in a glass of water, is excellent as a wash for the mouth and for a gargle. If myrrh alone is used, ten drops will be sufficient.

After eating a dish cooked with onions it is a very good idea to take a cup of black coffee, which is an antidote for the repulsive odor imparted by this vegetable to the bronchial tubes.

About Acne

BLACKHEADS are a form of acne indicated by little black specks which appear in the skin, chiefly about the nose, forehead and chin. Each speck marks an obstructed outlet of the sebaceous glands, and if pressure is applied on either side, something having the appearance of a small white worm will appear. Upon careful examination, this so-called worm proves to be a mass of matter or sebum which assumes this shape. The technical term for this is comedo, and the black at the top is, shocking as it may seem, simply dirt.

Obviously there is but one way of getting rid of blackheads, and that is by forcing them out of the pores. But if they are removed before the skin is properly prepared for the process the patient ruptures the delicate tissue, causing either a scar or the enlargement of the opening, which immediately fills up again, each time increasing in size.

Really blackheads may not only be removed without leaving a scar, but the patient need never be troubled with them again if the following directions are carefully followed:

For three weeks apply Recamier cream every night before retiring, and let the cream remain on the face during the night. In the morning wash it off with water as hot as may be borne, and then rinse the face thoroughly in cool water.

Then, when the skin is thoroughly softened, apply a little of the cream to the spot and softly press out the offending matter. Be careful not to be rough and injure the skin in any way by sharp fingernails or any steel instrument. If the blackheads are not easy to remove, it is because the skin is not properly softened, and the first part of the treatment, in that case, must be patiently continued. Operate on the blackheads at night, and do not attempt to get rid of them all at one time.

After they have been removed, bathe the face in warm water, and then use a little pure soap once or twice a week, so the skin may be kept thoroughly clean. Do not suppose, however, that the troublesome blemishes will not return if proper treatment be neglected.

A Recipe for Cologne

ONLY very delicate and carefully prepared toilet waters should be used.

A good cologne is made of the following ingredients: Essence of lemon, ten grams; essence of cedrat, ten grams, essence of bergamot, ten grams; essence of fine lavender, ten grams; essence of rosemary, four grams; essence of thyme, two grams; alcohol, two quarts. Mix the essences with the alcohol and filter through paper.

ADVICE TO CORRESPONDENTS

OWING to the great amount of mail received and the limited space given this department, it is absolutely impossible to answer letters in the Sunday issue following their receipt. The letters must be answered in turn, and this oftimes requires three or four weeks.

All correspondents who desire an immediate answer must inclose a self-addressed stamped envelope for a reply. This rule must also be complied with in regard to personal letters.

Wants Higher Instep

Since you have helped others, I also come to you for aid. Is there any way for me to get a higher instep, and can you tell me how I can develop my bust?
BLUE-EYED MAIDEN.

I do not know any way for an adult to make an instep higher. Perhaps some expert shoemaker can make a special shoe to give the appearance of a high instep. No amount of exercise will increase the height of the arch of your foot after it has grown its full length.

You will find the following a very good tonic to develop the bust. I am also giving you a massage cream, which you may find satisfactory.

Dr. Vaucaire's Remedy for the Bust.

Liquid extract of galega (goatsrue), three fluid drams; lacto-phosphate of lime, 154 grains; tincture of fennel, ten grains; simple syrup, thirteen and one-half ounces.

The dose is two teaspoonfuls with water before each meal.

Dr. Vaucaire also advises the drinking of malt extract during meals.

Massage Cream for the Bust.

Lanolin, five ounces; spermaceti, one-half ounce; mutton tallow (freshly tried), four ounces; cocoanut oil, four ounces; oil of sweet almonds, four ounces; tincture of benzoin, one dram; oil of neroli, twenty drops.

Mix as you would any cream of the sort. Rub on gently at night.

Needs a Tonic

Please give me a recipe for a tonic that will strengthen and build up a middle-aged woman run down by work. Some time ago your columns contained a recipe containing limewater which was said to give the above result, but I do not remember what it was. I also want something to fill out the hollows in my face. A. C.

I am not in position to prescribe for you a tonic, which is a thing that ought to be supplied by a doctor.

The following is a very good massage cream, which you may rub on your face to fill out the cheeks and remove wrinkles:

Lanolin, two and one-half ounces; spermaceti, six drams, white vaseline, two and one-half ounces; cocoanut oil, two ounces; sweet almond oil, two ounces; tincture of benzoin, one-half dram.

Melt the first five ingredients together, beat until the mass concretes, adding the benzoin, drop by drop, during this process.

Extract of violet or any perfume may be added if agreeable.

The remedy I think you mean containing limewater is Dr. Vaucaire's tonic for the bust, and it is supposed to act only on the bust, although it should be a tonic for the whole system. You will find the recipe for this in my answer to "Blue-Eyed Maiden."

A Deformed Nose

Several years ago I was struck on the nose, and the swelling caused by the blow has not yet subsided. Can you suggest anything which would reduce my nose to a more normal and becoming size?
BASHFUL.

I could not attempt to prescribe for an inflammation of such long standing. It may be that the weight which hit the nose may have misplaced or flattened the bone. A skilled surgeon might cure the trouble.

To Develop the Legs

Will you kindly tell me some way in which to develop my forearms and legs? I turn stout everywhere else. I find that gymnasium does no good. ANXIOUS.

I do not know what to prescribe for you to develop your forearm. It is very difficult to develop one portion of the body rather than another, and I do not know quite what to tell you without knowing your mode of living. Perhaps it is that you lift too many heavy weights, and then again it may be your arm is soft and flabby. It is a case you must determine yourself.

Exercise is the best possible method of enlarging the legs. Long walks will soon produce results. A gymnastic feat which is said to be a certain enlarger for the lower limbs is to stand on one foot, and, with the other leg held out as nearly at a right angle to the body as possible, try to touch the knee to the floor.

Cucumber Wash

Will you please give in Sunday's paper the recipe for cucumber cream or wash to be made from cucumbers? A READER.

You will find below a prescription for cucumber wash. I hope you will like it.

Take one or two cucumbers, cut them into rather small chunks without peeling. Put these into a mortar and pound with a pestle (or use a heavy wooden potato masher and a heavy earthenware bowl) until the mass is pulp-like in consistency. Filter this through a piece of cheesecloth or very coarse muslin, squeezing out as much of the juice as you can. Now put all into a clean enameled saucepan and simmer (don't boil) for ten minutes.

Then re-strain and when cold add alcohol to the proportion of one tablespoonful to half a pint of the strained liquid. Bottle and use to sponge your face instead of washing it during the day.

The alcohol will preserve the juice.

The Walnut Stain

Please advise me how to make a stain for gray hair from green English walnuts. Hoping to hear from you in next Sunday's paper, I remain, Yours truly, CONSTANT READER.

To answer your last sentence first, I must reiterate it is absolutely impossible for me to answer any letters in the edition following the date of their receipt. My mail is too enormous to answer letters with such promptness unless they be sent with stamped addressed envelope, and even then they may not be answered immediately upon their receipt.

The following is a good walnut stain for gray hair. I should suggest that you use ripe walnuts rather than green ones:

Four ounces of walnut skins, beaten to a pulp, to which is added pure alcohol, sixteen ounces.

Let stand eight days and strain. Then apply as any other dye.

For Blemishes

Please publish a remedy for removing blackheads and pimples, and also for removing warts. DAILY READER, J. P. K.

Here is a very good recipe for a remedy for blackheads, a cream for pimples and a mixture which will remove warts. I know that they will be just what you want.

For Blackheads.

Boracic acid, two drams; alcohol, two ounces; rosewater, four ounces. Use with friction twice a day on the skin affected.

Cream for Pimples.

Salicylic acid, ten grains; calomel, one dram, lard, one ounce.

To Remove Warts.

Mix one grain of paraform with nine parts of flexible collodion, and apply to wart three times a day. After two or three days, the epidermis peels off, and the wart will come with it.

To Develop the Bust

Will you kindly give me a recipe for developing the bust? I would like one that would not take very much of my time and that will show quick results. Is Dr. Vaucaire's remedy safe and may I buy it ready prepared? SHIRLEY.

I do not know of anything harmful in Dr. Vaucaire's remedy. On the contrary, it is extremely good for most people and quite simple. To be quite sure that you are getting just what you want the prescription should be taken to a druggist, who will make it up for you. I have also a massage cream which is sure to be beneficial. Rub it on every night. It will not take very long. A druggist will also make it up for you.

Both recipes are given for "Blue-Eyed Maiden."

For Falling Hair

My hair is very thin and coming out quite badly (in fact, I have a bald spot on each side) and it splits at the ends. I tried vaseline, but it did not do any good, and then I tried brushing and massage, but it came out worse than ever. What can I do? I am discouraged about it. C. F.

You do seem certainly to be having a great deal of trouble, and I want to help you. I would stop using the hair grower and begin to use the following cure for falling hair, which I would use every other night. On the alternate nights I would rub a few drops of kerosene well into the scalp. A better tonic cannot be found.

I am also giving you a tonic to apply after you have checked the falling hair. If these do not help you, write again.

Falling of the Hair.

Tincture of nux vomica, one ounce; spirits of rosemary, two ounces; alcohol, two ounces. Apply several times a week to the roots of the hair.

Quinine Hair Tonic.

Sulphate of quinine, one dram; rosewater, eight ounces; diluted sulphuric acid, fifteen minims; rectified spirits, two ounces. Mix, then further add: Glycerine, one-fourth ounce; essence royale or essence musk, five or six minims. Agitate until solution is complete. Apply to the roots every day.

To Ward Off Age

THE way to ward off old age is not to fear it, not to allow one's self to be oppressed by the dread of advancing years.

Use only legitimate preventives and avoid trying experiments with preparations not indorsed by physicians.

Do not wear toilets intended for young girls. They only add years to the appearance. Keep up your interest in the young, but do not envy them. Retire with dignity from the struggle; do not pose as your daughter's rival. Above all, surround your life with sweet, tender affections, which prevent the heart from growing bitter.

Do not lose interest in the growing events of the day; do not fall behind the times, and do not harp on other and better days. To those who come to you for advice be always kind and sympathetic.

As you advance in years preserve carefully your personal appearance, for once lost, it may not be regained save by strenuous effort.

Last of all, your costume should be simple and unpretentious, yet graceful.

These rules, carefully and sensibly followed, will keep you young and attractive.

Uses of Camphor

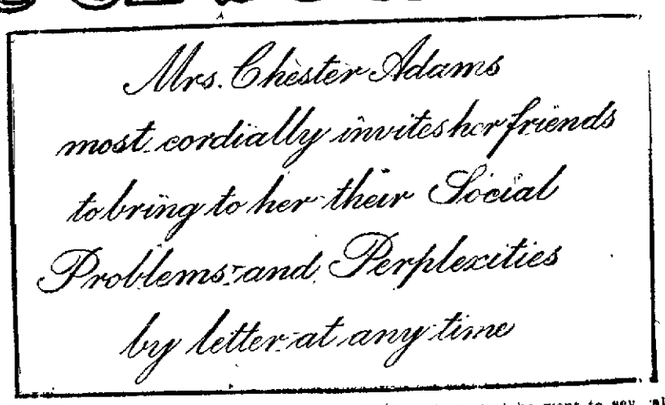
A BOTTLE of spirits of camphor is a friend to be relied upon when traveling, for it quickly relieves many discomforts.

If the day be warm and everything seems sticky and grimy, bathe the face with camphor. It frees the pores of accumulation of waste matter, brightens the eyes and is cooling and invigorating.

A little camphor in water will often relieve a sick stomach caused by train motion and heat.

Camphor will keep away mosquitoes if the exposed portions of the body be bathed with it, and it is excellent to use as a wash when one has been bitten by an insect.

Advice on Social Problems.



Mrs. Chester Adams
most cordially invites her friends to bring to her their Social Problems and Perplexities
by letter at any time

ONCE upon a time there was an office boy who, in the line of his duties, became familiar with the mysterious workings of the stock market. He was an ambitious lad, without education or training, yet with shrewdness and business acumen. So he waited for his chance, and in time he laid up enough money to "take a flyer," to buy something that was "sure to be good." As it happened, the investment was very profitable, and, as he was soon afterward promoted, he was enabled to "play the market" at other times—but always within the limit of his income. In this way he got a start toward riches, and, by miraculous luck and remarkably good management, he was a millionaire by the time he reached the age of 30.

It was then the great question presented itself. Whom did he belong? He had money, but he did not know how to spend it. He had friends, but they were working people who did not have the time to share with him his pleasures. His time was his own, theirs was not. Richer people he did meet in the way of business, but his manners excluded him from their social life—in other words, he was not presentable; at every turn he showed himself ignorant of the most simple rules of ordinary social intercourse.

It seems remarkable that one so mentally alert should have failed to notice the customs and manners of those by whom he must have been constantly surrounded. He surely saw well-bred people on the street, in restaurants or in hotels whom he might have watched and used as a sort of model. In this way he might have learned to conceal his own lack of training. He must have been innately refined, for he perfectly realized wherein he fell short of the standard of breeding, yet he was not sufficiently observant to profit by his opportunities.

In despair at last he went to several people—to his former employers, to brokers—to ask for advice and for some in "society manners," but he found no one willing to be his mentor.

The end of the story was, I believe, that he returned to active business, and is still piling up more dollars, though he never hopes to derive any pleasure from their possession.

The world is full of such men, who have business sense, but who, unfortunately, are lacking in the more subtle, though not so remunerative, quality—good breeding.

There are four classes of people: those who have good manners, those who have bad manners, those who do not care what kind of manners they have and those who know that their manners are not all that they should be, but who desire to learn differently. It is this last class that I would like to help.

That elusive quality called "good manners" stands for a thousand little details that some people know by instinct, but that others learn by observance or by actual instruction.

About the question of observation, it is a very important point to know whom to select as a model. Many are unable to discriminate, and therefore follow the example of some complacent person so conscious of riches or of dress that he seems to carry off any situation in a high-handed manner, easily mistaken by the uninitiated for the "regal way of the manner born." To appear to be well bred, to know what and how to ignore, to be always at your ease—these are what it means to have good manners. He who has acquired this knowledge knows how to cope with every situation that comes up in daily life.

It sounds very complicated, as though it might take years of study, yet the whole subject of good breeding may be adequately expressed in a single sentence: Never be conspicuous.

Godfrey's Helpfulness

"GODFREY! oh, Godfrey!"

No sooner did he hear this summons, than a little boy appeared from the grape arbor in which he had been half hidden. Turning his head toward the balcony where stood the lady who had called, he shouted:

"Dost want me, mother?"

"I need thee ever so much," said the young mother, laughingly; "for I have lost a second time the book with the pretty binding of blue and gold. And since thou wast so successful in finding the book for thy careless mother when last 'twas lost, I must needs call again upon the services of my knight."

"I'll find it, mother! I'll find it!" cried Godfrey, with assurance. His chest swelled with importance as he swiftly made his way to the house.

But, for the once, Godfrey failed in his purpose. Not a trace of the book could be found. However, he did not lose all hope of bringing the volume to his mother, and he pleaded for a little more time in which to hunt for it.

A day or so later Godfrey was trundling his hoop along one of the streets of Boston town, when something brought him to a sudden stop. His hoop, which had been spinning several feet ahead, was permitted to roll unnoticed into the gutter, while he hurriedly examined the shop window nearby. It was a bookshop at which he paused, and that which attracted his attention was nothing less than a volume with a beautiful binding of blue and gold.

"Mother's book, of a surety!" gasped the lad.

Then, setting his jaw determinedly, he muttered:

"Mother SHALL have her book, for I have promised it!"

First glancing around to see that no one observed, he struck savagely at the window with his hoop-stick, shattering the glass to bits. Quickly thrusting his hand through the opening, he grabbed the precious book and dashed recklessly down the street.

In vain the old bookseller pursued. The boy was more fleet of foot than he and, darting down side streets and twisting through alleys, soon eluded him.

Triumphantly Godfrey bore his capture home. Seeking his mother, he laid it before her, saying, proudly:

"See, lady mother, I have brought back thy book and kept my promise!"

"But this book is not mine, e'en though the binding be of a striking likeness," exclaimed the mother, in astonishment. "Tell me, my son, where didst thou get it?"

"Some one stole it and took it to the bookshop, mother, and I went thither and ran away with the book from Mr. Jenkins," Godfrey explained, his eyes sparkling with pride at the thought of his achievement.

Godfrey's father straightened out the tangle that evening. When he returned home, after paying the bookseller for his book and the damage done to the window, he drew Godfrey aside and told him very carefully that however much little boys may wish to help, they should always first make sure they do the right thing in the right way.

"DASHED RECKLESSLY DOWN THE STREET"

Trick Paper Cutting

TAKE a small piece of paper, about as large as half an envelope, and announce to your audience that you are going to get through it. With a pair of scissors, cut it first of all down the center and then along the lines as shown in the drawing. Upon opening it, you will now find that you can easily put it over your head and body.

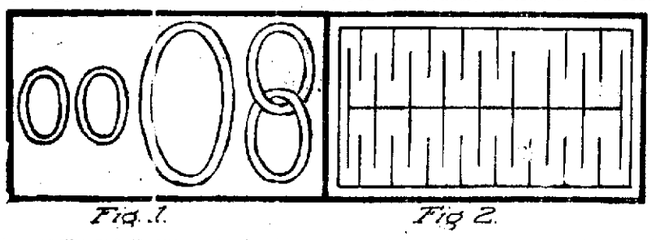

Fig. 1. Fig 2.

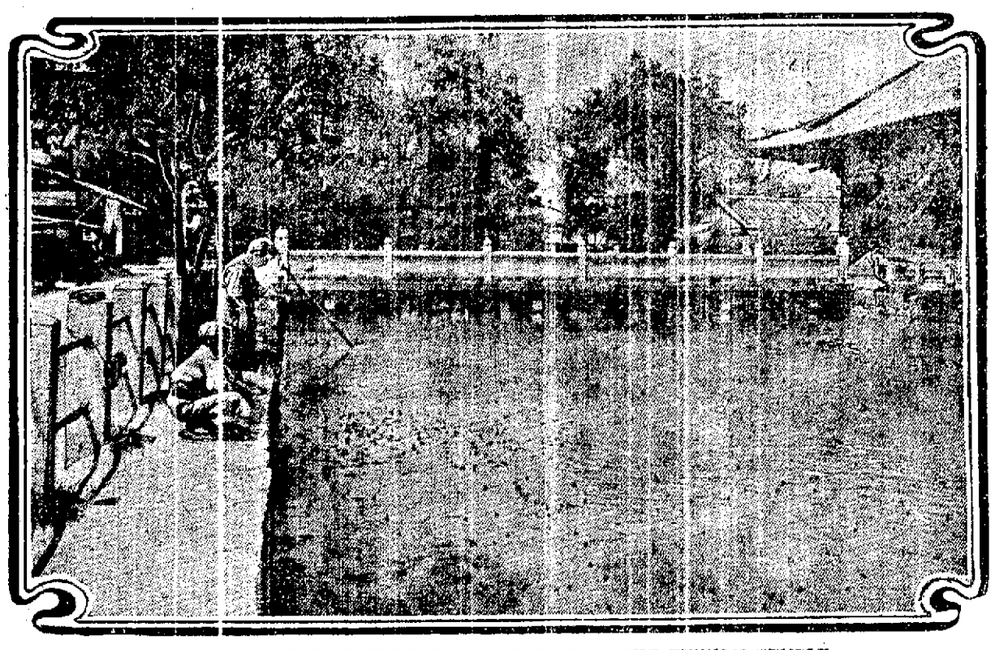
Here is another very puzzling trick: Make three paper rings. Cut them in halves lengthwise. Your audience will be surprised to find that while the first ring, when cut, came out as they expected—in two separate rings half as wide as the original ring—the second ring came out in one ring, double the size of the original; and the third cutting resulted in two rings linked together like a chain.

This strange result was obtained by the following method: In fashioning the rings, you cut three strips off the edge of your newspaper, as long as you could possibly get them and about an inch wide; but in joining the ends to form the rings you proceeded in this manner: The edges of the first one you merely gummed together; to the second one you gave one twist before joining; and the third you twisted thrice. Therefore, different results were produced in the cutting.

"Acquiring Merit"

Story of the Holy Tortoises.



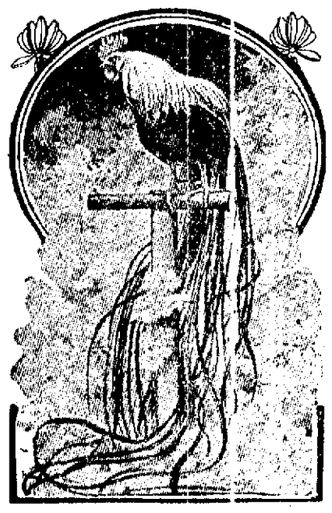
THOUSANDS OF HOLY TURTLES IN THE POND BY THE TENNOJI TEMPLE

"WILL not the honorable young master buy a cake to feed the tortoises?" wheedled the old Jap.

Jack carelessly took a brass coin from his pocket and tossed it to the peddler. "Sure," said he, with American directness.

The lad approached the bank of the pond, where tortoises moved about, literally in masses. No sooner did he begin to crumble the cake than hundreds of them swam quickly toward him, scrambling over one another in their attempt to reach the edge first.

"I'd like to have a few of those big fellows yonder," Jack muttered to himself. "They'd make dandy pets. But I don't suppose I can sneak them away. That old man watches too closely over his holy tortoises. I know what I'll do. I'll ask Titsu-San if he can't get a couple for me."



THE HANDSOME TO MARU

When he had thrown away all the cake, he turned and made his way back to the quaint little house, where he had been living with his father and mother for the last six weeks. Since he had landed in Japan he had diligently studied the customs of this interesting people. He even prided himself upon some slight knowledge of the Japanese language. But he didn't know enough about the "holy" tortoises confined in this pond in Osaka.

"Titsu-San, can't you possibly get for me several of those sacred tortoises?" he asked, when he met his little Jap friend that afternoon.

"That would be a crime, Master Jack!" exclaimed Titsu-San, in dismay. "You must know why the tortoises are kept in the pond beside the Tennoji Temple. They are the emblems of long life. As you are aware, each morning I am hired by the priests to fish a number from the water. These are bought by devout people, for the sum of a penny apiece, by whom they are returned to the pond. The persons thus acquire religious merit and gain the grace and favor of the all-powerful god, Buddha. It is a worthy deed, also, to feed the tortoises.

"But as for catching any of the tortoises and giving them to you—that would be impossible! The laws forbid it."

"Oh, come, Titsu-San," replied Jack, cajolingly, "you're not afraid, are you? If anything should come of it, I'll take all the blame. There isn't the slightest danger, I'm sure. And I'll give you my handsome to-maru. It's a real Onagadori, you know."

TITSU-SAN IS TEMPTED

Titsu-San hesitated. His eyes sparkled at the thought that he might become the owner of the magnificent cock, the tail of which measured six yards. It was a rare bird and a valuable one. Titsu-San had often admired it, although he had never even dared dream of possessing it for his own. Besides, he was always willing to do everything he could for his friend Jack, whom he greatly respected and liked.

"I shall do it, and I shall have to say extra prayers and throw cakes to the tortoises for a month to wash away my sin," Titsu-San announced, slowly.

Jack impetuously held out his hand. "Good for you, old boy! I knew you'd do it!" cried he.

The next day the little Jap appeared with a coarse bag, containing several huge tortoises. Gravely handing the bag to Jack, he departed without a word.

Jack was delighted with his prizes, which he immediately placed in a large stone basin in the garden. And he at once sent the long-tailed cock to Titsu-San, in fulfillment of his promise.

Greatly surprised was he when Titsu-San brought the cock back.

"My sin is weighing so heavily upon me, master Jack, that I dare not accept this gift," murmured he.

The young American looked at the sorrow-worn face of his friend, and his conscience reproached him.

"Forgive me, old chap!" he cried. "I didn't know you'd feel it like this. Great Scott! I don't want the old tortoises so very bad, anyway. I'm going to give them to you this very minute, so you can put the holy things back in their holy pond. And here, Titsu-San, is a whole handful of pennies, with which you may buy cakes to feed the turtles. After you've done that, you'll feel better, I know. I'm awfully sorry I got you in such a stew, old man!"

Titsu-San's countenance fairly glowed with joy. He thanked Jack again and again, to that worthy's great discomfort.

As soon as Titsu-San had gone happily upon his errand to returning the tortoises to the pond, Jack instructed that the long-tailed cock be sent back to the home of the little Jap.

"I suppose it was a nervy thing for the poor fellow to defy his priests and his conscience, all for me. He certainly deserves the to-maru, anyway. And I know I'll never have the courage to look a tortoise in the face again—especially if it's a holy tortoise!"

Prints of Leaves

VERY accurate and beautiful prints of leaves may be obtained in the following manner: First get a sheet of fine writing paper and oil it well with olive oil until the paper has pretty well absorbed the oil. Hang the paper in the air to dry until there are no longer any globules of oil on it. Then move the oiled side of the paper horizontally over the flame of a lamp or candle until you have a smooth blackened surface. Now lay your leaf carefully and smoothly on this blackened paper, and laying another piece of paper over it, rub it carefully and firmly with your finger for about half a minute. Next take the leaf and lay it on the page or sheet of paper on which you want to get your impression; cover it with blotting-paper and apply gentle pressure as before. If you are careful you will be able to obtain several beautiful impressions from the same leaf.

Where Umbrellas Rest

IT was afternoon, and thus spoke the teacher of the village school:

"Now, boys, the word 'stan' at the end of a word means 'place of.' Thus we have Afghanistan, the place of the Afghans; also Hindustan, the place of the Hindoos. Now, can any one give me another instance?

"Yes, sir," said the smallest boy proudly, "I can. Umbrellastan—the place for umbrellas."

To Melt Iron in a Moment

HEAT a piece of iron (a poker will do) to white heat then apply to it a roll of sulphur. The iron will immediately melt and run into drops. This experiment is best performed over a wash boiler full of water, allowing the melted iron (really sulphide of iron) to drop into the water.

Lots More

It having been her first visit to the country, little Mary drank so much of the nice, fresh milk that finally her aunt was obliged to caution her not to take any more.

Little Mary replied in an aggrieved tone:

"I don't see why I can't have as much as I want, auntie, when there's three cowfuls out in the barn."

"HIGGINS"

IT WOULD seem a misfortune to be named after an artist's ink. That is how Higgins came to have his name. And perhaps the name was the cause of a mishap which paralyzed his hind legs.

But Higgins' master was very fond of the little cocker spaniel. At first he thought it would be best to have the poor doggie shot, so that he need not hobble along in such a miserable way. Another idea came to him, however, and he built for Higgins a tiny carriage upon which the useless legs could rest, while the front legs propelled the dog wherever he wished to go.

When the spaniel travels about his queer carriage attracts much attention. But Higgins seems to mind it not at all, and gets along quite well in spite of his feeble condition.

The Little Harmonica

BY an arrangement of bottles a very good musical instrument can be produced by one who has patience and a correct ear. A couple of broom handles are balanced on two chair frames, and from these glass bottles containing water in gradually varying quantities are suspended by threads. To play on the bottles the drumsticks sold with children's toy drums answer perfectly.

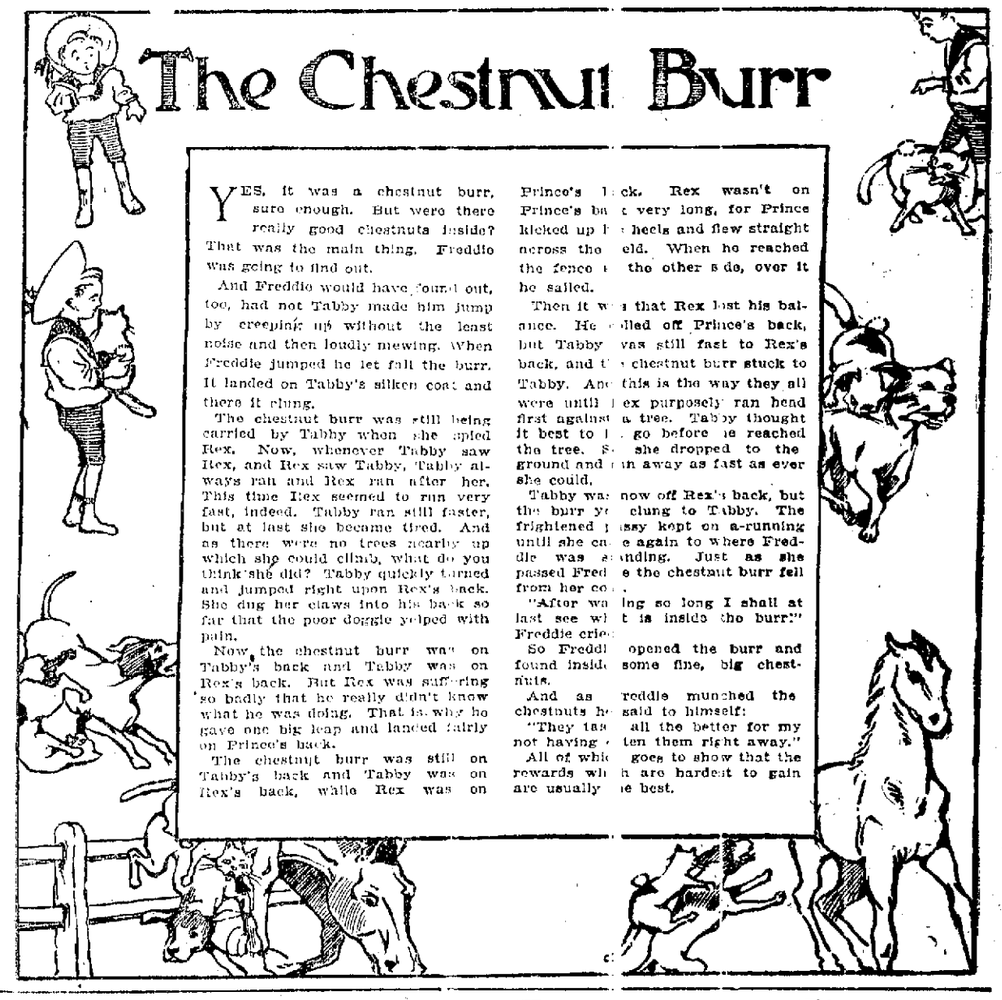
Show of Dead Ones

Sammy came home from an afternoon at the Natural History Museum.

"Where have you been?" said his grandpa, who saw that he was in uncommonly good spirits.

"Oh, we've had a splendid time! We've been to a dead circus."

The Chestnut Burr



YES, it was a chestnut burr, sure enough. But were there really good chestnuts inside? That was the main thing. Freddie was going to find out.

And Freddie would have found out, too, had not Tabby made him jump by creeping up without the least noise and then loudly mewing. When Freddie jumped he let fall the burr. It landed on Tabby's silken coat and there it clung.

The chestnut burr was still being carried by Tabby when she spied Rex. Now, whenever Tabby saw Rex, and Rex saw Tabby, Tabby always ran and Rex ran after her. This time Rex seemed to run very fast, indeed. Tabby ran still faster, but at last she became tired. And as there were no trees nearby up which she could climb, what do you think she did? Tabby quickly turned and jumped right upon Rex's back. She dug her claws into his back so far that the poor doggie yelped with pain.

Now the chestnut burr was on Tabby's back and Tabby was on Rex's back. But Rex was suffering so badly that he really didn't know what he was doing. That is why he gave one big leap and landed fairly on Prince's back.

The chestnut burr was still on Tabby's back and Tabby was on Rex's back, while Rex was on Prince's back. Rex wasn't on Prince's back very long, for Prince kicked up his heels and flew straight across the field. When he reached the fence he went the other side, over it he sailed.

Then it was that Rex lost his balance. He rolled off Prince's back, but Tabby was still fast to Rex's back, and the chestnut burr stuck to Tabby. And this is the way they all were until Rex purposely ran head first against a tree. Tabby thought it best to let go before he reached the tree. So she dropped to the ground and ran away as fast as ever she could.

Tabby was now off Rex's back, but the burr yet clung to Tabby. The frightened pussy kept on a-running until she came again to where Freddie was standing. Just as she passed Freddie the chestnut burr fell from her coat.

"After waiting so long I shall at last see what is inside the burr!" Freddie cried.

So Freddie opened the burr and found inside some fine, big chestnuts.

And as Freddie munched the chestnuts he said to himself:

"They taste all the better for my not having eaten them right away."

All of which goes to show that the rewards which are hardest to gain are usually the best.

Teddy Pets must go to School as well as Little Girls

NOW listen, Teddy, as I tell you why I brought you here!
The time has come to teach you many things, my Teddy dear,
So listen, while I whisper in your ear:
I know of lots of teddies who have never been to school,
Who even can't sit quietly upon a comfy stool
Or nicely say one tiny little rule.

I want my Teddy Pet to be so very,
very wise
That he can do, rightly and true,
'most ev'rything he tries—
A Teddy who'll be praised up to the skies;
There, dear, don't frown and then look down, so naughtily and cross;
If you will stupidly not learn 'twill be your own, big loss—
In scorn all folks at you their heads will toss.

So 'tention pay, and watch the way
my Teddy's name I spell;
I know you, too, will learn to do it
ev'ry bit as well
As you can tumble down the stairs
pell-mell;
Say "Ted-d," right after me, as if it were a game;
Those letters few, my dear, spell YOU,
and ev'ry Teddy's name—
Ted, good or bad, is spelt the very same.

School's over now, dear Teddy, and
I'm sure you will agree
That it's as nice and jolly as a game could ever be—
This game you played so patiently with me.
Smile Ted, and look as cunningly as only wee bears can,
While waiting to be "snapped" and
"it" by the picture man.
Who wants to show how lesson one began.

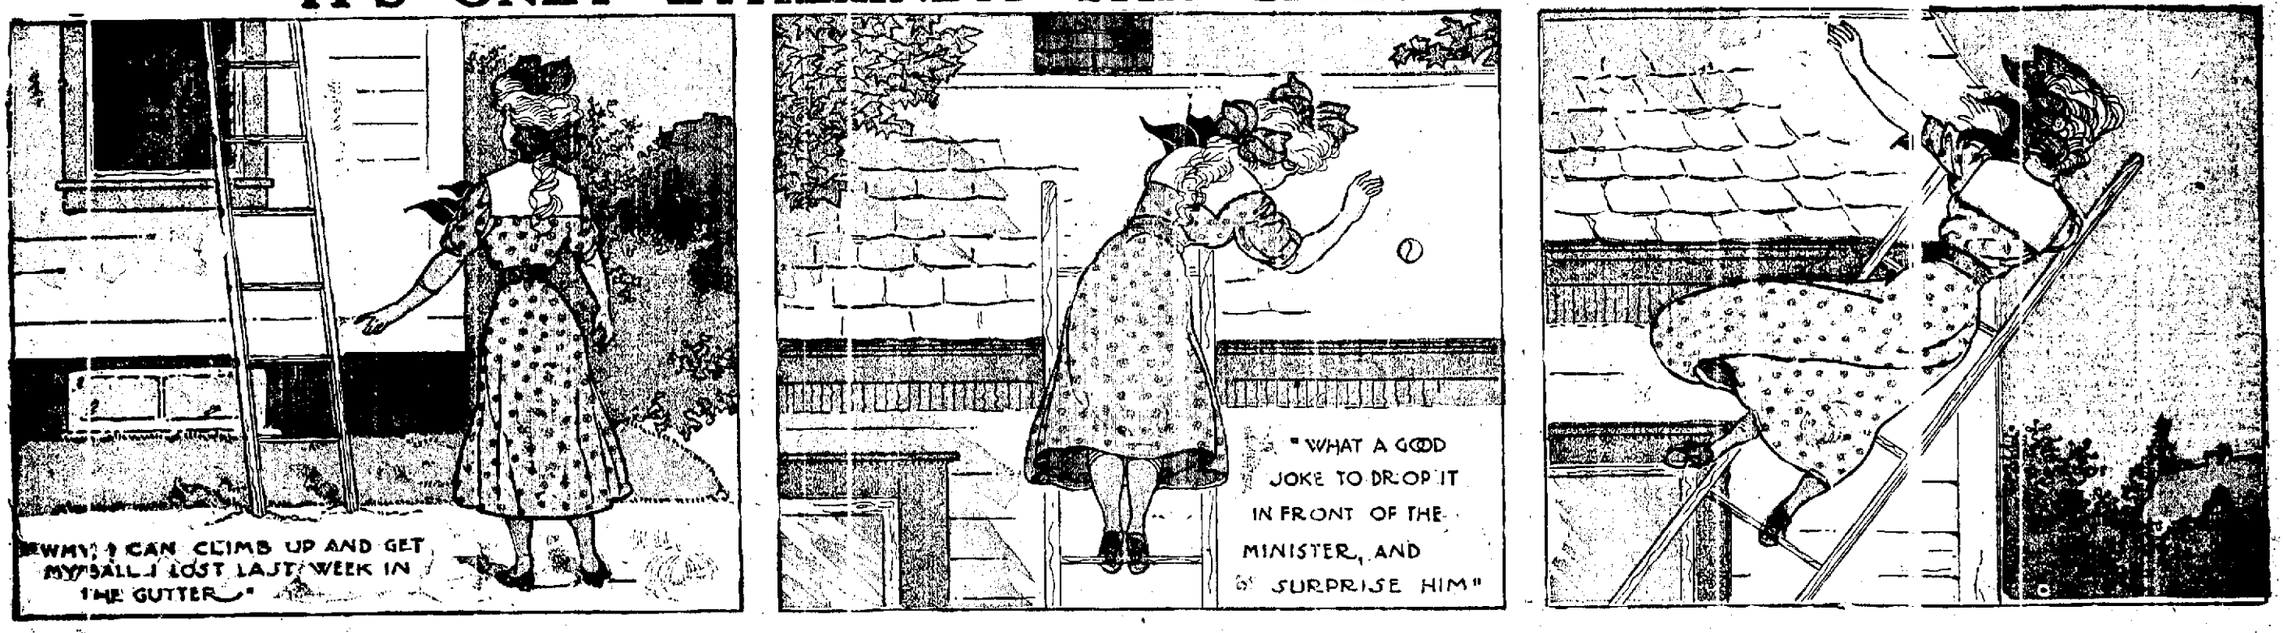
IT'S ONLY ETHELINDA---SHE GIVES A REAL SURPRISE



"WHY! I CAN CLIMB UP AND GET MY BALL I LOST LAST WEEK IN THE GUTTER."
"WHAT A GOOD JOKE TO DROP IT IN FRONT OF THE MINISTER, AND SURPRISE HIM" SOUL, ETHELINDA, WHAT ARE YOU DOING?
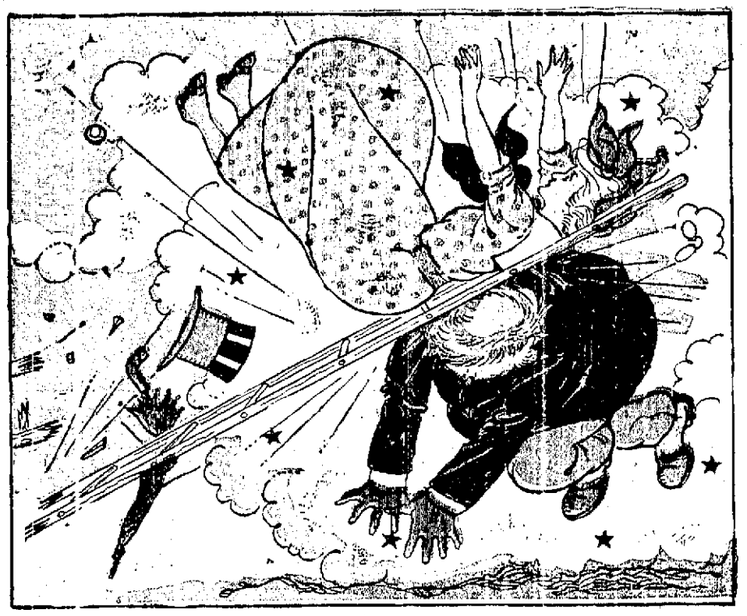
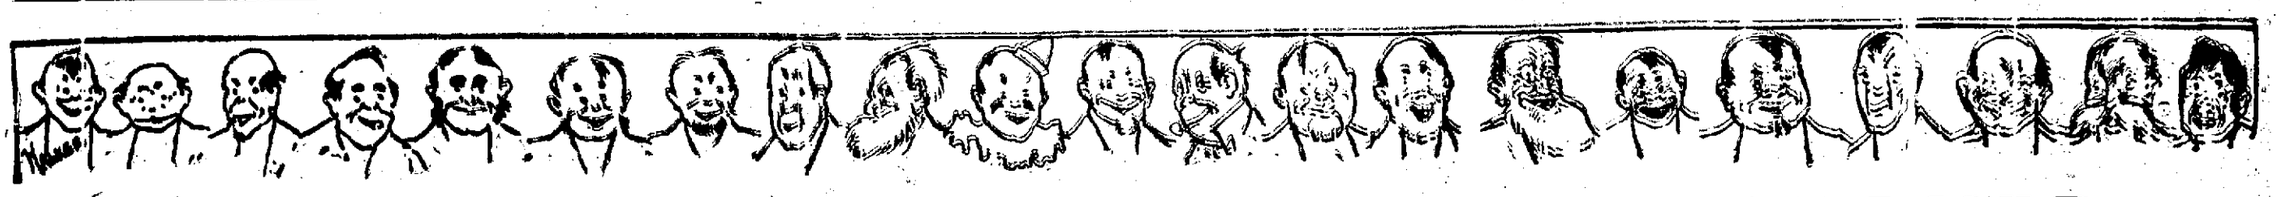
"NOTHING!"

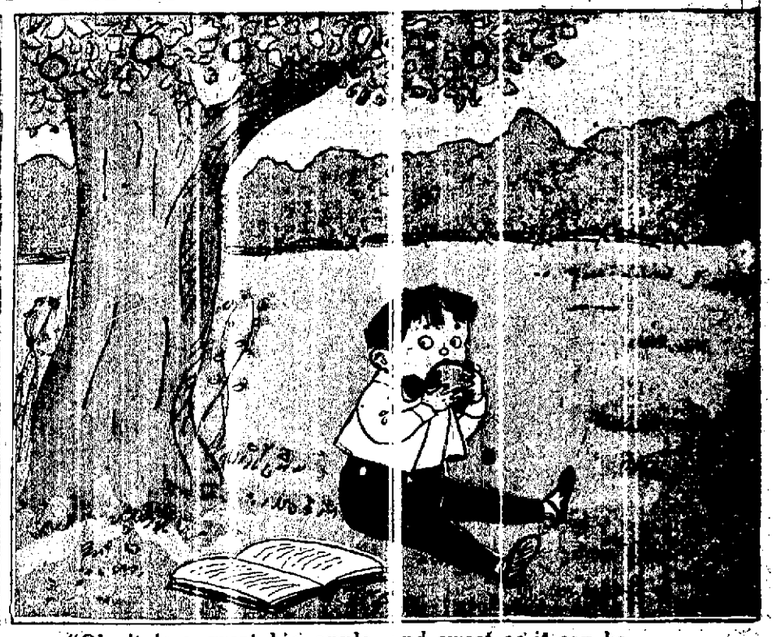




TED'S OBJECT SPELLING LESSON---A-P-P-L-E AND F-A-R-M-E-R

"Now, here is A-P-P-L-E. Dear me, what does that spell?
'Perhaps 'tis something good to eat. I wish that I might tell.

"Ouch! Ouch! What is this great big thing now falling on my head?
It hurt me awful, so it did. It almost killed me dead.



"Oh, it is a great big apple, and sweet as it can be.
I'm awful glad I walked along beneath that apple tree.

"F-A-R-M-E-R—let's see, six letters in that word.
I wonder if it is a hawk. It may be a jay bird.'

POSSE IN HOT PURSUIT OF ARMED AND DESPERATE FUGITIVE WHO SHOT 2 MEN

BRYAN IN REPLY TO T. R.

Democratic Candidate Opposes President in Defending Haskell.

Trust Campaign Funds and Panic Enter Into Nebraskan's Denunciation of Republican Policies and Platform.

MILWAUKEE, WIS., SEPT. 26.—DEFENDING HIS KNOWLEDGE OF GOVERNOR HASKELL AGAINST THE CHARGES WHICH HAVE BEEN BROUGHT AGAINST HIM, "UNTIL THE CHARGES CAN BE EXAMINED IN SOME COURT WHERE PARTISANSHIP DOES NOT EXIST," WILLIAM J. BRYAN, ON HIS WAY FROM MADISON TO THIS CITY, TODAY GAVE OUT FOR PUBLICATION HIS REPLY TO ROOSEVELT'S RECENT LETTER IN RESPONSE TO HIS TELEGRAM.

Bryan charges, among other things, that the steel trust "with your express consent," "purchased one of its largest rivals, and thus obtained control of more than 50 per cent of the total output." He asks the President if he will insist "that in permitting this you showed less favor to the monopolistic corporations than I did in opposing it."

ACCUSES HUGHES.

Bryan abruptly charges that Governor Hughes, quoted by President Roosevelt as having "riddled the Democratic trust remedy," himself was beneficiary of the trusts, and cites the campaign contribution to the Republicans as proof. The letter follows:

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 26.—Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir: While I have not received your letter, and shall not until I reach home next week, I have read a copy of it in the press and beg leave to submit the following reply.

Mr. Haskell, having voluntarily resigned from the committee, that he might be more free to prosecute those who have brought charges against him, I need not discuss the question of his guilt or innocence further than to say that the public service which he has rendered, and the vote of confidence which he has received from the people of his State, ought to protect him from condemnation until the charges can be examined in some court whose partisanship does not bias, and where campaign exigencies do not compel prejudice.

ROOSEVELT'S CHARGES.

"I would not deem it necessary to address you further, but for the fact that you seize upon the charges and attempt to make political capital out of them. You even charge that my connection with Mr. Haskell's selection as a member of the resolutions committee and as treasurer of the national committee raises a question as to my sincerity as an opponent of trusts and monopolies. As an individual, and as the candidate of my party, I resent the charges and repel the insinuation.

"I have been in public life for eighteen years and have been sufficiently conspicuous to make my conduct a matter of public interest. I have passed through two presidential campaigns in which party feeling ran high and epithet was exhausted. I have no hesitation in saying that you cannot find an act, a word or a thought of mine to justify your charge.

HASKELL A LEADER.

"I have never been informed of any charge that had been made against Mr. Haskell connecting him with the Standard Oil Company or with any other trust. I had known him as a leader in the constitution of Oklahoma and had known him as one of

New Democratic Treasurer Named

H. RIDDER HAS SUCCEEDED HASKELL

Editor of Staats Zeitung Appointed to Collect Funds to Run Democratic National Campaign.

Bryan Orders His Appointment After Mack Had Requested Belmont to Take His Old Position.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Herman Ridder was appointed tonight by Chairman Mack of the Democratic National Committee as treasurer of the committee to succeed Governor Charles N. Haskell of Oklahoma, who resigned early this morning because of the exposures of William R. Hearst of his alleged affiliation with the Standard Oil Company.

In selecting Ridder, Chairman Mack acted upon express orders from William J. Bryan. Ridder will at once take hold of collecting campaign funds for the Democratic national ticket.

ASKED BRYAN NOT TO RUN.

Ridder is the editor and proprietor of the Staats Zeitung. Prior to the Denver convention he called upon Bryan at Lincoln and begged him not to run for President, pleading that it was impossible for him to carry New York State, and if he lost New York he could not be elected. After Bryan's nomination Ridder proclaimed that he would do his best for Bryan's election and became associated with him in the campaign publicity bureau.

He has since been hard at work for the election of Bryan. In choosing Ridder, Bryan and Mack passed over the claims of Moses C. Wetmore, chairman of the Democratic National Finance Committee, and other aspirants. August Belmont, former treasurer and campaign collector for the Parker canvass, is understood to have suggested Ridder even before Bryan ordered his appointment.

BELMONT OFFERED PLACE.

Belmont was said to have been offered the place by Mack today during a long conference at the Hoffman House. Belmont is said to have argued that, should he take his old place, he might imperil the election of Bryan. Soon after Belmont parted from Mack a message came to Mack from Bryan ordering Ridder's selection. The formal announcement was made by Mack at the Hoffman House just prior to his departure for Buffalo at 9 o'clock tonight.

"I think we have now a treasurer who will not be subjected to the merciless attacks that have been hurled upon Haskell," said Chairman Mack. "Any way, Ridder is all right," he added as he boarded the train for Buffalo.

2000 DELEGATES ARE EXPECTED IN S. F.

10,000 Visitors Will Probably Be Guests of City at Congress Meeting.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 26.—Secretary A. F. Francis of the Trans-Mississippi Congress, which meets in this city October 6 to 10, inclusive, stated today that there will be at least 2000 delegates and over 10,000 visitors. Col. H. D. Loveland, formerly president of the congress and chairman of the hotel committee, has prevailed upon the hotel men to decorate theb buildings in a suitable manner. The ferry building and Dreamland rink, where the congress will be held, will also be fittingly decorated.

Sheriff Langford Arrivet in Dallas

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 26.—Sheriff Langford and his deputy from San Jose reached this city tonight. They did not go to the jail to look at the man who is supposed to be the murderer Dunham. Their plan is to take the matter up in the morning.

TOO MANY NAMES USED

Numerous Cognomens of Maxine Elliott Mix Up Reno Judge.

August Jurist Warns Actress to Use One Title and in Confusion Puts the Case Over.

RENO, Nev., Sept. 26.—Too many names spoiled the case, is the history of the first day's proceedings in the divorce suit of Nat C. Goodwin, the noted actor, against his beautiful wife, Maxine Elliott, in court here today, and Judge Pike postponed the case, with the stern advice to the attorneys on both sides to "get together" on some one name, and if Goodwin secured his divorce he would be sure it was from his wife.

The complaint was filed against Bessie Hall Goodwin, the actress signed her answer as Jessie Dermot Goodwin, and her letter to her attorney, A. J. Shores, was signed Maxine Elliott. Judge Pike was bewildered and said in all his forty years' experience he had never seen such a mixup.

MUST AMEND COMPLAINT.

He told Goodwin and his attorneys to amend their complaint, using the name used in the answer, and told the attorneys for the wife to secure her written power of attorney signed with the same name. This will take several days, and the case will be called again Friday, if the papers arrive in time.

Goodwin was much disturbed because the case was delayed. The answer denies only the charge of desertion, and this point will be the cause for argument, if there is any, when the trial comes up.

TELEGRAPHS EDNA.

J. S. Parker of Reno and A. J. Shores of New York appeared for the defendant, while Dodge & Barry and F. G. Tyrrell of Los Angeles appeared for Goodwin.

There is much speculation among Reno people as to what Goodwin's next move will be, if he secures his divorce. It is known that he tonight cabled Edna Goodrich the result of today's proceedings.

The presence of the attorneys for the defendant, in person, with power of attorney, is for the purpose of preventing a decree by publication, thus to avoid the publicity arising from such suit by default.

MAXINE ELLIOTT NOT TO APPEAR IN COURT

Hasn't the Time to Spare from Theatrical Engagements to Appear in Divorce Contest at Reno.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 26.—Maxine Elliott, the actress, will not appear before Judge Pike at Reno on December 20, as ordered by the court, to answer to the complaint for divorce filed against her by Nat C. Goodwin, and as a consequence the actor-promoter will be granted his decree by default. This fact was made public today by Frank Appleton, Miss Elliott's manager.

"Miss Elliott's theatrical engagements will not permit her to be in Reno on December 20," said Mr. Appleton. "I am speaking now from a business standpoint only. What her sentiments in the affair may be I do not know, but I can say positively that she will not appear before Judge Pike."

FEAR DANGER TO CRUISER PRAIRIE

Government Wireless Stations Are Trying to Pick Up War Vessel---Carries 250 Extra Sailors.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—All the wireless stations of the Navy Department are trying to pick up the cruiser Prairie, to give her warning of a terrific West Indian hurricane advancing toward Porto Rico from the southward. She is due to come within the area of the hurricane's force tonight and the department desired to give Captain Ackerman more definite information as to how much more he may expect than the barometer tells him.

The storm was first reported from the south of the Island of St. Kitts. The weather bureau observer on that island reported it to the weather bureau this morning. The naval stations at Charleston, Key West, Pensacola and San Juan were immediately notified and directed to get in touch with the cruiser and also make things in their own vicinity as safe as possible.

The cruiser Prairie is carrying 250 sailors for the Pacific fleet to Colon, where they will be sent to Panama and San Francisco. In addition she has a crew of about the same number. As figured at the Navy Department, she was due to be taking one of the four passages into the Caribbean sea sometime today. She left Norfolk on September 22.

ASTOR WANTS TO SELL HIS PAPER

Pall Mall Gazette of London Is for Sale, With Conditions.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—William Waldorf Astor is negotiating with the representative of a syndicate for the sale of his daily evening paper, the Pall Mall Gazette. Astor makes a condition of the sale that the paper shall not change its politics, that is, shall not become a Liberal newspaper within five years.

To sell the newspaper at this time would seem to be bad policy in view of the fact that young Waldorf Astor is the conservative candidate for Parliament in Plymouth. But his father seems desperately anxious to get rid of the paper, which has ceased to interest him.

Bryan Is Peevish Over Way He Was Treated by Mack

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 26.—The gossip on the Bryan train is to the effect that Mr. Bryan is exceedingly peevish as a result of the treatment he received in Chicago from the National Committee. He was told in effect by Norman Mack, it is said, that he might run along and do the specifying for which he was nominated, while the committee would attend to the Haskell matter. The Haskell matter was attended to, it is said, without a conversation with Mr. Bryan or even an adherence to his wishes.

Coming Here After Embezzler Webster

SEATTLE, Sept. 26.—Chief of Police Irving Ward, accompanied by Karl Anderson, a local newspaper man, took passage on the steamship Watson, sailing for San Francisco this afternoon for the purpose of returning Jesse Grant Webster, now confined and under guard in an Oakland sanitarium, to Seattle.

Webster is wanted here on a charge of embezzlement in appropriating, as claimed, $6000 of the funds of the Cascade Laundry Company to his own use.

He was located in Oakland through the published account of an automobile accident last Sunday on the San Jose road out of San Francisco and in which he was so badly injured that he had to be taken to the sanitarium, where he was found by the San Francisco police.

Big Man Hunt Is On In the Fruitvale Hills

HARRY HAMMER.

FRED SCHMIDT.
The two Men Who Were Shot Yesterday Afternoon by James Jackson.

SHERIFF HEADS FORCE

On Trail of James Jackson and Bitter Fight Is Expected Any Time.

One Man's Wound Fatal; Harry Hammer Cannot Live, Say Surgeons; Wanton Shooting in Half-Way House Over Dice Game.

Fully armed and determined to sell his life dearly, James Jackson, who shot down two men in the Halfway House on the San Leandro road yesterday afternoon, is still at large.

A posse headed by Sheriff Frank Barnet and consisting of a number of deputy sheriffs and constables, is hot on his trail. All night the pursuit was kept up and at any minute a fight was imminent.

Fired Three Shots

Jackson, after firing three shots into Harry Hammer and Fred Schmidt, two carpenters, as the result of a quarrel over a dice game, made his escape into the Fruitvale hills. At least he fled in that direction and the determined officers following him, presume that he made the cover of the rough section for which he headed. The fugitive has a six-shooter; he also has a reputation as a "gun fighter."

Had Good Lead

Hammer and Schmidt were shot about 3 o'clock in the afternoon and Jackson fled at once. He therefore obtained a lead that enabled him to reach the hills if he so desired.

Hammers at an early hour this morning was reported dying in the County Infirmary, where an operation was performed in the hope of saving his life. Schmidt was only slightly wounded.

The tragedy is pronounced by those

PART OF BODY OF WOMAN IS FOUND

Johnson's Victim Found Under Their Cabin by the Nome Officers.

SEATTLE, Sept. 26.—From beneath the cabin occupied by the couple the head and lower limbs of Bell Gilchrist, said to have been murdered by Lee Johnson, who is supposed to have jumped overboard from the steamship Victoria while running Unimak Pass, were dug up today by United States Marshal Warren, according to today's telegraphic advices from Nome. The Victoria is now returning to Seattle, and will be searched again in accordance with instructions received from the Nome authorities, upon its arrival in this port.

At Nome the vessel was not only searched, but also fumigated, resulting in no trace of the alleged fugitive murderer.

RENEW LEGAL FIGHT TO GET LEGAL GAS RATE

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 26.—Modifications of the restraining order which permits the San Francisco Gas and Electric Company to charge as high rates for gas as it pleased during the time its suit is pending against the city will be formally asked of the United States Circuit Court Monday, the copies of the motion for modification having been made out and served on the proper persons today by order of City Attorney Percy V. Long. If these motions are granted, the gas consumers of the city will be enabled to prosecute individual suits against the company for their own protection against excessive rates.

The gas company also made a tactical move by filing an answer to the original answer of the city, and thus create an indefinite delay in the suit, similar to that which has held the water injunction case in the courts for four years. If this move is successful, the company will continue the collection of the dollar rate for gas during the present fiscal year.

Islands Struck by Terrific Hurricane

SAN JUAN, P. R., Sept. 26.—News has come here of a hurricane that has just swept over the British island of St. Kitts. The inhabitants of all the towns on the island were warned and as a result little, if any damage, has been reported.

ST. THOMAS, D. W. I., Sept. 26.—A hurricane blew over the islands of Guadaloupe, Antigua and St. Kitts Friday morning. No damage has thus far been reported.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—The hurricane in the West Indies, according to a weather bureau announcement today, is still moving westward and this morning its center was south and near Porto Rico.

Thaw Both Wins and Loses Before Court

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 26.—For the third time since he was locked in the White Plains jail, Harry K. Thaw today faced the bar of justice in the Supreme Court when his lawyer, Charles Morschauser, again pressed his application to Justice Mills for an order allowing Thaw to have his alleged insanity passed upon by a Westchester county jury.

After hearing the argument Justice Mills denied the motion for a jury trial. He also refused to transfer the entire matter to New York county as District Attorney Winslow of Westchester county asked him to do. He ruled that Thaw could have a trial before him without a jury.

This is a victory for the defendant in his fight for release from the Matteawan asylum, for while he lost his plea for a trial by jury the refusal of the court to throw the matter back into Jerome's hands more than offset this in view of the defense.

REPUBLICANS WILL OPEN STATE CAMPAIGN SATURDAY

Army of Spellbinders Engaged to Whoop Things Up for Taft and Sherman--Shortridge Is to Go North.

The Republican State campaign for Taft and Sherman will open in earnest next Saturday, October 3, if those in charge at campaign headquarters can rouse their spellbinders to action by then.

It has been arranged that Samuel M. Shortridge shall open the campaign in the north, while in the southern part of the State the opening meeting will be held by General Archibald T. Sampson, for ten years Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the South American republic at Ecuador.

"We'll get them both to open on the same night, if we can," said General George Stone, chairman of the State campaign committee, yesterday. "Shortridge has announced himself in readiness at any time, and we'll get him started at either Redding or Red Bluff, while General Sampson, who is coming to California for this purpose, will open at San Diego."

PERKINS AND KNIGHT.

The list of orators includes nearly every Republican of note in California. It contains United States Senator Perkins and George Knight, who will travel together. Knight has refused all inducements to tour the East, and will not start out in California until the campaign is well advanced, but he has agreed to accompany Perkins on a short tour of the principal cities. All the eight congressmen from California are to be sent out in the interest of the national ticket as well as their own, including Englebright, McKinlay, Knowland, Kahn, Hayes, Needham, MacLachlan and Smith. Each will be given a schedule made out for him at headquarters.

GOVERNOR TO AID PARTY.

Governor Gillett is to aid in the spellbinding, also former Governor Gage, Oscar Lawler of Los Angeles, Secretary of State "Charlie" Curry, Attorney General Webb, United States Attorney Robert T. Devlin, John L. McNab of Mendocino, Thomas B. Dozier of Shasta are among the prominent names on the list. Judge Henry A. Melvin will say a few kind words for Taft while prosecuting his own campaign for justice of the Supreme Court. Frank H. Short will forget his turning down at Fresno two years ago and will aid in the work. Colonel E. A. Forbes will put his Lincoln-Roosevelt League memories behind him and will start out from Marysville at the bidding of the State machine in the interest of Mr. Taft.

LIST OF SPEAKERS.

Insurance Commissioner E. Myron Wolf will leave his office desk to address a few audiences and, perhaps, on rare instances to indulge them with "Casey at the Bat." City Attorney Percy Long of San Francisco, Attorney J. C. Campbell of Schmitz trial fame, Collector of the Port Fred Stratton, Otto Irving Wise, Cary Van Fleet, Jesse Steinhardt, and P. A. Bergerot, will all join the army of Republican spellbinders. New names on the list of campaign orators are D. J. Hill of Trinity, W. H. L. Hynes of Alameda, Dr R. H. McClintis of San Diego and Parker S. Maddux, a San Francisco lawyer.

Dates are being arranged and will be ready for publication in a few days. There are signs of activity at headquarters in the Fairmont, where Chairman Phil Teller and George Stone, Will Davis, Jake Steppacher and a number of secretaries are up to their eyes in papers and figures.

BURGLAR FULL OF CHOCOLATE STUCK IN TRANSOM

And Then, to Add to His Woe, He Asked "Cop" to "Be His Pal."

NEW YORK, Sept 26.—After eating enough sweet chocolate to satiate even Jud, the Central Park elephant, and filling his pockets to the full with the confection, 17-year-old Bernard Jones of 586 Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn got stuck in the transom over the door of Grocer Houseman's store at 251 Division avenue, Williamsburg, early today.

Bernard had made a surreptitious entrance by the same route, hours before the grocer was astir, and, raiding the chocolate shelf, converted himself into an animated chocolate bonbon before deciding to depart.

CALLS A COP.

Wriggling in the traplike transom Bernard finding it impossible to extricate himself, called to an early morning passerby, who proved to be Bicycle Policeman Mills of the Clymer street station, in plain clothes.

"Say, Bill," said the confiding Bernard "help me out and I'll stake you to half of what I've got."

"You ate on," said Mills, lending a hand and the hand still clung to Bernard's coat collar, when a safe descent had been made. "Now," said Mills, "what is my rake-off."

"I got a hundred and fifty cakes of chocolate in me pockets. Take eighty for your share and call it off," and then Mills flashed his badge.

"Gee," exclaimed Bernard. "If I'd a known who you were, I would not have said a word."

who witnessed it as wholly wanton and cold-blooded.

Details of Shooting

William Johnson, proprietor of the saloon, was in a rear room at the time of the shooting, and believes that to this he owes his life, as Jackson is known to have had a grudge against the saloonkeeper for some time. The bartender, George Seeger, was the only man besides the trio in the place when the fatal shots were fired. He escaped injury by dodging behind the bar.

All Were Drinking

Teh men had been drinking, and Jackson particularly was under the influence of liquor. After a short dispute in regard to the game, he left the saloon and crossed the street to his house immediately opposite on the corner of Baker avenue, reappearing immediately with a revolver. Opening the door part way he deliberately shot through the glass at Schmidt, the bullet entering the back of the man's left hand and passing out of the palm. Turning to where Hammer stood up against the wall on the opposite side of the room, Jackson fired twice, both shots taking effect, one in Hammer's wrist and the other enterinb his abdomen. Then Jackson ran out of the saloon and dashing up Baker avenue, disappearing in the hills back of Evergreen cemetary.

Taken to Hospital

Deputy Sheriff E. R. Patterson of Melrose was the first official to upon the scene of the shooting. Schmidt was sent to the hospital, where his wound was dressed, and Hammer, who was unconscious, was taken to his home on Baker avenue near the Boulevard, by the deputy, and Dr. L. B. Smith in the latter's automobile. A hasty examination led the doctor to state that the wounded man could not live twenty-four hours and thence he was hurried to the County Hospital near San Leandro.

Posse in Pursuit

Deputy Constable C. H. Case and Deputy Sheriff Patterson then took up the pursuit of the fugitive. Following Mills Seminary creek, they found footprints, evidently those of the murderer, but all trace was lost at the Boulevard. At this point an unknown man informed them the Jackson had been captured near the scene of the tragedy, and the deputies returned. It is believed that this was a ruse by some friend of the pursued man to divert them from his hiding place.

Jackson, who is about 40 years of age, has been in his present location for the last year and a half. He carries on a sort of junk business, dealing in second-hand vehicles and articles. He lives with his wife and two stepsons, Thomas and Joe Hansen, who have an express business on the same premises with Jackson, under the name of Hansen Brothers.

Disliked by Neighbors

The Hansons are regarded as honest and hard-working young men, but Jackson seems to have inspired nothing but distrust and dislike among his neighbors.

He bears the reputation of having an extremely nervous temperament under ordinary conditions, a very dangerous man when intoxicated, and he is a heavy drinker. Shortly before the shooting an incident is cited which goes to show Jackson's nature. A negro horse broker of Melrose, who goes by the name of "Frank," was called upon one evening by Jackson and asked without any apparent anger to come over to his house for a visit. No sooner had they entered the house than Jackson pulled out a big revolver and accused the colored man of addressing an insulting remark to Mrs. Jackson.

"Now, you big coon, apologize to my wife." The colored man says that the "insult" consisted merely in a request to Mrs. Jackson a short time before to step out of his horse's path to avoid an accident.

Victims Both Married

The victims of the shooting are both married men, and well liked by the community in general. They are both carpenters. Hammer, who is expected to die before morning, is well respected. He is the father of a nine-months-old girl.

An examination and operation at the hospital discloses the fact that the victim's bowels are perforated in three places, and no hope is held out for his recovery. He is about 40 years of age.

Sheriff Barnet and Deputy Sheriffs White, Sherry and Allen are carrying on a vigilant search for the murderer. About half past six last evening two school children who are acquainted with Jackson reported that they had seen the fugitive on High street making his way toward Oakland, but this is regarded as improbable, as every avenue of escape is being guarded.

PROSPECTUS OF BANKERS' HOTEL FOR OAKLAND

Commercially, Oakland is now a city of 250,000 inhabitants; is one of the chief centers of travel and commerce of the Pacific Coast, being situated nearly midway between Los Angeles and Portland, Oregon, and is enjoying an unexpected growth in population and business. But the lack of adequate hotel accommodations is now causing serious inconvenience, and threatens to retard the development of the city. The necessity for a modern hotel of the highest class has long been recognized. It has now become imperative, for everything in the shape of a hotel or lodging-house is overcrowded, while the restaurants are overwhelmed with custom. There is an increasing demand for the accommodation of the traveling public. We have no hotel of the class essential in a city of the size, importance and favorable location of Oakland.

Modern Hotel Is Good Investment

A thoroughly equipped modern hotel is not only a public necessity, but an attractive investment of capital, inviting the co-operation of merchants and property owners of the city, who are united in desiring the erection of such a hotel. One of the right class is sure of a large and profitable business the moment its doors are opened. To remedy a condition that is injuring the city's prestige and turning travel away, the representative banks of Oakland, in response to a universal demand, have associated themselves in launching a hotel enterprise financially.

Block Bought For the Hotel Site

After a careful consideration, the block bounded by Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Harrison and Alice streets, was selected as the most desirable in the city for the purpose. The lowest price for which the property could be bought was $225,000. Judging from the enhancement in values of adjacent property, the site will, as soon as the hotel is built, be worth from $500,000 to $600,000.

In addition to subscribing for the entire bond issue of $750,000, the individual members of the Clearing House Associated Banks will be subscribers for the stock. An opportunity will also be given to citizens generally to co-operate in this enterprise, and participate in the profitable returns it promises.

The amount of capital stock will be $2,250,000.

Preferred stock, 7500 shares at $100 per share, $750,000. Common stock, 15,000 shares at $100 per share, $1,500,000.

It is estimated, that a hotel commensurate with the needs of the city can be built and furnished for $1,050,000. The cost of the site was $225,000, making a total of $1,275,000. While it will be the aim of the directors to keep within this limit, provision has been made for an additional $225,000 in case of necessity. These funds will be provided by sale of bonds, $750,000. Sale of preferred stock, $750,000.

What the Stock Will Pay

The common stock will go with the preferred stock in proportion of two to one; that is, a subscription of $10,000 gets $10,000 in preferred stock and $20,000 in common stock. The preferred, when fully paid, will be 7 per cent cumulative stock. On December 1, 1906, 10 per cent of the amount of each subscription will be payable, and thereafter payments of 10 per cent will be called for at intervals of sixty days. The common stock will not participate in dividends until the preferred stock has received 7 per cent, nor will it receive over 2½ per cent during any one year until the bonded debt has been paid. Judging from the experience of the best hotels in the United States, the preferred stock will pay 7 per cent and the common stock 2½ per cent as soon as the hotel is fairly under way, besides the large surplus toward paying off the bonded debt.

Bonds Will Run Thirty Years

The bonds will run thirty years with privilege of redemption at 105 after five years. A sinking fund or not less than $20,000 is provided for, to begin in 1913, or earlier, if warranted by the earnings. In addition any surplus after paying 7 per cent cumulative on the preferred and 2½ per cent on the common stock will be reserved for the sinking fund until the debt is extinguished, after which all surplus goes to the holders of the common stock.

With a view of keeping the control of the hotel out of the hands of speculators or others who might prove unsatisfactory to the shareholders who subscribed for stock at the beginning of the enterprise, the common stock will be placed in the hands of trustees and the voting power vested until 1914 in said trustees, composed of one representative from each of the nine Associated Banks, comprising the Oakland Clearing House Association.

Inducement For Investors

The very large earnings of all the leading hotels in the United States, together with the increased value of the hotel site, offer an inducement to investors which should cause the stock to be largely over-subscribed, in which case subscribers will only receive their pro rata of the whole amount of stock subscribed for up to the time subscriptions are called in and declared closed.

The directors for the first year are:

EDSON F. ADAMS,
H. C. CAPWELL,
W. W. GARTHWAITE,
J. C. McMULLEN,
THOMAS PRATHER,
P. E. BOWLES,
D. E. COLLINS,
W. G. HENSHAW,
W. G.P ALMANTEER.

Subscription lists will be found at each bank in the City of Oakland on and after October 10, 1906.

NOTED AUTHORITY AT STATE FARM

Famed Horticulturist Is One of State Institution's Instructors in University.

One of the chief instructors in the short courses at the University Farm, October 8 to 10, is Warren T. Clarke, who is assistant professor in Horticulture, and superintendent of University Extension in Agriculture. Professor Clarke was a graduate from the College of Agriculture of the State University in 1903. During the year 1901-02 he was student assistant in the Department of Entomology, and the following year was field assistant in the same department, doing special work on the peach moth in the Sacramento valley. The success of his investigations in these directions are well known to all the peach growers in the Newcastle and Placerville districts of the foothill regions.

In 1903-04 he carried on equally successful investigations on the codlin moth in Pajaro valley. Early in 1904 he was appointed assistant superintendent of University Extension in Agriculture, and began his present successful work with the Farmers' Institutes. He continued in this work until the summer of 1906 when he accepted the professorship of Entomology in the College of Agriculture at Auburn, Alabama. He filled the chair for one year, and was also acting State Entomologist. He returned to California in 1907 to be made superintendent of University Extension in Agriculture and assistant professor of Horticulture.

IMPORTANT PUBLICATIONS.

His publications of Agricultural Experiment Station include Bulletin No. 175, "The Potato Worm in California," Bulletin No 144, "The Peach Worm in California," and Bulletin No 180, "The Hop Aphis." One of his important papers was "Observations on the Codlin Worm," published in the "Proceedings of the Fruit Growers' Convention of the Pacific Northwest," Portland, Oregon, 1904. While in Alabama he published two bulletins of his investigations in the interest of entomology; one on scale insects and one on injurious insects.

HIS EXPERIENCE PRACTICAL.

A large part of Professor Clarke's success in his present work is due to his experience in practical horticulture in California. He entered the University in his early eighties, but left college to enter commercial work. He was ten years in the general office of Wells Fargo Express Company of San Francisco and ten years in horticultural work, part of the time growing raisin grapes on the R. B. Hayes's ranch of Woodland and the remainder of the decade in vineyard and orange growing at Pomona.

Professor Clarke is one of the best boosters the college of agriculture has, and this means that he is one of the best boosters for California agriculture that the State possesses. He has been very earnest and efficient in forwarding the aims of the University farm, and all attendants upon the short courses will be glad to know him personally.

Elks Pay Tribute to Departed Brother With Touching Service

The funeral of the late Timothy F. Scanlon took place yesterday afternoon from the lodge room of Oakland lodge No. 171, B. P. O. E., and was attended by a large number of friends and business associates of the deceased. The services were of a most impressive nature and several times during the progress many of those present were moved to tears.

MANY FLORAL TRIBUTES.

The remains lay in a beautiful casket in front of the lodge altar, while all around were beautiful floral tributes from friends and business associates, which showed the esteem in which the deceased was held.

The exercises were conducted by Exalted Ruler Charles Wilkins, who was assisted by the following James McLaren as esteemed loyal knight, Dr. Peter A. Norfolk as esteemed lecturing knight, W. H. L. Hynes as esquire, A. Shields as chaplain, T. J. Johnson and W. H. Wollard.

MUSICAL NUMBERS.

At intervals selection were rendered as follows: "Over the Stars Is Rest" by Abt, "Crucifix," by Faure, "Forever With the Lord," by Gounod. The singers were Mrs. Grace Davis Northrup, Mrs. Carroll Nicholson and Frank Fowden, with Miss Virginia Demeritt as accompanist.

THE PALLBEARERS.

The pallbearers were J. J. Hamilton, W. H. Hynes, F. W. Sharpe, C. E. House, R. B. Ayer and Robert Greenhead.

The remains were placed temporarily in a vault at Mountain View Cemetery.

AN ELOQUENT EULOGY.

George W. Reed delivered an eloquent eulogy. He spoke of the deceased as follows:

"We have met here today to pay our tribute of love and affection to departed brother who, by the will of Divine Providence, has passed from the land of the hereafter.

"It is hard to figure out why, in the course of human events, a young man in the prime of life, of first class standing in the community where he has lived for so many years should be called hence and his career so useful to his family and his friends, should be broken so suddenly to a close. But experience has taught us all that these sad events to us all in the course of time, and we must accept them as they come and try to overcome our grief and our sorrow by bearing in mind that 'memory' is the only friend that grief can call its own."

DIFFICULT TASK.

"It is certainly a very hard task for me to be called upon to speak upon this occasion, but if anything I may say can in any way remove from the minds of the family and relatives of dear Scanlon, and his sorrowing friends, Tim little of their sorrow and anguish I shall feel that I have done my duty and that this occasion will not be entirely one of sorrow and pain, but the recollection of the noble life, good deeds and devotion to his family and friends of our dear departed brother will be some joy and relief to us all.

LIFE RECORD.

"Our dear friend was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., and came to Oakland when he was a small boy, and lived for many years right here among us. He had the misfortune of losing his father when he was a mere child, and his devotion to his dear mother and sisters who survives him was one of the marked features of his life. I never knew of a more devoted son or a more loving brother. In the course of events, he took unto himself a dear and loving wife, who also has honored, loved and respected to the full limit. Several years ago, a son was born, who added joy to his home, and we hope and predict that this boy will be as good a man as his father, and will be as devoted a son as he was to his dear mother.

"Educated in our public schools, he started his business career in the right way, and through his honesty, integrity and ability, made a great success as a business man, entirely due to his loyalty to his employers and his devotion to his duties. After filling several honorable positions, he finally succeeded dear old Harry Sloper as secretary and manager of the Dennison News Company, which position he held until his final call. For many years he was prominent in athletic circles, a prominent member of the Acme Club, and, during all his life he was a great lover of manly sports, and many of us will never forget the many delightful hunting and fishing trips taken and so heartily enjoyed with our dear friend.

LOYALTY AND FRIENDSHIP.

"A more loyal friend never lived and it was one of the greatest pleasures of his life to associate with his friends and add all he could to their pleasure and happiness.

"We will always remember Tim Scanlon as a faithful son a loving brother, a devoted husband, an ideal father, a loyal friend and a man of integrity and ability in his business pursuits. If this could be said of all of us when we pass away, our relatives and friends should feel some relief from the sorrow and sadness brought upon them by occasions of this kind. Do not forget the lessons of this dear friend's life, cherish them forever and write them upon the tablets of your memories.

MEMBER OF THE ORDER.

"In 1905 he became a brother Elk and has always been a devoted member of our lodge, true to good fellowship and sincere to all the great principles upon which this order is founded. It is one of the beautiful features of this order, that a brother is never forgotten, even through the valley of the shadow of death.

"It is also pleasing to know that our hearts go out in sympathy, love and affection to the dear ones left behind and may the good Angel of Peace come here today and remove from you all the clouds of sorrow and fill your hearts with tender memories and fond recollections of our dear departed friend.

"Surrounded by these beautiful flowers, enchanted by heavenly music, as a tribute of love and affection, let us wrap the draperies of his couch about him and may he rest in peace."

BEAUTIFUL MUSIC.

During the services in the lodge room there were beautiful vocal selections by Mrs. Grace Davis Northrup, Mrs. Carroll Nichol on and Frank Fowden.

The body was conveyed from the Elks' rooms to Mountain View Cemetery, where it was placed in a vault.

FLORAL OFFERINGS.

The floral tributes were from the following: Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Goeller, Lillian and Arthur Cunningham, Mabel Johnson, A. W. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. A. Sherman Cannon, Mrs. Ring, Miss Barron, Robert Green, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Meister, Dr. and Mrs. Harry P. Travers, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Ayer, L. A. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Nusbaumer, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. LAW OBEYED IN GRANTING OIL COMPANY'S FRANCHISE, SAYS WOODRUFF

HASKELL GETS ANOTHER JOLT FROM WASHINGTON

cts and Statements of Governor Are Called Into Question

WASHINGTON, Sept 26.—President oosevelt had planned to issue another atement tonight regarding William andolph Hearst's Standard Oil exosures until he l arned that Judge eorge W Woodruff, assistant attorey-general, had already made a public atement along tha line It was then nounced at the executive office that e President would let Woodruff's atement stand for tonight

The statement of Judge Woodruff is response to Governor Haskell's pube charge that the President insisted on granting a franchise to the rairie Oil and Gas Company, and that Haskell did to favor the company as necessary to comply with the law

'OODRUFF'S STATEMENT.

Judge Woodru's statement was made ter the records of the Interior Deartment had been fully examined he statement is as follows

"With reference to the recent contenon about Governor Haskell's action in e case of the Prairie Oil and Gas Comny's oil pipe line in Oklahoma and the tion of former Secretary of the Interior itchcock and Secretary Garfield conrning the pipe line privileges to that ime company, I will state briefly and finitely without argument of any kind, e exact points at issue and the exact cts concerning them, so far as they re known, from the records of the deartment of the inter or.

AW IS PASSED.

"Congress on March 15, 1904, passed a w providing for the granting of pipe ne privileges in the Indian Territory, w a part of the State of Oklahoma.

"The Secretary of the Interior as he is ways obliged to do when any law is ssed affecting his department issued pril 12 the rules and regulations to effectuate that law.

"The Prairie Oil and Gas Company plied even before the regulations were omulgated for a pipe line privilege and ter the most careful consideration Mr Hitchcock, in a letter which is and always s been a public document, found it had mplied fully with the law and his rules id therefore on April 14 approved its aps of location for a pipe line, which it roceeded to build and which, by the bye, s been the means to furnish transportan to millions of barrels of oil from klahoma.

OTHING TO DO WITH IT.

"It is absolutely impossible to find any per, memorandum or letter of record connection with the granting of this pe line privilege which shows that resident Roosevelt had anything to do ith it.

"It is extremely probable that in the ourse of a new law involving a question ke this one, Secretary Hitchcock conerred with the President before issuing s rules and regulations.

"That is the custom, and a very proper ustom, I know, of Secretary Garfield's n all cases of new and important legisation. Such conferences may possibly ave led to a misunderstanding from hich Governor Haskell's claim that the resident ordered Mr Hitchcock to grant he privilege may have arisen. I have ot the slightest doubt that there were o orders of any description and the best vidence of this is the telegram from Mr. Hitchcock in which he says that a tatement of that kind is an absolute alsehood. He, of course, knows better han anybody else

BEYED THE LAW.

"To resume, then, Mr Hitchcock and ter Mr Garfield, in allowing the exension of the line last April, acted directly in accordance with the law.

"Governor Haskell's action, however, as on the face of it at least exactly the ontrary, as will be seen by noting the ollowing facts:

"The constitution of Oklahoma, with he formation of which Governor Haskell ad much to do, provided that certain efinite action must be taken by corporations before they could have the right f eminent domain, among which requirements was the incorporation in the tate of Oklahoma and the filing of a list f stockholders, officers and directors of he corporation.

UIT WAS BROUGHT.

"When Attorney General West of Oklahoma found that the Prairie Oil and Gas Company was about to build a pipe ine which would cross public highways nd private land, involving the exercise of he power of eminent domain, he brought uit in equity to restrain the company y injunction from doing this, unless complied with the clear mandates of the tate constitution

"This question at issue is not, should he pipe line be built, but should the ompany comply with the requirements f State law, and this was all that Attorey General West tried to bring about. le did not pretend that he would prevent he building of the line if the company omplied with the State law.

HASKELL STEPPED IN.

"Governor Haskell, I am told under ood authority, attempted to have Attorney General West withdraw the suit and thus allow the pipe line building without compliance with the State law. He refused to do so.

"Thereupon, as I have been informed nd have not seen it denied, Governor Haskell obtained from the Supreme Court f the State a writ of prohibition against he attorney general and the lower court o prevent the carrying out of the injunction obtained.

"Thus you will see the President's laim against Governor Haskell is that e acted directly against the laws of klahoma to help out this company, whereas, the truth concerning the department of the interior is that it acted irectly under and in accordance with he laws of the United States, which the Secretary is bound to effectuate and merely required any applicant for the privilege to qualify under that law, which his particular company did very well.

ARRIED OUT LAW.

"Then to resume the difference is simply that the secretaries of the Interior administered the law in good faith o the best of their ability, while Governor Haskell took extraordinary steps o prevent the effectuating of the law of he State of Oklahoma.

"One more matter, namely, the claim hat Governor Haskell protested against ny action of Secretary Garfield last April, or any other time. The only correspondence which can be found in the ecords is a telegram from the Governor o the secretary and a reply. They are as follows:

"Guthrie, Oklahoma, April 22, 1906

"To Hon. James R. Garfield, Secretary of the Interior, Washington, D. C

"We want to harmonize with your official acts and therefore ask you to advise us if you claim power to grant franchises to pipe lines involving right of eminent domain in our State Kindly advise me

"C N HASKELL,
"Governor of Oklahoma."

GARFIELD'S REPLY

"Department of the Interior,
"April 23, 1906

"To Hon C N. Haskell, Guthrie, Oklahoma

"I grant to pipe lines nothing whatever but permits to cross or use restricted allotments and tribal property I heartily concur with your desire for complete harmony between federal and State official acts

"GARFIELD Secretary

"There is no appearance of a protest in the Governor's telegram It was not so regarded by the Secretary at the time and it was believed that the telegram was a mere request for information and a promise of co-operation by State officials as far as possible with the department to which it will be seen the Secretary heartily responded in his telegram"

Haskell Replies To the President

KANSAS CITY Sept 26.—As Governor C N Haskell of Oklahoma deposed treasurer of the Democratic national committee, passed through this city tonight en route to Oklahoma he handed out a copy of the following letter, addressed to the President of the United States, asking that it be printed verbatim if at all

"Kansas City, Mo, Sept 26 1908

"To the Hon Theodore Roosevelt—Dear Sir In re Prairie Oil and Gas Company oil pipe line franchise in Oklahoma, I said that the Secretary of the Interior granted this franchise before Statehood that federal courts would prevent our State's interference, and that we are compelled to treat it as we find the grant and that hence I properly dismissed the suit brought by our attorney general without my approval Ex-Secretary Hitchcock says he did not grant any franchise But Secretary Garfield says he did, but that the State's power is not in any way limited to control it, and that I am quibbling The press reports this morning say Hitchcock on hearing the company's application for franchise in the year 1904 (three years before Statehood) hesitated about granting it, whereupon Senator Depew and others went over Hitchcock's head to you, Mr President, and got an order to the Secretary to make the grant.

WHAT STATEHOOD FOUND.

"Now, with these facts let us find the quibbler The Prairie Oil and Gas Company was a Kansas corporation and under that francsie at once built its main lines from Kansas down about 100 miles into the Indian Territory, now the State of Oklahoma, and began and still continues operation. The right was also included to lay lateral lines to assemble oil from wells into the line, three such lateral lines being laid to the nearby cluster of wells now in question Thus Statehood found this foreign corporation with its vested rights under the interior department grant, embracing an interstate property

"Mr. President, can we ignore your grant and tear up that line under State authority? You know we cannot. Will a dometic corporation come in now with that interstate line existing and parallel it to the same wells? Certainly not, no more than a new State railroad would build parallel with an existing interstate railroad to carry an amount of grain production not ample for both.

IT CANNOT WAIT.

"The Prairie company does not object to delay It can wait It says we have a franchise and will furnish the oil owners transportation if the State does not stop us. What should the State do? Certainly not bankrupt its own people by stopping the means of marketing their product These are the conditions as we found them, and so must we deal with them We would all like to see this company take out domestic charter Our attorney general brought suit to prevent it laying the additional lateral lines until it should domesticate The oil company said 'All right, stop us, Mr Attorney General, if you wish; we can wait'

PEOPLE ONLY SUFFERERS.

"But our interested citizens above mentioned applied to me in their distress I saw that our people were the only sufferers and that we could not compel the oil pipe line to domesticate and I stopped the case and for this reason you say I have been corrupted to aid the oil pipe line company

"Now, Mr. President, where does your record place you, when Senator Depew came to you in 1904 (shortly before the election wherein you were a candidate) you knew the Senator was the greatest corporation Standard Oil agent in the Senate You knew the Indian Territory would soon be a State and that its people would be benefited by having corporations domesticated instead of foreign

IN COMPLETE CONTROL

"With one stroke of your pen in the franchise you ordered granted you could have required that oil pipe line company to incorporate in the Territory as a condition of that grant, and that would have been so easy for you Your interior department had our Territory in its complete control and granted franchises arbitrarily to suit yourselves Now, Mr President, you are so ready to accuse me for not changing conditions that you created, tell me please, did they corrupt you to obtain those conditions?

"Remember, now, it was almost election time in 1904 and campaign funds were an object with you. So much so that about object with you. So much so that about this time you sent for Mr. Harriman and made your historic appeal to him for campaign funds, as a result of which he raised $260,000 from himself and the Standard Oil crowd But whether you answer this or not, Secretary Garfield can now see who is the quibbler.

"Respectfully,

"C N. HASKELL,

Wants Haskell to Resign as Governor

GUTHRIE, Okla, Sept. 26.—The Oklahoma State Capital, a local newspaper, will ask editorially in the morning if C. N Haskell, now that he has resigned the treasurership of the Democratic committee, will also resign as Governor, that if the national committee did not retain him as treasurer why the people of Oklahoma should retain him as Governor and also if Bryan intends to retain him as local campaign manager of Oklahoma

Governor Haskell will return here tomorrow His political friends are now working to give him an ovation.

BRYAN REPLIES TO ROOSEVELT'S LETTER SCORING GOV. HASKELL

the men principally responsible for the excellent constitution which has since been adopted by a majority of over 100,000, 70,000 of which was furnished by Republicans. I had known of his election to the governorship of that great young state by a majority of some thirty thousand. I had known that the constitution was adopted and that Governor Haskell was elected in spite of the efforts of your administration and in spite of the speeches made in Oklahoma by Mr Taft

QUESTIONS ROOSEVELT.

"You say that is was a matter of common notoriety that Mr Haskell was connected with the Standard Oil Company I have a right to assume that if so serious an objection had existed to Mr Haskell's election, and had been a matter of common notoriety in Ohio, as you say, Judge Taft would have felt it his conscientious duty to warn the people when he spoke in Oklahoma If he did not have the knowledge, why can it be assumed that I had it, and if he has it how can you excuse his failure to communicate the information to the people of Oklahoma? If you feel it your patriotic duty to denounce Mr Haskell when he was only a member of the national Democratic organization, how much more would Mr Taft have felt it his patiotic duty to denounce Mr Haskell when he was aspiring to be the chief executive of a great commonwealth?

NO KNOWLEDGE OF SUIT

I could have had no knowledge of the suit to which you refer when he was appointed chairman of the resolutions committee, because the suit was begun while he was at Denver, and as a matter of fact I did not know anything of the nature of the suit until after he was made treasurer of the National Committee, and no fair-minded person can decide upon the merits of your charge without an examination of the provisions of the enabling act perused by the committee and by the revisions of franchises issued to the oil company by your administration

I need hardly refer to the newly found evidence upon which you lay so much stress, viz. The article in the Outlook of September 5 My attention was never called to that article until I read the published copy of your letter, and while I have great respect for the Outlook, and I suppose I have for the writer (although you do not give his name), I would hardly feel justified in deciding as promptly as you do on an ex-parte statement, without investigation

AS TO PLATFORMS.

You present the indictment against our platform declarations on the trust question, but you do not refer to all of the planks and do not deal justly with those to which you do refer Our platform declares in favor of "the vigorous enforcement of the criminal law against guilty trust magnates and officials." Your platform does not contain any such demand Will you say that your platform is better than ours in that respect? Our platform demands that corporations beyond a certain size be compelled to sell at the same price in all parts of the country, due allowance being made for the cost of transportation Will you deny that this is in the interest of the consumer and in the interest of the smaller competitors? We present a plan under which no corporation will be permitted to control more than one-half of the local product It has been stated that the Steel Corporation, with your express consent, purchased one of its largest rivals and thus obtained control of more than 50 per cent of the total output Will you insist that in premitting this you showed less favor to the monopolistic corporations than I do in opposing it?

WHAT ABOUT HUGHES?

You quote at length from a speech made by Governor Hughes, in which he ridicules one of our anti-trust remedies. In this the same Governor Hughes who was counted as one of the "allies" who endeavored to defeat Mr Taft, when, as you insisted, Mr. Taft represented the "reformer" of your party, and his opponents the reactionary element? Did not Governor Hughes have the support of the New York delegation in the convention, and is not New York the home of many of the Republicans most conspicuous in their connection with the law-defying corporations?

CAMPAIGN FUNDS.

You are certainly aware of the fact that in the statement filed by George R Sheldon, then treasurer of the State committee, two years ago, after the election of Mr Hughes, it appears that the following contributions were made to the campaign fund

J Pierpont Morgan	$20 000
John D Rockefeller	5 000
Andrew Carnegie	5,000
Charles M. Schwab	20 000
John W Gates	2 000
W E. Corey	1 000
William Nelson Cromwell	1,000
W F Havemeyer	800
B M. Duke	500

Several of these men are known to be officially connected with the trusts

Would the fact that these gentlemen contributed to his campaign fund strengthen or weaken his testimony against the reasonableness of our anti-trust remedy?

ROLE OF CRITIC.

You cannot have failed to notice that Governor Hughes in his speech assumed the role of the critic and not that of the constructive statesman Any one possessing a vivid imagination and a pen can find objections to remedial measures Lord McCauley is quoted as saying that eloquent and learned men could be found to dispute the law of gravitation if there were any advantage to be gained by it but when known abuses are to be cured an ounce of remedy is worth a pound of fault finding

As you quote from Governor Hughes I take it for granted that Mr Taft has not yet expressed himself in a satisfactory manner, for you would naturally prefer to quote from the Presidential candidate wherever possible

RAPS ROOSEVELT.

You say, "Let us repeat that no law-defying corporation has any other reason to fear [illegible] save what it will suffer in the general paralysis of business, etc Referring to the last part of the sentence first I might question your ability to act as an expert as to panic preventives, since you now have one on your hands, but as to your charge that no law-defying corporation has reason to fear the direct effect of the anti-trust remedies which I favor permit me to suggest that your testimony on this subject is not conclusive You are a witness to be sure but your interest in the result of the election must be taken into consideration in weighing your testimony There is better evidence that the trust magnates know their own interests and they are supporting Judge Taft

TO WARN MAGNATES

Not one of the trust magnates helped to secure my nomination while it is a matter of "common notoriety" that they were conspicuous in the Republican convention, and it is equally a matter of common notoriety that they are supporting your party in this campaign If you will name a single official connected with a "law defying corporation monopoly or trust who has declared or will declare that he is supporting me, I will publicly warn him that I will enforce against him the present criminal law and will enforce against him also the laws demanded in the Democratic platform as soon as these laws can be enacted

SAYS IT WAS OVERLOOKED.

But there is another fact which raises a presumption in favor of our party and against your party I referred to it in my former letter to you, but you inadvertently overlooked it in your reply, and the members of your cabinet, called in for consultation, evidently did not notice it I had stated that we have not knowingly received a dollar from an official connected with a trust, and that any money so received would be returned as soon as we received knowledge of the fact I now remind you that your convention deliberately rejected by a vote of 9 to 1 the plank favoring publicity as to campaign contributions Mr. Taft has repudiated the action of the convention and rebuked the members of the convention by declaring himself in favor of a publicity law, but he favors publicity after the election, while we favor publicity before the election Which do you regard as the better plan—to let the people know before the election what influences are at work or to let them know after the election?

PUBLICATION OF NAMES

Are you willing to say that any public interest was served in 1904 by concealing until after the election the contributions made to the Republican campaign committee by Mr Harriman and those collected by him from others? Are you willing to say that the publication before the election of the contributions then made would have had no effect on the election? As I have said we shall publish the names of contributors above $100 Will you ask your national committee to publish before the election the contributors above $100? Or, if you regard this as too small a sum, the contributors above $1000 or if this be too small, above $10,000? If not, what reason do you give to the public for not doing so? I insist that our willingness to let the people know the source from which we get our money is raising a presumption in our favor that must be overcome before you can ask the people to accept your statement that the law defying corporations have more to fear from Republican success than from a Democratic victory.

SUPPORT FOR TAFT.

In conclusion, you say that you ask support for Mr Taft because he stands for the moral uplift of the Nation, because his deeds have made good his words and because the policies to which he is committed are of immeasurable consequence alike to the honor and the interests of the whole American people

I dare to compare my efforts for the moral uplift of the Nation with his efforts my deeds with his deeds and the policies to which I am committed to the policies to which he is committed, and more than that, if I may assume that he will follow in your footsteps, I dare to compare my ideal of the Presidency with his I do not regard it as proper for the President to urge his prestige, his influence or his patronage to aid one member of his party as against another who aspires to office and I regard it as a violation of the obligation that the President owes to the whole people to use an office that belongs to the whole people as a party asset for the advancement of a personal friend and a political protege

OPPOSES SECOND TERM.

Believing that the President should not be tempted to use that power for his own advantage, and it is equally repugnant to the spirit of our United States that he should use it for any one else's advantage, I tried to secure an amendment to the Constitution limiting the President to a single term and I have said that if elected I would not be a candidate for re-nomination I believe that the occupant of so high an office, with such enormous power at his command, should be absolutely free to devote himself unselfishly to his country's welfare and I am sanguine enough to believe that if entrusted with the power I would be able to make my administration successful, that the members of my party could without interference from me select the most worthy to carry on the work begun by me, so successful that the administration would speak for itself and that it would not be necessary for me to defend in bulletin or pronunciamentos I think I could in this way give to the members of the opposite party as well as to the members of my own party a "square deal"

Very truly yours,

WILLIAM J. BRYAN.

BRYAN'S AMBITION DWARFS HIS HONESTY, CRIES HISGEN

Candidate Toasts the Democratic Leader

KANSAS CITY, Sept 26.—At an enthusiastic meeting Thomas L. Hisgen, Independence party candidate for president, tonight called upon William Jennings Bryan to repudiate his platform if he is sincere in his friendship for the people and his enmity towards the trusts.

Hisgen charged that Bryan knew all about Haskell before he let him engineer the Democratic platform at Denver," or that he wilfully closed his ears to the facts because he wanted that kind of a man to help him reach the presidency.

BOOSTS NEW PARTY.

Hisgen asserted that the recent wholesale resignations of prominent officials in the two old parties are confessions to the truth of the claims of the Independence party that they are controlled by the same power, the trusts, and that there is vital need of a new party to stand for the interests of the people

In the course of his speech Hisgen said "Since the beginning of the Independence party campaign Mr Hearst, myself and the other speakers have been trying to impress upon the minds of the people that there is an urgent demand for a new party We have advocated this contention because of the fact that the two old parties have fallen into the control of the same power—the corporate wealth of the country

"The Independence party, through Mr Hearst, charged Senator Foraker with being a tool of the Standard Oil Company Foraker has confessed and has practically stepped down and out of the grand old party

CHARGE AGAINST HASKELL.

"We made the same charge against the Democratic party and showed that Charles N Haskell, treasurer of the Democratic national committee was connected with the Standard Oil Company as one of the powerful political friends of this great corporation. Haskell denied it, and Bryan rushed to the support of his friend

'Today you may read of Haskell's resignation. And his resignation is confession, because he hung on just as long as he could without being kicked out by the decent Democrats who still believe that they can re-construct the old party

'The great question for Democrats who are honest and who are working for the good of the country instead of for political preferment is, does the resignation of Haskell clear Bryan?

"Does the resignation of a great friend of the Standard Oil trust, the man who fought it in Oklahoma even against the Attorney-General of that State—clear the skirts of Bryan, the Democratic candidate for President?

'According to Haskell, Bryan did not even ask him to resign. Evidence has been produced to show that Bryan either know all about Haskell's connection with the Standard Oil Company, or that Bryan wilfully turned a deaf ear to the facts when they were handed to him in typewritten form in Oklahoma last fall, when Bryan went to the new state to speak in Haskell's campaign

"But Haskell is out. Now let Mr Bryan repudiate the Haskell platform and come out for the things he used to stand for, which showed that he was working in the interest of the people—the things he spoke before his ambition dwarfed his honesty and stilled the ambitions of his conscience."

HASKELL'S STORY FALSE, SAYS GARFIELD

Prairie Oil Company Received No Special Privileges States Secretary

WASHINGTON, Sept 26.—Secretary of the Interior Garfield made a statement concerning the relations of former Secretary Hitchcock with the issue of leases authorizing the Prairie Oil and Gas Company to lay pipelines through Indian lands in Oklahoma The records of his department, he declared, show very clearly that Secretary Hitchcock simply complied with an act of Congress authorizing the construction of pipelines and that nowhere, he declared, is there any record or other evidence that the President at any time overruled Hitchcock or was at variance with him in the course he pursued in the issuance of the permits

FOLLOWED THE LAW.

Garfield declared that the department had never discriminated against nor in favor of any person or corporation in the granting of these leases, and that the Prairie Oil and Gas Company was dealt with exactly as were others who applied for the right to lay pipelines About twenty permits to lay pipelines have been granted by the department in connection with the Indian lands in Oklahoma In no case, he said, had there been any interference with the laws of Oklahoma

NO PROTEST RECEIVED.

Secretary Garfield said "The statement of Governor Haskell that he protested against any action of the Interior Department, implying that the Interior Department was attempting to grant a franchise in opposition to the rights of the State of Oklahoma, is untrue, for no such protest was ever received nor was the Interior Department attempting to take any such action"

Secretary Loeb also stated that the company had been granted no privileges that any other company could not have obtained

The President had nothing to say regarding Senator Foraker's statement

TO ACQUIRE TELEPHONE AND RAILWAY

San Francisco, Sept 26.—Mayor Taylor and the Board of Supervisors have been sent a communication by Daniel O'Connell, pointing out that no action has been taken on the petitions, signed by 20,000 voters, presented to the board last February, March and April, which asked that a special election be called to vote on the acquisition by the city of the street railway and telephone systems O'Connell acts for the signers He points out that the petitions were signed by over 35 per centum of votes required by the charter for the calling on a special election, and that the same section of the charter provides for the recall of officials who do not do their duty in this regard when the voice of the people demands it

TAFT'S TOUR IS ONE OF TRIUMPH

Enthusiastic Thousands Greet Candidate in Many of the Cities

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN, SEPT 26.—CROWDS WHICH BRAVED RAIN AND WIND AT HALF A DOZEN MINNESOTA CITIES GREETED WILLIAM H. TAFT WITH UNBOUNDED ENTHUSIASM IN HIS TRIUMPHAL WAY THROUGH THE TWIN CITIES THIS AFTERNOON. ENTERING MINNESOTA SHORTLY AFTER NOON THE TAFT SPECIAL ROLLED OVER THE FERTILE LANDS OF THE SOUTHERN COUNTIES AND CARRIED THE PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE THROUGH A COUNTRY WHERE IT HAS BEEN SAID "PROSPERITY DOTH MAKE REPUBLICANS OF THEM ALL"

From the time Taft reached Rapids at 7 50 o'clock this morning until his train pulled into the Twin Cities at 5 o'clock this afternoon the observation end of the private car "Constitution" was his stamping ground From that platform he spoke to over 50 000 people Rains and winds, which met the train before it entered Minnesota, failed to keep him back, and when his voice had so far failed as to make it impossible for him to reach more than a few those about him, he continued to nod and smile and his greetings and to shake hands with those whom he could reach about the car platform

TRIUMPHAL PROCESION.

Taft's journey from Cedar Rapids was a procession of triumphs Through Iowa, he was able to speak to the crowds before and his remarks yielded vigorous attacks upon Bryan and Bryan's fallacies, and upon Samuel Gompers and those who joined with him in his attitude against the Republican party

"Gompers can't deliver Republican votes to the Democratic party," declared Taft at Mason City

"You are right" was the answer from the crowd which was composed largely of laboring men

UNDER GUIDANCE.

From Albert Lea forward Taft was under the guidance of the Minnesota committee and was accompanied by the leading Minnesota Republicans. As the journey toward the Twin Cities progressed other Republican leaders joined the train

All along the route in Minnesota the crowds brought him flowers and banners and promised him votes

At Northfield they brought him an elephant with a girl dressed in the national colors upon its back and with the letters "G O P" emblazoned upon its side As the train slowed up the crowd made for the elephant and the animal was hoisted up until its head touched the railing of the platform upon which Judge Taft stood

'It is an unexpected pleasure to meet this beautiful symbol of Republican victory" said Taft, with a laugh, in which the crowd joined "I am sure that in such company I could go on to victory. I wish I were up there with you, but there isn't time for the crowd to rig up a derrick to put me there. I find when I have ridden horses that it has made them very sober and contemplative by the time they have reached home, and I am afraid even this elephant would be sorry if he had to bear my weight.'

SPLENDID RECEPTION.

Taft was given a magnificent reception at St Paul In spite of the handicap of a lost voice, the Republican candidate for the Presidency addressed one of the largest audiences which ever filled the St. Paul Auditorium

The candidate told his hearers that the tariff would be revised and spoke of the administration of Theodore Roosevelt and promised to carry on the policies of that administration as well as it lay with him to carry them. The Taft train arrived in St Paul union station shortly before 5 o'clock, where a huge throng had gathered to catch a glimpse of the Presidential candidate He was met by Frank B. Kellogg, head of the committee of St Paul's citizens, placed in an automobile, and carried to the Auditorium.

After the speech, which was received with enthusiastic applause, Mr. Taft shook hands with a number of people and was then hurried into an automobile and taken to the home of F B. Kellogg before going to Minneapolis.

GREAT OVATION.

Mr Taft received an ovation when he arrived in Minneapolis He was met at the union station by several Republican organizations and escorted to the Auditorium through crowded streets.

A light drizzle fell all evening, but fully 40,000 people waited for two hours until Mr Taft appeared to overflow meetings before addressing the crowd within the Auditorium and made two short talks. The candidate's voice was so husky that he could scarcely be heard.

Mr Taft will spend a comparatively quiet day tomorrow In the forenoon he will speak at the St. Paul Y. M. C. A., and in the evening he will make an address from the pulpit of the Fowler M. E Church The Taft party will continue on the Northwestern invasion in a special train which leaves at 8 p. m.

TAFT TAKES FLING AT GOMPERS

INSISTS THAT HE IS LABOR'S FRIEND

Republican Candidate Denies That Gompers Has Been Authorized to Deliver Labor to Bryan for President.

MASON CITY Iowa Sept 26.—Taft an audience composed of laboring men at Waterloo Mr Taft today paid his compliments to Samuel Gompers in the following vigorous language

'Samuel Gompers has already delivered the vote of labor to the Democratic party and that makes it rather hopeless for one who is struggling for the Republican party to deal at all with the labor question He seems to have removed it from doubt by carrying the vote in his pocket He leaves no place outside for me Now, I venture to think that the laboring men of this country think for themselves and have an intelligence that enables them to take their own judgment as to the party and the candidate whom they select

"It is rather a strange method of attacking a candidate to say that he is opposed to labor that he is in favor of oppressing and ostracizing labor and that he has nothing in his heart that sympathizes with labor The only way you can meet that is to say that it is not so and that is what I do say I yield to no man in my sympathy with labor as a class in its effort to organize to make it prosperous and powerful in the community to maintain its equality and its level in the struggle for life and in dealing with cases on those issues where its interests and those of capital are opposed'

HUGHES DEFENDS HIS OWN ACTS

Formerly Notified of His Nomination and Outlines Policies in Reply.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Governor Hughes and his assistants on the Republican State ticket were notified formerly of their nominations by the Republican State committee in Saratoga on September 15 in the Union League, Brooklyn, late this evening. Hughes was not called upon to make his formal speech of acceptance to the leaders who notified him but was allowed to proceed it at the Claremont Avenue Rink tonight. In his speech the Governor entered into a vigorous defense of his administration, comparing it with that of Grover Cleveland and David B. Hill while they were governor, and referred to Frank W. Higgons, whom Taft succeeded. He came out squarely for direct primaries and the Massachusetts ballot which abolishes party columns and places official ballot and pledged himself to maintain laws carrying them reformed into effect if re-elected The receptions to the Governor at the three mass meetings tonight were cordial.

Governor Hughes will leave New York tomorrow for a hasty swing around the circle of Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, West Virginia and Maryland

FIGURES SEVEN MORE STATES ARE FOR TAFT

Estimates That California's Plurality for the Republican Candidate Will Be at Least 30,000.

NEW YORK, Sept 26.—Frank H. Hitchcock, chairman of the Republican National Committee, today placed the three Pacific Coast and four of the Rocky Mountain States in the Taft column by pluralities ranging from 3500 for Montana to 40 000 for Washington He stated that these estimates were based upon reports from the Republican State chairmen and the Republican national committeemen of the seven States referred to.

Mr Hitchcock called attention to the fact that the figures were based upon reports received early in the week, and added that since that time the managers of the Taft campaign had reported further improvements in the situation and steady gains for Taft and Sherman.

HIS FIGURES.

The States specified in the reports yesterday and the estimated pluralities are as follows:

Washington	30,000 to 40,000
Oregon	10,000 to 15,000
California	30,000 at least
Idaho	20,000 to 25,000
Colorado	5,000 to 15,000
Montana	2,500 to 5,000
Wyoming	5,000 to 10,000

Washington, Oregon and California have 19 votes in the electoral college and Idaho, Colorado, Montana and Wyoming have 14 between them a total of 33.

WHAT MACK THINKS.

Norman E. Mack, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, has been claiming the entire seven States referred to by Mr. Hitchcock by pluralities in favor of Mr Bryan at least double the figures specified by Mr. Hitchcock today.

WOUNDED IN ABDOMEN DURING SALOON ROW

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 26.—Joseph Covine, a laborer living at Twentieth and Rhode Island streets, was shot through the abdomen and severely wounded this afternoon during an altercation with Frank Vitale, a laborer employed by the American Can Company. The shooting occurred in the Regular saloon at 430 Seventh street and followed a chance remark by Covine. Vitale was arrested. Covine was arrested as he was leaving the scene of the shooting by Policeman O. R. Harwell and William J. Meagher.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

HOUSE-CLEANING

How Science Has Robbed It of Its Terrors--Wonderful Machine That Is Great Improvement on Old Method.

No woman who is up to date and really desires to have her house clean from top to bottom goes about her house-cleaning in the old-fashioned way, with a broom and duster. The modern methods eliminate all the disagreeable drudgery so heartily detested by housewives. Neither is her house thrown open and fairly blown inside out while a gasoline wagon puffs and squeaks outside her front door.

If she be thoroughly up to date she calls in the Electric House Cleaning Co.—the wonderful electric machine used by this concern thoroughly cleans every nook and corner, extracting the dust from places where the broom and duster cannot reach. The carpets, upholstery, draperies and walls are literally sucked clean of dust—which is deposited in a closed receptacle. Only one room at a time is upset by this cleaning process. The man moves the furniture and replaces it again before going to another room.

This live concern is making monthly contracts and guarantees to keep your house spic and span at a very small price.

Why not save all the time and worry of housecleaning: keep your house looking nicer than before; make your carpets last longer and look better—it will cost you less than the doctor bills from overwork and wear and tear on your furniture.

Ring up the Electric House Cleaning Co., Oakland 1458, or call at their office, 525-8 Central Bank Building. They will cheerfully give you an estimate.

All work is guaranteed to be satisfactory, so why not do away with the old, inconvenient, unsanitary way of cleaning house?

I'M NOT RUNNING ON MY LOOKS, SAYS BRYAN

Candidate Denounces Republican Platform in Series of Addresses in Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 26.—William Jennings Bryan arrived in Milwaukee early this evening and made several speeches. The night's program includes an address at Kosciusko park, at the Riverview rolling rink and a dinner at the Plankington house.

During the day Bryan spoke at Janesville and Madison.

Traversing the same ground recently covered by Candidate Taft, Bryan arrived at Madison at 1:15, this afternoon and was greeted by a large crowd. He was conveyed in an automobile to the home of John Aylward, Democratic candidate for governor, and after a brief rest was conducted to the gymnasium, where he addressed an immense audience.

REFERS TO TAFT.

A number of rear-platform speeches were made by the Democratic candidate, who called attention to the platforms of the two dominant parties and declared that the Democratic platform met the demands of the masses. To a big crowd at Janesville, Bryan referred to the visit of Taft a day or two ago.

"Now you have seen Mr. Taft," he said, "and you see me; but that does not count for much, because we are not running on our looks."

This remark caused intense laughter. Bryan declared that both candidates were running on their principles.

WHERE THEY STAND.

"I stand for certain things," he said, "and he stands for certain things, and I am entitled to your votes if you believe I stand for you, and he is entitled to your votes if you believe that he stands for you."

To ascertain which stood for the people and to determine for whom they would stand, he compared the platforms of the two parties and the speeches read and heard.

Bryan then denounced Taft for the attitude of his party with respect to the publicity of campaign contributions, the election of senators by direct vote, the labor planks of the Chicago platform, the tariff and the trusts.

NOTED SINGER WILL APPEAR AT CLUB BENEFIT

Elaborate Programme, in Addition to Play, Is Arranged for Ye Liberty.

SIGNOR ENCARNACAO, Famous Basso Who Will Sing at Reliance Club Benefit at Ye Liberty Theater.

The Reliance Athletic Club has arranged an elaborate program to be rendered at Ye Liberty theater next Tuesday evening, September 29, in conjunction with the regular show.

Signor Ricardo A. B. Encarnacao, the celebrated Portuguese virtuoso basso of the Conservatory of Lisbon, has offered his services gratis to the club on that evening, and will render the following numbers: "Salvatore Rosa" (Duca D'Arca); grand aria dramatica, Op. A. C. Gomes; and prologue ("I Pagliacci") Op. R. Deoncavallo.

Signor Encarnacao is a retired European grand opera artist. He was presented with a medal of honor by the king of Portugal and has sung before all the European royalty. He is also well known in the local musical world and was a great favorite in his recent concerts at the Ebell club and Greek theater in Berkeley. This opportunity will no doubt be taken advantage of by all music lovers.

In addition to this number the Reliance Quartet composed of Jimmy McVey, Charles Learn, Frank Oates and Harry Miller, assisted by Frank Figone, formerly bass singer with Dockstader's minstrels, have also offered their services to the Reliance Club.

MAYOR INVITED.

The club members feel greatly indebted to all and, at the same time feel that the public is being offered an opportunity which should not be overlooked.

The members of the club are also planning several special athletic features which should prove unusually interesting. The mayor of the city has been invited to be present and also R. M. Fitzgerald, former president of the Reliance Athletic club, both of whom will probably make a few remarks.

On account of the length of the program the performance will start at 8 o'clock sharp.

WATER QUESTIONS NOW READY FOR SUBMISSION

Propositions Which Will Be Voted on at the Bond Election November 12.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 26.—The question to be submitted at the special bond election fixed for November 12, on which date the voters of the city and county will say whether the municipality shall proceed with the acquisition of Sierra water supply sources, shall issue $600,000 of 4½ per cent bonds to cover the preliminary expenses, and, further, if a sum not to exceed $50,000, to be raised from current revenue, shall be paid for the purchase of the County Line Water Company's system, have been decided upon.

QUESTION FRAMED.

The questions were framed by the Public Utilities Committee of the Board of Supervisors after consultation with the members of the Election Commission and Registrar J. H. Zemansky. They are as follows:

FIRST PROPOSITION.

To authorize the City and County of San Francisco to acquire by purchase or condemnation a public utility, viz.: A water supply and works to be owned and controlled by said city and county and to furnish to the inhabitants thereof a sufficient supply of good, pure water for all purposes, the sources of such supply to be Lake Eleanor, the Hetch-Hetchy valley and the waters of the Tuolumne river in Tuolumne county, California.

SECOND PROPOSITION.

To incur a bonded indebtedness by the City and County of San Francisco to the amount of six hundred thousand ($600,000) dollars for the purchase of lands, rights and claims in and adjacent to the Hetchy, adjacent and near Lake Eleanor and within the watershed of the Tuolumne river, and in constructing certain works, all of which are necessary in order to comply with the conditions and stipulations agreed to by the city and county in the acquiring of certain rights and privileges heretofore granted by the Interior Department or hereinafter granted by the Congress of the United States. Bonds issued for such purpose shall bear interest at the rate of ½ per cent per annum, payable semi-annually.

THIRD PROPOSITION.

To acquire by purchase the property of the County Line Water Company used in supplying a portion of the city and county with water at a cost not to exceed $50,000, the same to be paid for out of the annual revenue of the city and county.

OPPOSED TO DISTRICTS.

City Engineer Manson received today from L. L. Dennett of Modesto, attorney for the Modesto and Turlock Irrigation District, a letter in denial of a published statement made a short time ago that the agreement with the city engineer, on behalf of this city, entered into with the Secretary of the Interior in regard to Tuolumne water rights, was one which greatly favored the irrigation districts at the expense of San Francisco. Mr. Dennett's reason for making a statement in the matter was that he has been quoted in support of the allegation referred to, and, as he insists, unjustly. He adds:

DENNETT'S VIEWS.

"While there are some particulars in which the agreement might be favorable to the districts, I believe that, as a whole, the settlement was eminently fair to all interests concerned. There is assured to San Francisco the opportunity of obtaining abundant water supply with convenient storage facilities, and, at the same time, the districts are protected in all of the rights which they possessed to a sufficiency of water for the beneficial irrigation of all the land contained within their boundaries, and no unfair advantage was given either to San Francisco or to the districts."

BREAK IN PIPE CAUSES A FLOOD

SAN PEDRO, Sept. 26.—A break in the pipe of the Union Oil Company, at East San Pedro today resulted in flooding the inner bay with oil, doing considerable damage to yachts and vessels at anchor in the bay.

The oil company explains that owing to some disarrangement in the telephone system connecting East San Pedro with the pumping station at the well, they were unable to shut off the pump in time to prevent the flood.

CONSERVATISM RULES IN MARKET

Trade Shows Slight Improvement and the Exports Are Larger Than For Some Time.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26. — Bradstreet's today says:

While events generally tend toward steady, if slow, improvement, conservatism rules purchasing in wholesale and jobbing lines, and at several large centers fall trade, notably in dry goods, has reached and passed its maximum. Taken as a whole, trade in a few instances equal to a year ago at this date, is generally below the normal and the approach of the election has a tendency to discourage all but absolutely necessary purchases.

GOOD ON COAST.

Western trade advices are good as a whole, though house trade is on the wane and traveling salesmen are relied upon to take care of reorder business. There is very general agreement that stocks are small in retailers' hands, and color to this is given by the many orders given for immediate shipment, which throw unusual burdens in turn upon jobbers, wholesalers and manufacturers. Pacific coast trade reports and those received from the spring wheat in the northwest are generally encouraging.

Business failures in the United States for the week ending September 24 number 267, against 266 last week, 166 in the like week in 1907, 196 in 1906 and 174 in 1905.

Failures in Canada for the week number 32, against 25 last week and 36 in the like week of 1907.

EXPORTS INCREASING.

Wheat, including flour, exports from the United States and Canada for the week ending September 24 aggregate 6,439,526 bushels, against 3,391,911 bushels last week and 5,272,757 bushels this week last year. For the thirteen weeks ending September 24 this year the exports are 43,638,312 bushels, against 44,114,573 bushels in the corresponding period of last year.

Corn exports for the week are 69,982 bushels, against 12,493 bushels last week and 1,193,190 bushels in 1907. For the thirteen weeks ending September 24 the corn exports are 826,482 bushels against 15,306,915 bushels in the same period last year.

D. F. Minney, the local realty dealer, says: "Business is very satisfactory with me. I have all I can possibly attend to and while there is not yet quite the amount involved in the transactions that there was during our best times, there is sufficient to convey property and I have no difficulty in obtaining loans from private sources. The demand for close in property and good building sites is especially active. The following are some of my recent sales:

BANKERS FROM EAST ON WAY TO DENVER

New York Sending Large Delegations to the Convention of the American Bankers' Association.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—A special train carrying 150 bankers of this city and state, many of them accompanied by their wives, left the Grand Central station last night on their way to Denver, where the annual convention of the American Bankers' Association will be held next week. The delegation also includes a number of bankers from various parts of the south, the entire party numbering 250 and occupying two sections of eleven cars each. At Albany the caravan of financiers was joined by still another delegation from Boston and other cities in New England, making by far the largest collection of bank officers that ever traveled together to a convention of the American Bankers' Association.

BIG GENERAL INTEREST.

Frederick E. Farnsworth, secretary of the association, said the same general interest in the Denver meeting was being shown by bankers in all sections of the country and that between 3000 and 4000 would attend the convention.

The special train is being run over the New York Central lines, stops will be made at a number of the larger cities and the return trip will include elaborate sightseeing itinerary through the heart of the Rocky mountains.

In addition to this delegation a number of bankers who are prominent in the councils of the association left New York several days ago for the convention city to facilitate the work of organization.

BLUE-BLOODED DOGS WIN MANY FINE TROPHIES AT IDORA PARK

Aristocratic Canines Are Retired to Private Life

The dogs have had their day, won their prizes and now have retired in private life. The Ladies Kennel Club bench show, held in Idora Park, closed last evening and the 270 dogs have gone home with their worshipful mistresses.

Many exciting scenes were witnessed during the two days of exhibition, when the beauty and the chivalry of dogdom were gathered under the one big roof. Such indignities as they were forced to undergo and how vigorously they resented such familiarity as being held up by the tails.

THE BULL DOGS.

The most belligerent spirit, of course, was shown by the bull dogs. During the judging two were stood side by side, when, without warning, they sprang at each other. There was no rolling about on the floor, for at the first lunge they both had secured a firm hold. There was tugging and pulling by the judges and masters and screaming by the women in the ring, but without avail. The dogs clung together. Finally they were separated, but not until each had been bitten clear through the cheek.

SOME FINE DOGS.

Among the most beautiful cocker spaniels in the show are Gay Lad, owned by William Blackwell, and Searchlight, owned by Miss A. Wolfen. Both these dogs are champions and each has, on different occasions won over the other.

Judge E. P. Shortall's bull terrier was judged the finest dog of its breed in the show. There was an unusually strong competition in this class but Ben Ali won over all.

OAKLAND BANKS AMONG THE FINEST IN UNITED STATES

Several Points for 'Knocker' to Consider

(By Kenneth A. Millican of the Central Banks.)

Few men do so much damage to the general welfare of any community as the thoughtless critic whose achievement is greatest in spreading defamatory statements broadcast, especially when those statements contain a modicum of truth, but into the consideration of which, a certain amount of common sense and explanation must enter in addition to the display of figures in cold type.

Which of us has not met the energetic knocker who persists in calling attention of his friends to the difference in the Oakland clearing house figures as they now are and what they were twelve and twenty-four months ago? How glibly he gloats over the apparent decrease in his own city's commerce, though his exultation is neither consistent nor commendatory—neither justified nor judicious.

NOTE THE FIGURES.

The Oakland clearing house was organized after the San Francisco catastrophe of April, 1906. Hundreds of thousands of dollars—millions, in fact, were temporarily brought into Oakland by San Francisco business men and residents, and every cent almost of this money passed in one form or another through Oakland's clearing house figures. Certainly not even the most sanguine of men could expect that all the business which came to Oakland so unexpectedly would remain—it was not in the natural couse of things that this should be so.

It is argued that this might all apply to 1906, but how about the figures of 1907? This is best answered by noting even now the number of San Francisco business houses which are only just removing to their reconstructed quarters in the metropolis, and migration has been going on steadily ever since the three or four months following the catastrophe.

FINEST BANKS.

I am not arguing that Oakland is in the most enviable position as regards her banks—she is not. She has given to the banking public all that could be desired in the shape of service, strength and solidity. She has housed her banks in buildings which might well be envied by far larger and more influential cities. She has extended to ther people every possible convenience—she has done her best to prove her ability through her bankers to satisfy her people's needs. She was one of the last cities in the country to go on a clearing house certificate basis in the stringency of 1907, and one of the first cities to call in the useful though much despised scrip. And withal, her banks have not received that support to which they are entitled.

Take one hundred men at random from one hundred Oakland homes, and what do you find? That out of seventy-five who have banking affiliations, forty carry their accounts in San Francisco banks!

This is an instance of where the volume of bank clearings is not a fair or proper estimate of a city's commercial business. There is no real reason why these men should prefer San Francisco banks. With all due respect to our sister city, I think the records will show no cleaner a sheet from bank failures than Oakland, for the latter has been remarkably fortunate in this regard from the earliest year of Alameda county's history.

This is pure thoughtlessness. It is just as easy to do business with Oakland banks as with those in San Francisco—possibly a little easier. Who has not seen lines of people, numbering at times into the hundreds in some of the large savings banks in San Francisco? And the large commercial institutions also?

GOOD SECURITY.

Given equal strength, why is it not preferable to do business with that bank which will detain you ten, fifteen or twenty minutes less than the other? And this is precisely what the banks of Oakland can do—what they have done, and as I have said, withal, they have given their depositors at least as much security as the banks of larger cities. I am not pleading for San Francisco depositors to desert their own institutions—that is unnecessary and discourteous—there is business enough in both cities for all our bankeds. But let us still the voice of the brainless biped who roams at will up hill and down dale, shouting to the world at large that Oakland is dying—that she is dead—that she is about to be buried, and that he is only awaiting his opportunity to dance at the funeral.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Retiring From Business

Our Retiring Sale Is Now Progressing Well

We have had to let up a little for the last ten days on account of leasing our warehouse to the Harry G. Williams Company, which required immediate possession. So we have had to give our attention to moving our goods to our store, which is now about completed, and we can give better attention to the wants of those that come in to purchase some of the fine furniture and house furnishings that are sold so cheap. Every article at actual wholesale cost, and sometimes even less; don't miss the opportunity. You can select what you wish, pay a deposit on it, and let the goods remain in the store until such times that you wish it delivered. Come early for first choice.

THE NEW SEASON'S Fur Styles

A Prominent Feature of the New Fur Neck Pieces is their Almost Endless Variety.

The drooping shawl effect, somewhat longer in front, is a favorite style in the high class furs. Another style has the extra roll collar attached, while still another style which promises great vogue has the high military collar in ruff effect. Throws and cravattes will be freely worn.

Most of these are of bust and waist lengths, although full-length stoles are to be worn for dressy occasions.

The Skins Most Favored

are lynx, mink, pointed fox, ermine, opossum and chinchilla for the new neck and muff sets. Seal has also come to the fore this season and many very clever imitations have been sent out, the dyeing being particularly effective.

For single neck and shoulder pieces almost any fur may be worn, the darker shades and especially black being much in vogue.

Much Novelty in Muffs

Although this season's muffs vary in shape, there is hardly any variance in size, and whether the muffs are of saddle design or in square pillow pattern or in flat rug shape, they are larger than those of former seasons. The woman of the Directoire figure seeks to accentuate her slenderness by carrying a huge muff, hence the increase in size.

Fur Neck Pieces $5 to $165

Novelty Fur Muffs $5 to $75

QUIZ CANDIDATES ABOUT LIQUOR QUESTION

Letter Sent to All Assembly Nominees by Anti-Saloon League.

The following letter has been sent to all the candidates for the Assembly by the State Anti-Saloon League of California:

"My Dear Sir:—The question of local option on the matter of liquor licenses is one which is becoming of greater and greater interest to the people of California. As you know, California is one of the eight States in the Union which have no means of a popular vote on the granting of licenses.

"The voters of your district are anxious to know your attitude on this question, as a local option bill will be presented to the Legislature this winter by the Anti-Saloon League. If you care to write me your views on the matter, we will be glad to state your attitude to the voters. It has been our experience that if a candidate does not openly express his views in favor of local option, he is against it as a principle. By October 5 I shall be obliged to make my report to the people who are looking to me for information on this subject.

"I shall be glad to hear from you.

"Yours very truly,

"W. M. BURKE."

GOVERNMENT LETS A GIGANTIC ORDER

The United States Navy Department has just ordered 1,275,000 pounds of canned meats from the Schwarzschild & Sulzberber Company. This is the largest single contract for meat ever made by the government in time of peace. It will require the slaughter of 28,000 head of cattle and 6000 hogs to fill the order. The meat, when packed and ready for delivery, will amount to about forty-five carloads.

M'ENERNEY ACT IN U. S. COURT

American Land Company to Test Law Before the Federal Tribunal.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 26.—The McEnerney Act will be tested in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. The American Land Company gave notice today in the United States Circuit court that it would appeal to the higher court against the decision of Judge Van Fleet dismissing the action against Louis Zeiss involving the title to a lot on the south side of Clay street, 225 feet east of Davis.

A demurrer was entered by Zeiss, claiming the property under a decision of the Superior Court of San Francisco he having complied with all the requirements of the McEnerney Act.

The demurrer was overruled by Judge Van Fleet who stated that the Supreme Court of the State had upheld the validity of the act in its entirety.

WIFE'S PERFIDY AND RUINATION OF HIS HOME DROVE CAPTAIN HAINS MAD, WRITES BROTHER

TERRIBLE STORY IN LETTER

TELLS HOW MRS. HAIN'S CONFESSED HER SHAME

Brother of Army Officer Who Killed William E. Annis, Writes to Friend of Wrongs Leading to Tragedy.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—The story of the slaying of William E. Annis by Captain Peter Hains has at last been told by the other person who knows it as well as any one living—T. Jenkins Hains, jointly indicted with his brother and now in Long Island City jail, awaiting trial.

The story is told in a letter to a friend dramatically picturing the whole tragedy and recording in words every impulse and heart throb which led up to the climax, when Captain Hains, in the presence of a regatta crowd, including the wife of Annis, stood at the end of the float and emptied the contents of an automatic revolver into the body of the man who he believed had betrayed his trust and wrecked his home.

HOME SANCTITY FIRST.

In answer to the question of whether he believes that a man should hold the sanctity of his home above life, Mr. Hains answers that the sanctity of the home is above all other human considerations and that it is the honor and sanctity of the family alone which raises the man above the brute.

Concerning the tragedy itself, Mr. Hains declares that he and his brother did not go out to find and kill Annis. He claims he had no part in the slaying except to protect his brother after Peter fired on Annis. He declares that his brother had been driven to madness; that his act was that of a madman and that he was more like a dead man than one living.

THE LETTER.

The letter follows:

"Long Island City Jail, Sept. —.

"Dear ——:

"Owing to your great kindness and friendship I fee that I might answer a few of the questions in your letter.

"You ask me if I believe a man should hold the sanctity of his home above life. My answer is that the sanctity of home is far above all other human considerations. It is the fundamental principle of all culture all civilization, all that makes life worth living. It is the honor and sanctity of the family alone which raises the man above the brute. Upon the sanctity of the man's home is based all law, all order and all that is honorable.

SAVES LOVED ONES.

"You ask me if a man should defend his home. I do not know that I understand the question as you put it. The real man, as you know, saves those he loves first, saves them and does what he can to the uttermost of his ability before one selfish thought enters his mind for his own personal salvation.

"Do you know, my dear friend, that a man lives for others? He cannot live for himself alone. No real man does this.

"There is always the opportunity for the treacherous friend, the insinuating smooth rascal, who takes advantage of the very love and gentleness of the lonely woman. In my brother's case, he was an officer and was ordered away to serve his country. He did not wish to leave his wife. He even seriously considered resigning from the army but he did his duty and went forth.

MADE HIM MAD.

"As to my own and my brother's married life, I can say that all who knew me knew how absolutely perfect my own was. All who know my brother know how apparently perfect his own was before the terrible revelations took place which broke his kind and noble heart and made him a madman.

"As for the killing of Annis, I had nothing to do with it. We did not go to Bayside for that purpose. That I protected my brother afterwards from the fury of the crowd of Annis' friends is true, and I implored them, yes, even commanded them to 'Get an officer'. I would not allow further trouble, it is true.

WOULD DO IT AGAIN.

"And if there is any crime in protecting the brother I love and who has cheered many a dark hour in my life, I can only say I am sorry. I would have to do the same thing again. Every man who is worthy of that name I know will who is worthy of that name I know will own. Yes, I would protect his again, even to the uttermost. And I did.

"I never gave my brother advice about Annis. I would never under any conditions whatever counsel one man to kill another. No, I did not and would not counsel my brother to kill Annis. The charge that I did so is absolutely false and if any one will take the trouble to trace the source of this infamous accusation, they will readily understand its sinister meaning.

HELD HIM BACK.

"God, no; I held him in check as long as I could. I held him for a long time in spite of his madness. His little babies were paramount, and when I could keep his mind upon them he also realized this. No matter what the lowness and depravity of the woman, the children were my foremost thought. I did not accompany my brother with the purpose of revenge. The suggestion is absurd. The details of our movements will be gone into at the proper time. I did all I could to quiet his ravings and went about with him. I told him in the presence of General Hains that he must try and be calm, try and get his mind off the scene of desolation which marked the wreck of the home in quarters Number 8 at Fort Hamilton. Both the General and myself did all in our power to quiet him and get his mind working again in normal channels.

HIS HOME GONE.

"He had no home to go to and I took him with me. We did about all we could to quiet his mental agony, his dreadful suffering. His reason was threatened and the horror of it all made him silent, absolutely silent, like the ghost of a man who had been a few weeks before a courteous and kind-hearted gentleman. I succeeded in holding him in check for some time, as you know. Every one who met him commented upon his strange behavior. When he went to Bayside I had no idea Annis was there. As for Mrs. Hains I must beg you to excuse me from passing judgment upon her at present. I am a man and a sailor, and as far as possible I will shield any woman, no matter what her crime.

CANNOT DEFEND HOME.

"The only thing I can see developed in this tragic drama is that the American home life should be better protected. There is a law which allows a man to defend his watch, or purse, and he may destroy the burglar who invades his bedroom. It is murder if he defends his wife and children. The seducer goes free. The law protects him, and the ruined wife or daughter has no redress, save through civil suits.

"I was not present at Mrs. Hains' first confession to my brother. I did not even know he was in the United States. I was not present the following day when she confessed her complete guilt to General P. C. Hains, my father.

TELLS OF CONFESSION.

"I was present the evening she made a confession to General Hains, Captain Hains and his attorney. As she came into the room my father held the lamp—there is no gas in the officers' quarters at Fort Hamilton. Not a word was spoken. Not a sound broke the stillness as we waited for her to begin. With a coolness and steadiness of voice that was amazing she told her story. She recounted with detail each ghastly subject, and not a word of either anger or reproach came from thhe lips of any of her listeners. The tragic stillness was broken only by her voice and by a groan of anguish from my brother. Down General Hains face rolled tears. It was the most ghastly scene I ever witnessed.

"Afterwards, in friendliness, she asked for me. She sought advice, recounting again the story. We parted without a word of anger. I held her hand and in my heart was an immense sorrow, a great pity. I remain yours sincerely,

"T. JENKINS HAINS."

21 KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK

NINE ARE INJURED IN TERRIBLE COLLISION

Cars Crash Together---Difficulty Is Experienced in Identifying Many of the Mutilated Corpses.

HELENA, Mont., Sept. 26 — A special to the Record from Billings, Mont., says:

Twenty-one are now dead and nine injured as a result of a collision at Young's Point, four and a half miles west of Park City, yesterday morning. R. E. Vickers of Hardin, Mont., died after being brought to the hospital in this city, while Sam Clonowitz, a hide dealer of Billings, and Berg Western of Atchison, Kas., died shortly after midnight this morning. Identification of all but three have been established, and these are workingmen, presumably coal miners on their way to Kilby, Wyo.

IDENTIFICATION DIFFICULT.

Identification in some instances was very difficult; a card, a piece of jewelry here or there or some portion of clothing serving to give a clew as to whom the victim was.

Acting Coroner Mann empaneled a jury yesterday and visited the scene of the wreck, and an investigation was started this morning at which Engineer Smith and the conductor of the train testified.

BACKED ON MAIN LINE.

Both testified that had the passenger train been on time they would have cleared the siding, but seeing that a collision was inevitable, Engineer Smith is said to have backed the freight onto the main line and started his train back so that the engines would collide head-on and the passenger would not collide broadside. The freight was moving backward when the fireman jumped.

312 New Cases of Cholera Reported

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 26 — The municipal hospital reports 312 new cases of cholera and 153 deaths for the 24 hours ending at noon today. This is a distinct improvement.

Among the deaths today are a daughter of Privy Councilor Smirnoff, and another student of the Payloff academy. A dispatch from Kishineff says Roumania has established a shot gun quarantine against cholera along the Russian frontier.

CALIFORNIANS COMMEND HEARST FOR HIS POLITICAL EXPOSURES

Adopt Resolutions in Chicago Giving Him Unstinted Praise For His Efforts.

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—The California Society of Chicago, at a housewarming given tonight at the new home of the society's president Arthur L. Street, at Grove and Adams streets, Glencoe, adopted the following resolutions commending William Randolph Hearst for his fearless expose of the corruption of members of Congress by powerful corporations:

"Whereas, William Randolph Hearst of California is a public-spirited citizen who has the welfare of the nation at heart; and

"Whereas, He has exposed glaring abuses in public life and brought to light odious crimes on the part of public servants who have betrayed their country by accepting bribes from powerful corporations while pretending to serve the public weal; therefore be it

"Resolved, That the members of the California Society of Chicago here assembled, heartily commend William Randolph Hearst for his great public service in exposing corruption in Congress; and be it further

"Resolved, That in accomplishing this great work of political purification he has earned the good will and gratitude not only of Californians wherever but of the American people; and Californians assembled, and we as representative citizen of the Golden State and deserving of the best office of the American people."

VALUABLE LANDS REVERT TO THE PEOPLE

State Mineralogist Aubrey's Contention Sustained As to 13,000 Acres in Butte and Plumas Counties.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 26.—State Mineralogist Aubury yesterday made public a decision of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, which means a blow to the power of H. H. Yard, whom Aubury, in his official capacity as guardian of the State's resources, has been fighting for years. The decision affects 13,000 acres of land in Butte and Plumas counties, taken up by Yard as mineral land. The decision declares that sufficient minerals have not been found on the land to justify its possession as valuable because of mineral wealth.

HOLDING FOR GAIN.

The land in question is in the Butterfly, Shoofly and Clear creek districts. Yard and his associates were accused of taking up thousands of acres of land in Plumas county as mineral land, not only to further the advance of the Western Pacific Railroad, of which Yard was a promoter, but also to hold for gain. Much of the land contained valuable timber growths. It was claimed that Yard and his associates secured many persons to take up land, naming Yard as one of the locators. Then the locator would be paid a small sum, it was alleged, to relinquish his claim.

APPEALS TO LAND OFFICE.

Aubury brought the matter of these 13,000 acres concerned in the decision to the general land office, and Yard was named as defendant. The finding of the Commission follows:

"The prima facie showing by the government that the lands do not contain such valuable deposits of mineral as would subject them to entry under the mining laws and regulations has not been met or overcome by the defendants; and it is held, accordingly, that the locations were invalid when made, because of the insufficiency of discovery, and that the prospecting thereon since the dates of location has failed to show the lands to be valuable for their mineral deposits; and it is therefore insufficient to warrant locators in continuing in possession thereof."

DEVELOPMENT WORK.

It was stated in the letter ordering the hearing that the charges were that the lands are non-mineral in character; that no discovery of minerals has been made upon the land by the locators or claimants; that the proper development work has not been performed by the claimants and that some of the locators joined, not in good faith for their benefit, but in the interest of H. H. Yard or other parties. But, as stated, the hearing was ordered to determine only the character of the land and the validity of the locations.

EARLY LOCATIONS.

"Those eighty-five locations are but a small part of the locations which have been located in Plumas county. Five hundred and ninety locations were filed for record from August 30 to December 23, 1902, in each of which H. H. Yard is one of the locators. It appears, from the testimony, that all the locations were made and recorded prior to the discovery of mineral upon the locations so recorded. In this case all the claims were located from two to six years prior to the date of the charging, the larger part of them having been located in 1902. In all the cases the locators and the guarantees have had ample time and opportunity to explore and develop the claims. But in no instance have they shown that mineral in paying quantities exist in any one of the locations."

This decision is a complete victory for Mineralogist Aubury.

WANTED TO APPLY IT ON BIG FINE

The Claim of Standard Oil for Stamps Finally Paid By Decision of Comptroller.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—The Standard Oil Company of New Yo has just received from Uncle Sam a treasury warrant for $3,356.10, this amount being a refund for stamps used n export manifests between July 1, 1898, and June 30, 1901. It required a decisi of the Comptroller of the Treasury before the claim of the Standard Oil Com any was paid.

The hold up of the claim was due to the action of the auditor of the Treasury Department who seemed anxious to supply the three thousand and odd dollars as part payment of the 9,000,000 fine which was imposed on the oil company.

The claim for the refund of e stamp taxes was made by William Rockefeller, treasurer of the Standard Oil Company of New York on December 27 of last year and the claim was allowed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, J. Capers.

POPE SENDS BLESSING TO U. S.

ARCHBISHOP FARLEY GUEST OF PONTIFF

"What the Church Needs Especially Taday Is That It Should Not Be Misrepresented."

ROME, Sept. 26.—To the Hearst correspondent Archbishop Farley, before he sailed on the Princess Irene from Naples, yesterday said:

"I have enjoyed my visit better, perhaps, than any previous one, but I am glad to return to New York among my own people. I have seen the Holy Father half a dozen times, and on each occasion his Holiness gave me fresh proof of his affection toward America, especially for my people in New York, whom he again thanked warmly for their splendid manifestations of faith during our jubilee. I am taking back with me a deeper impression, if it be possible, of the kindness and greatness of Pious X.

OUT OF PROPAGANDA.

"During my last audience with his Holiness this week he spoke to me of his many plans for the restoration of all things in Christ. His ideas for the elevation of the priesthood, for perfecting the seminaries for the promotion of instruction among the people, and for the giving of greater efficacy and method to the work of the Roman congregations. In his last plan, America is directly concerned, for on November 3d it passes forever from the jurisdiction of the propaganda and takes its place under the common law of the church, having all its ecclesiastic affairs treated according to the rule prescribed for countries where the Catholic church is fully organized. His Holiness said to me:

STANDS FOR LAW.

"'I am particularly gratified with one thing; that the clergy in New York, and throughout America in general, are doing their best to make the church known and understood by those who do not belong to it. The Americans will not be able to prevent themselves from admiring the Catholic church when they know exactly what it teaches, and when they realize that it stands always for law and order, public morality and the sanctity of the marriage bond.'

"The Holy Father then explained to me that he had a few days ago sent a letter to Cardinal Gibbons praising the diocesian missionary bands which have undertaken the work of explaining to non-Catholics the real teachings of the church. His Holiness said that he was specially pleased by their policy of not saying anything bitter about other creeds. His Holiness said:

NO MISREPRESENTATION.

"'What the church needs especially today in America, as well as everywhere else, is that it should not be misrepresented.'

"Continuing, the Pope said: 'A great deal will be gained from this, and perhaps it will be more marked in America than elsewhere, for your countrymen will be fair. Your great demonstration in June in New York shows you have already won the good will and admiration of those who differ with you.'

"At the end of my private audience with the Pope he said:

"'Take back with you the Pope's blessing and greeting to all the good people in New York, non-Catholics as well as Catholics, and tell them of my admiration for all they have accomplished.'"

Continuing, Archbishop Farley said: "I am deeply moved by the Pontiff's great kindness to me personally, and his message to my people."

NEW POWDER AND SHELL DOUBLE RANGE OF GUNS

Dunnite Proves the Greatest of Explosives

WASHINGTON, Sept 26.—The War Department is demonstrating at Sandy Hook proving grounds New York, with a combination of powder and projectile that promise an effective fighting range of from fifty to seventy-five per cent greater than that of any army of the world.

The powder used in the experiments is dunnite, an invention of Lieutenant-Colonel Beverly Dunn. It has an explosive power fifteen per cent greater than that of any known powder, including the Japanese Shimose powder. The ordinary shell or projectile used by the army has been elongated so as to lessen the air resistance, and otherwise shaped to receive the full force of the powder explosion.

The preliminary tests at Sandy Hook have shown that the new projectiles have an extreme range of from fifty to sixty per cent more than the old projectiles. In combination with the new powder the projectile has an extreme range of from fifty to seventy-five per cent more than the old projectiles. As the extreme range of the projectiles heretofore used by the army has been as great as that of any army in the world, the new discovery gives to this country a fighting weapon effective at far greater range than that of any other army.

The extreme range of a shell is a mile to an inch. The six-inch shell has a range of six miles, and the twelve-inch shell a range of twelve miles.

PORTLAND MERCHANTS SCOFF AT THE ENFORCEMENT OF SUNDAY LAW

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 26.—The lid will not go on Sunday. This is the terse declaration made by representatives of local business interests, after a day spent in organization for the purpose of resisting District Attorney Cameron's edict that all places of trade, or profit, not especially exempted by law, must apply the padlock on Sunday hereafter.

It was decided last night that all shops and stores which have been accustomed to remaining open on Sunday will follow that practice this coming Sunday. If the police, following Cameron's order, are not restrained, from enforcing the law, then all are to submit quietly to arrest, put up such amount as may be demanded for bail, and return to continue business operations.

Jones' actions at the time he was seen entering the Corcoran home aroused the suspicions of the neighbors He was seen by Frank Meyer of 2920 Grove stree and Mrs Scott of 2917 Grove street, who reported the incident to the police Jones left the neighborhood before the arrival of the police, and was picked up last night wandering about the streets of South Berkeley, partially intoxicated

Berkeley Man Tells Improvers That the People Want New Charter, to Oust Present Incumbents.

BERKELEY Sept 26—Opposition to the charter as drawn up by the last board of freeholders was to be expected from the present officials declared E C Marlave last evening before the members of the conference committee of the improvement clubs at their annual meeting "The present officials have every desire of continuing in office while the people, so far as I have been able to observe do not want them to continue in office

Marlave's remarks followed a general discussion of the charter question and the election of officers The balloting resulted in the election of Victor J Robertson for another term as president F T Houghton as vice president and J L Tisdale as secretary Regarding the probable success of a new charter when it came to the people for decision he said

WANTS NEW OFFICIALS.

"This very fact that the people of Berkeley do not want the present town officials any longer and it seems to me incontestable is an argument toward the probable success of the charter that is coming It seems evident to me and must also to anybody else who has investigated conditions that the people of Berkeley have lost faith in their present corps of officials What the reason for this is I cannot say I can only declare positively that such a condition exists

That a new charter will be well received seems to me therefore evident It will give us a chance to get a new set of city officials a set of our own chosing It will, and this is of supreme importance give the people an opportunity to secure officials in whom they have confidence

NOT A CRAZY QUILT.

"I wish finally to say that we want a charter that follows one line throughout We want no instrument covered with patches the purpose of which is to satisfy the politicians We want a charter that is a charter and not a crazy quilt

NOT A CRAZY QUILT

Professor William Carey Jones, president of the former freeholds' board, declared he expected that opposition to the election of a new board favoring the commission form of government would develop and that this opposition would result in a second ticket Such an occurrence he thought could not well be avoided and he urged such steps as would insure among the voters an understanding of the absolute need of this form There would then be no chance of the defeat of the ticket favoring Secretary Wells Drury of the Chamber of Commerce pledged the support of that organization to the proposed educational campaign S N Wickoff thought such a campaign a decidedly advisable move

REFUSED TO EAT FOUR DAYS

PRISONER NEARLY STARVED HIMSELF

A. J. Torres Gave His Food to Another Man in Alameda Jail---He Finally Furnished Bail.

ALAMEDA, Sept 26—Voluntary starvation was the self-inflicted punishment which A J Torres, a real estate man charged with felony embezzlement, underwent in the city prison, according to the police. This is the first case of starvation that has ever been known to the city police they say For four days not a morsel of nourishment passed the lips of the obdurate prisoner, who passed his portion of food, as soon as served, to a companion prisoner serving a term for vagrancy

Hour by hour Torres paced up and down his cell, smoking cigarettes, and seemingly groping for some method to free himself from his position

At the preliminary hearing yesterday Judge Tappan reduced the bail of the real estate man from $1500 to $500, which the broker was at first unable to supply His efforts to furnish bail yesterday were unavailing, in spite of the reduced amount This morning he refused to see even his attorney, and demanded the jailer to give admittance to none but his sister or Paul Buckley, a newspaper man of this city.

Torres was arrested Wednesday on the charge of felony embezzlement, preferred by Mrs Katherine Brown of this city The sum involved is $500. At the hearing yesterday it developed that the man had repaid a large percentage of this amount causing the reduction in the bail However, more crimes alleged to have been committed by Torres were revealed by witnesses One woman testified that Torres had been given a sum of money by her with which to purchase real estate He had failed to account for the money but, she said, she promised him immunity from further prosecution if he would make up the deficiency.

Torres gave bail last night The police had intended to send him to the county jail this evening

The people who went Torres' bond are Mrs Josie Clark, his sister-in-law, and S Gonzalez, a wealthy man of this city As soon as freed, Torres took the train for San Anselmo, where he will meet his wife

BAND MAKES ITS INITIAL BOW TO PUBLIC

South Berkeley Musical Organization Renders Interesting Program at Their First Concert.

BERKELEY Sept 26—The South Berkeley band made its bow in public concert last night in Lincoln hall, and was accorded a reception by an audience of nearly 500 people The exercises opened with the rendering of Mountain Echo' by the band, after which followed the address of Mayor Ferrier Ferrier said in part:

The influence of music is usually underrated Germany ranks first of all nations in music, and it is aiding her advance in all the industries Beethoven was the Shakespeare of music Emperor William is the Roosevelt of the east side of the Atlantic, and he owes a great deal of his strength to music Bismark declared that German song was one of the chief agents in bringing about German unity He said 'It is not the size of our army, but its spirit that enables us to conquer'"

MUSICAL PROGRAM.

Mayor Ferrier was applauded, and at the close of the address, a tenor solo was rendered by L W Spuller. Miss Clarice Lazansky, who has quite a local reputation as an elocutionist, rendered several serio-comic numbers, being recalled many times Miss Ruth Ormsby was good in a character song, and at its close Judge Robert Edgar was called to the platform to take the place of Trustee H L Favor, who was unavoidably absent Judge Edgar said in part:

ARE CONGRATULATED.

"Pretty soon the band in the eastern end of town will have to look to its laurels I expect that in time this part of town will be known as center Berkeley, when we annex North Oakland, and then the band of East Berkeley will be known as the North Berkeley band, and the South Berkeley band will be called the Berkeley band I congratulate the boys on their splendid showing this evening."

Claire McClure and Ralph Likens then rendered a piano duet, and the band was again heard from. J. E. Stewart, in a monologue, took well, and Master H C Green was recalled several times after his first cornet solo A recitation by Miss Howard was the cause for much applause, after which came the singing of the "Rosary" by Bert Stewart.

FRUITVALE, MELROSE AND SUBURBS

LIVELY CONTROVERSY NOW ON IN ALAMEDA OVER TAX RATE; EXPLANATIONS ASKED

Superintendent of Schools Is Criticized. May Be Called Before Council and Quizzed.

COL. BULLOCK.

E. B. BULLOCK.

ALAMEDA, Sept. 26.—Never has Councilman E. B. Bullock, chairman of the finance committee of the city council, been so potent in moulding the finances of the city as at this time. His influence was brought into relief today when Dr. Maurice W. Brown, the councilman who has been so involved in business and the injury to his wife in the recent auto accident that he could not take an active interest in the tax fight, declared that if the figures presented to the council by Councilman Bullock proved correct, he would cast his vote in the coming contest with the minority. This means that the council will be arrayed with equal forces on each side of the question. The action of the mayor's veto of the ordinance will be taken up at an adjourned meeting next week. The regular meeting Monday is legally prohibited from discussing the question, as five days have not elapsed since the mayor signed the veto.

ABOUT THE SCHOOLS.

The tax fight now revolves about the appropriation for the schools. A discrepancy in the estimates submitted last year by Superintendent of Schools Moore has aroused a feeling of watchfulness this year. Another feature of the school situation is that the superintendent requests an appropriation of $70 per pupil in the high school. The appropriation requested for the grade schools amounts to less than $5 per pupil. In addition to this, Superintendent Moore, who according to the members of the council, dictates to the board of education, has asked for an appropriation either for a horse and buggy or an automobile, preferably the latter. He has cited to the board that every other superintendent in towns as large as Alameda, has an automobile, and asks that such an accommodation be afforded him. He has also requested that public telephones be installed in every room in the city schools.

LAST YEAR'S FIGURES.

In preparing the budget last year, Superintendent Moore, according to Councilman Bullock and Mayor Taylor, placed his estimate of the amount to be received by the schools from the state, at several thousands of dollars less than he actually received. In his careful analysis of the city's finances, Councilman Bullock discovered the discrepancy, and this year confronted Superintendent Moore with the facts. Moore denies them, but Bullock has signed statements from the state treasurer stating the amount apportioned to the Alameda schools. This year, in his estimate, Moore has again submitted the amount he will receive from the state as lower than that of last year, when information has been received by Councilman Bullock that the sum will be several thousand dollars larger.

CLAIMS FIGURES ARE WRONG.

Bullock was correct last year according to Mayor Taylor, and is willing to be quoted now as responsible for the statement that Moore has misrepresented the amount, probably through being uninformed, that he will receive from the state. The council cannot explain, and will ask Moore to explain why the state appropriation should be lower this year than last, according to his budget.

Councilman Bullock continues: "In the budget sent in by Superintendent Moore, we also find a request for an appropriation of $3000, with which to purchase a school site. According to Mayor Taylor, and I myself feel certain of the fact, this amount has already been paid out of the city treasury, and there is no deficit.

TALKS OF FUNDS.

"Moore has also failed to take any cognizance of the fact that the fiscal year ends on July 1. We have paid all the bills for this year, so far, without receiving one cent from the taxes, and there is still money left in the school fund. He discards these amounts entirely in making his estimate of the amount required. We do not wish to cut off any funds necessary to conduct our schools in a progressive manner, but we do not wish to be trifled with. We have allowed in our estimate, as pruned, for everything which will improve the schools, but we have cut off a large amount of incidental expenses, for which no reason is given.

WANTS EXPLANATION.

"We realize that the school has incidental expenses, but there is such a large fund for which no specific use is nominated that it seems apparent there is no use of our curtailing the funds of the city to supply them.

"Personally, I am anxious to have Mr. Moore called before the council that we may come to a plain understanding of these figures, and have all this misunderstanding explained. Last year I did not have time to prepare myself to be a competent judge of the estimates demanded, but I feel this year that I am so well informed on conditions of this city, that some logical reason for the appropriation demanded be given to the public before we appropriate $70 for the education of each high school student."

TWO MORE WOULD BE MAYOR

ALAMEDA NOW HAS EIGHT ASPIRANTS

Lively Preliminary Campaign Is Now Being Waged in Alameda for the Chief Executive's Job.

ALAMEDA, Sept. 26.—Two new stars have appeared in Alameda's mayoralty constellation. They are William Hammond Jr., president of the Alameda Chamber of Commerce, and Dr. F. W. D'Evelyn of 2103 Clinton avenue. Eight candidates are in the field, each with an ardent club of backers. In the past week, not one has denied that he is in the race, nor has any effort been spared by any to strengthen his hold upon his supporters. While the fight going on now is not in the public, probably a hotter contest has never been carried on in this city, as each would-be candidate is now sounding the strength of his support, and determining whether or not he shall withdraw in the face of the large entry.

STRONG CANDIDATES.

William Hammond is one of the most popular young men in the city. He has had a successful regime as president of the Chamber of Commerce. He is also prominent in the lodge circles of the city, particularly the Elks.

Dr. D'Evelyn is one of the most influential men in Alameda. He is now at work on the petition not to have a smelter built in South San Francisco, that the fumes may poison the citizens of Alameda.

Nor is the fight restricted to the mayor's chair. Two candidates have informally announced their candidacy for the office of auditor and assessor, which were recently amalgamated. The incumbent, E. Minor Smith, has suffered a serious illness recently, and advanced age makes it impracticable for him to continue in office, it is said. It is understood that he will make no effort to return to his work.

WANTS THE OFFICE

His deputy, Fred Croll, has given his friends to understand, and in fact, publicly, though not formally, announced that he was a candidate for the vacancy. Another, Joseph L. Daniels, is also a candidate, and is making an open fight for the place six months before election. Daniels will have the strong support of the West End, which is a potent factor in municipal politics. Croll is also strongly backed, and next to the mayoralty race, the contest for the minor offices, more open, is creating great interest.

ALAMEDA, Sept. 26.—The exciting preparations for the initiation and vaudeville performance of the Alpha Sigma Society will culminate this evening when the two important events will take place at the home of Miss Florence Plummer, and the Misses Anna Dodge, Marie Tyson and Helen Sargent will become members of the sorority.

Name Committee to Boost Elk Carnival

BERKELEY, Sept. 26.—Preparations for the Elks' carnival, to be held by Berkeley Lodge No. 1002, to raise funds for the purpose of representing and advertising Berkeley and Berkeley Lodge at the grand lodge reunion in Los Angeles next July are going on. An enthusiastic meeting of the promoters of the Elks' day at Idora Park, Oakland, Saturday, October 17, was held in the clubrooms last night. General plans were discussed and a number of important committees appointed to carry on the enterprise.

MIRTH WILL REIGN.

The affair will be one of pure fun, and in place of the "kangaroo court" and "grafting" games so prevalent in these days a joyous carnival spirit is to rule throughout every feature of the entertainment. Fast music, burlesque, "spielers" and unique "stunts" of all descriptions will prevail from early morning until the last owl car leaves the grounds at night.

Indications point to the Los Angeles meeting being the largest and most elaborate fraternal gathering ever held in this country and the local Elks, with characteristic energy, are seizing the opportunity to go into the southland and show what Berkeley boosters can do to advance the claims of the college town before the multitude of Easterners that will be in attendance.

COMMITTEES NAMED.

The project has met with a hearty response and assurance of enthusiastic support from the Chamber of Commerce and all other civic organizations in Berkeley. The committees appointed last night consist of:

ELKS MUST WORK ON HOME

BUNGALOW WILL BE BUILT IN ONE DAY

Temporary Quarters Are to Be Erected in Alameda By Local Members of the Lodge.

ALAMEDA, Sept. 26.—Between 75 and 100 Elks, including some of the most prominent business men in the city, will be seen in overalls and jumpers at work tomorrow on the new Elks' bungalow, which will be finished in one day of work on the site of the future Elks' clubhouse, west of the City Hall building, on Santa Clara avenue. The bungalow, which is of a temporary nature, pending the erection of the new $55,000 structure, will be 35 by 40 feet in dimensions, and will be constructed under the supervision of Augustus P. Smiley, a prominent Elk.

TEMPORARY HOME.

At the meeting of the Elks last week, when it was decided to break the ground for the new building on New Year's Day, the members decided that they needed a place where they could congregate in the meantime, and the suggestion of erecting a temporary structure was received with the greatest favor. Every Elk present pledged his labor for Sunday, and this evening about twenty-five Elks have broken the ground preparatory to the "house raising" tomorrow.

COMFORTABLE PLACE.

Although it will be built within twelve hours, where now an empty lot greets the eye of the spectator, the new home of the Elks will be fitted with every convenience, including bath, toilet, electric light, telephone and fireplace. The fireplace is being specially erected as one of the features of the structure. It will be six feet in width and three feet high, made of clinker brick, and paved with cobbles.

The large room will be fitted with leather chairs and tables. In the rear will be the buffet. Three doors will lead out from the big room on to a six-foot porch, which will make the bungalow's appearance more effective. The porch will circle the south and west sides of the club, and will be covered by a roof.

ALL MUST WORK.

The committee appointed to look after the erection and equipment of the building is composed of William Hawkins, sewer and water; Harry Bromley, telephone; Fred Brooks, bungalow; Carl Strom, electric lights, and "Buck" Ward, fireplace.

Every Elk in the city is expected to appear for work at 8 o'clock in the morning, cards to the effect that no member will be considered a good Elk who fails to put in an appearance having been sent out to all members of the local lodge.

The building will be one of the most unique in the city.

The meeting is to take place at 3:30 in the Hillside schoolhouse. It is expected that a full attendance of the mothers will be present.

BERKELEY, Sept. 26.—The Finnish Comrades Society of West Berkeley will commence the erection of a hall for its meetings in a week's time. The building will be situated at the corner of Bristol and Delaware streets, and when completed will involve an expenditure of $10,000.

The building will be in the Mission style of architecture, with dimensions 52x105 feet. It will be two stories in height, the lower floor containing lodge rooms, reception rooms and parlors. On the upper floor will be a hall with stage and balcony. This will be used for meetings and entertainments.

564 NEW HOMES IN ISLE CITY

Building Very Active in Alameda and Numerous Large Structures Are About to Be Erected.

ALAMEDA, Sept. 26.—In addition to the smaller structures that are now in course of construction there are several buildings of pretentious size under way and others which are to be larger have been planned. Of the larger structures now in course of completion the beautiful new home of the Adelphia Club at the northwest corner of Central avenue and Walnut street stands out conspicuous. This structure, when finished, will have cost about $18,000. Work on the building has progressed steadily and the plaster that is to give the building an appearance similar to that of the old California missions, is being put on the outside walls.

Another structure that will be an ornament and a credit to the buildings of Alameda is the new parochial residence for the clergy of St. Joseph's church. This large dwelling will cost nearly $12,000, and will soon be ready for occupancy. The house contains sixteen rooms and is conveniently laid out for the accommodation of those for whom it was designed and intended. As soon as the new building is ready the clergy of St. Joseph's will move in and the old dwelling that housed the priests of the parish will be moved from its present temporary location, between the new parochial residence and Lafayette hall, to a lot on San Jose avenue, between Chestnut and Willow streets. The house was purchased by the Alameda Land Company which plans to remodel it.

NEW CHURCH BUILDING.

Of the large buildings that will probably be started in the near future are the proposed new church edifice for the congregation of the First Methodist Church and that will cost about $40,000, and the proposed two-story clubhouse to be put up by Alameda lodge of Elks and which will cost a like sum. The plans for the new First Methodist Episcopal Church have been adopted and show an edifice that, in point of architectural beauty, will rank with any church in Alameda. The new church building will stand on the northwest corner of Central avenue and Oak street, one block from the new Adelphian club house.

The business block at the southwest corner of Park street and Central, owned by the First Methodist Church now for sale. The building has always rented well and is said to be a good paying investment. The trustees of the First Methodist church plan to use the money derived from the sale of the business block, if it is sold, in the construction of the new church building. The building of the new church, however, not dependent upon the sale of the business block.

MODERN FIRE HOUSE.

The new fire house to be erected by the city on the site of the present old engine house on Webb avenue is not to be overlooked in enumerating buildings of Alameda. The plans for this structure have been drawn and accepted and work is to be hurried. The money for erecting the engine house was voted at the late bond election. The proposed fire house is to embody all of the latest improvements and equipment in buildings of that class and particular attention is to be paid to the sanitation of the house and comfort of the men who have to live there day and night.

For the eighteen months ending September 1, 564 new houses were erected in this city. This does not include 100 or more new homes which have been commenced since the beginning of this month and on which work is now being actively prosecuted. The total investment in Alameda homes and other buildings for the past twelve months will approximate two million dollars.

I. O. O. F. BUILDING A MODERN HOME

Will Be Completed in Near Future and Has all the Modern Conveniences.

ELMHURST, Sept. 26.—One of the finest new buildings that has been erected in this town for many months is the new Odd Fellows' Hall, which is now rapidly nearing completion. The big two-story building has a frontage of 50 feet, with a depth of 90 feet. It has been erected at the corner of Orchard street and East Fourteenth street by the local lodge of Odd Fellows at a cost of $12,000. The funds have been raised by the members of the lodge, and the new home will be dedicated free from debt.

The lodgerooms above are being elaborately decorated, and furnished with every convenience, in strict accordance with the ritual. The large assembly-room will also be used as a dancing hall for receptions. It is planned to hold a grand reception on the opening of the new building. The stores on the first floor have already been rented. The corner store will be occupied by the undertaking firm of Murphy & Roda. In the rear of the building are two cottages, also owned by the Odd Fellows, which are now occupied by the Roda and Murphy families.

SNOWBALL PARTY PRETTY FEATURE

South Berkeley Society Folk Entertained at Dance by Unique Feature.

BERKELEY, Sept. 26.—A "snowball" party was the event in the South Berkeley social world last night. The merry affair took place in Lincoln Hall, under the direction of Miss Marion Jones, dancing teacher, and was largely attended.

The feature of the party was the showering of white confetti flakes on the dancers while the lights were low. The effect of a snowstorm was perfect, and the innovation proved to be a success in every way. The confetti was carried in a big sieve overhead, cleverly concealed with sky-blue cloth, and as the dancers glided about the rooms the imitation flakes covered them, the effect being made more realistic by the subdued lights.

U. C. PROFESSOR SHOWN AN HONOR

Dean of College of Agriculture Asked to Join Experimental Station Committee.

BERKELEY, Sept. 26.—Professor E. W. Hilgard, dean of the college of agriculture, has been invited to become a member of the committee for the establishment of an agricultural experiment station in Palestine.

A site has been chosen in the neighborhood of Haifa, the ancient Castellum peregrinorum, and it is there proposed under the international co-operation to prosecute the studies, particularly relating to the original domestication of cereal plants native to this region which have been developed into the established staples of civilized life, such as the varieties of grains, the olive tree, the pear and the almond, and also the study of plants and methods of culture in the semi-arid regions of the world.

Dr. Hilgard has taken the matter under advisement.

MACDONOUGH

The Askin-Singer Company announce their latest production, "The Girl Question," for three nights and Wednesday matinee at the Macdonough Theater on Monday, September 28.

This play is by Will Hough and Frank Adams, while the music was written by Joseph E. Howard, and the box office receipts and laudatory comments it has drawn have been nothing short of marvelous.

A big crowd of pretty girls who can both sing and dance, songs which not only captivate one when heard from the stage, but which are equally pleasing when whistled or sung at home, dancing numbers full of grace and ginger, and a cast of players which it would seem impossible to improve upon, together with a plot so human and of such absorbing interest and action which changes so quickly and completely that the audience is enthralled from start to finish, constitute "The Girl Question."

The first act is laid in a restaurant in Chicago, where Con Ryan, the head waiter, played by Paul Nicholson, is in love with the cashier, Elsie Davis, played by Marguerite De Voe. Ryan is a big, rough, good-hearted fellow, whose every speech is a laugh and whose humor is all the more appreciated because of its truth and naturalness. The head waitress is in love with him, and, as he says, she is the best pal a fellow ever had. Jo Foster is her name and the part is played by Henrietta Tedro.

Into the restaurant comes Nina Collins, as Jessie Sears, now the wife of a magnate, T. P. G. Sears, who never spoke to his wife the first three weeks after they were married, because he didn't want to interrupt her. Sears only needs a small block of stock to obtain control of a big railway, but this stock is held by Baron Von Tesmel, a young German, who has come to America to find its right owner, a girl named Foster.

In the second act, where the scene is a Chicago roof garden, Sears buys a mortgage on poor Ryan's restaurant, and his son, a fast young college boy, marries the cashier at a party given by Ryan for the express purpose of proposing to her himself. Sears forecloses the mortgage and throws Ryan into the street and the Baron discovers that the head waitress is the girl he has come to America to find and delivers to her the railway stock.

The third act is laid in Mr. Sears' office. Jo Foster sells Sears her stock on condition that he rehabilitate the restaurant and lease it to Ryan for three years, rent free, makes "Con" acknowledge that he was only fascinated by Elsie for a moment and that he has really and truly been in love with her all the time and all ends happily, as all good plays should do.

ORPHEUM

The Oakland Orpheum is to celebrate its first anniversary next Wednesday, one year having passed since the theater opened its doors. The bill for the "Anniversary week" has been arranged with a view to making the occasion a memorable one. The vaudeville sparkles with novelty and the entire bill is one of the most expensive yet offered by the Oakland Orpheum management.

The engagement of the famous Charmion is expected to be one of the most notable of the season. It is doubtful if there is an artist in vaudeville who has been more talked about than Charmion, who is styled "The Perfect Woman," and who comes to the Orpheum next week.

A few years ago at old Koster & Bial's famous music hall in New York, "Charmion" created a triumph that swept around the world, and that there was merit as well as originality in her performance is shown by the fact that her vogue and power of attraction have never diminished.

She first appears fully attired in a Parisian creation and ascends to her trapeze and introduces an artistic and modest transformation in mid air. Once in her fleshings she gives a marvelous gymnastic performance, much of which is of a distinctly graceful type and much that is thrilling and extraordinary.

Gardiner and Vincent return to the west this season with their spectacular comedy fantasy, "Winning a Queen," which is one of the most novel and attractive one-act plays in vaudeville. Mr. Gardiner appears as a "knight of the road" who finds himself on the battlements at Fort Arthur. He is warned by a sentry to vacate the barracks, where he is discovered, so he crawls into a cannon through the loading door, with the idea of taking a nap. Immediately afterwards the sentry touches off the cannon and the audience is left in a stage of great surprise. A drop is lowered, and a very ingenious combination of a moving picture, the tramp's progress through the air, is shown. He is seen passing through the cloud and approaching the moon, which has an immense face, into the mouth of which the tramp is absorbed in a most amusing way. The drop is then raised and the scene shows the mountains of the moon. Here the tramp meets the queen of the moon who returns to earth with her visitor. She summons her favorite star, and they sit on it together. Another picture shows the pair descending to the earth. The star breaks through the skylight of a house, in a room of which the pair introduces the specialties with which they have been identified; including songs by Miss Vincent and fine acrobatic dancing by Mr. Gardiner.

A. O. Duncan, who is included in next week's attractions, gives one of the most finished and amusing exhibitions of ventriloquism imaginable and his dummies are models of perfection. His success in New York was so great that he was immediately dubbed by the press America's Representative Ventriloquist.

Two of the cleverest youngsters who have been seen on the stage of the Orpheum in many a day are the two Pucks, who come here next week in new songs and new costumes. They are brother and sister, the boy being seventeen years old and the girl fifteen.

The Trapnell Family of acrobats who have made a hit at the Orpheum during the last week will be retained on the bill.

Warren and Blanchard, the amusing comedians and singers, will offer their medley of stuff. The Three Moshers, trick cyclists, and Gen. Ed. LaVine, the comedy juggler, will be retained for another week.

YE LIBERTY

The Liberty management will offer their patrons comedy next week—farce comedy pure and simple. The vehicle will be "All Due to Diana," a farce, which, although new to Oakland audiences, comes to us with a string of successes gained in nearly every city of importance in the east and middle west to its credit.

"All Due to Diana" is an adaption from the French. The adapters, Marie Coe and Lelia Cortelyou, have a great grasp of comedy and a thorough knowledge of stage business, and the result is a play that has rarely been equaled for laugh-producing qualities. It is in three acts and there isn't a dull moment in the play. A musical artist marries a pretty girl with a mother-in-law—one of the old mothers-in-law. Afterwards a divorce takes place. The musical artist again marries, this time the daughter of a Mr. Littlepage. Littlepage marries the artist's divorced wife and gets the mother-in-law. In the meantime the divorced wife of Littlepage marries a German professor of music. The play ends with another divorce; this time Littlepage loses again and another man gets the twice divorced woman and the mother-in-law. The mixups caused by all these marriages and divorces are the basis of all the comedy, and it is real good comedy—nothing that would shock the most sensitive on such touchy subjects.

The splendid stock company assembled at the Liberty interpret nothing better than they do farce comedy, and a bright, snappy performance is assured. Landers Stevens, Isabelle Fletchel, George Friend, Georgie Cooper, Henry Saumel, George Webster, E. L. Bennison, Lillian Elliot and all the other favorites will be congenially cast and an elaborate scenic production is assured. "All Due to Diana" will run through the week with the regular Saturday and Sunday matinees, after which comes Mrs. Fiske's most famous success, "Leah Kleschna."

"THE DEVIL."

Manager Bishop of the Liberty Playhouse makes the interesting announcement that on Monday evening, October 12, he will stage a magnificent production of Ferenc Molnar's celebrated Hungarian play, "The Devil"—a play that has been talked about more than any dramatic production in years. The Liberty's production of this piece will not be a hurriedly put together affair, but a carefully prepared production—complete in every respect, for already the entire stage crew is at work on the scenery and Stage Director Stallard is giving a great deal of study to the manuscript. The Bishop players will use a literal translation of the orginal Hungarian manuscript, prepared by Mr. William Jones, one of the foremost Hungarian students we have in this country.

THE BELL

A strong feature of the Bell is the fact that each and every week there is an entire change of program. Beginning today Edwin Keough & Co. present "A Bit of Blarney." Mr. Keough carries a strong supporting company of several well known actors and actresses and an unusually elaborate array of special scenery, all of which is used in his production. The spectacular scenic effects employed make this number the big feature of the new bill.

Dorsch & Russell, "The Mutual Railroaders," have an offering at once distinct and characteristic. It combines witty lines, bright comedy, tuneful songs and constitutes a very unique offering.

Don & Thompson, a sing and dancing sketch team, open with a train new string of jokes and witticisms, late song hits and better than the ordinary dancing.

For the most farcical sketch of the year, the one-act farce comedy "The Lightning Dentist" deserves the palm. Brotherhood & Barlow are seen to advantage in this playlet and have been scoring the biggest hit of the season.

The sisters O'Meers, pretty and daring wire artists, who in elegant costume effects perform a series of startling feats on the slack wire.

Miss Dorothy Dayne in a stunning sheath gown will be heard in vocal selections that please.

The usual two reels of motion pictures will also be exhibited.

NOVELTY

At the Novelty Theater, beginning Monday, the 28th, the bill is headed with Professor Andre's famous troupe of Parisian bass relief poses, an act that is considered one of the finest that has ever been shown in the West. Many groups of artistic posing will be seen during their exhibition, notably "The Power of Music," "The Three Graces," "Eve in the Garden" and "Venus." Intermingled with the bronze bass reliefs.

The Yorktown Singing Four, a phenomenal singing act, will make their first Pacific Coast appearance at the Novelty Theater, direct from the largest cities in the East.

Among other attractions will be Regina Reed, with her troupe of pickaninnies; Francis Clark, that comedian who sings and talks to amuse; Nellie Nichols, Oakland's favorite soubrette, retained for another week; and Matilda and Reed, the Parisian eccentrics. Two reels of Gaumont's startling animated pictures will complete the program.

IDORA PARK

Commencing tomorrow the Persse-Mason Opera Company will begin a three-weeks engagement at the Idora Park Theater, presenting a series of three of the older operas.

The first offering will be Balfe's "Bohemian Girl," undoubtedly one of the prettiest operas ever written and one that always was a favorite with the Oakland people. Three weeks ago the same company presented this opera at the American Theater, San Francisco, and it was the general opinion that no better interpretation of Balfe's masterpiece had ever been given in the West.

Thomas Persse will play the part of Thaddeus, the proscribed Pole, and Miss Edith Mason will play Arline, daughter of the count. Count Arnheim, the governor of Prossburg, will be played by Charles Swickard and the other roles will be filled by the following well known artists: Forestein, H. Emerson Nixon; Devilshoof, Robert Lett; Captain of the Guard, Joe Fogarty; Buda, Mabel Goger; Queen of the Gypsies, Miss Bernice Holmes. Paul Steindorff will again wield the baton.

The musical numbers in this pretty opera are as well known to the present generation as they were to our grandparents, and when the present "popular" songs are forgotten people will still be singing, "When Other Lips," "Heart Bowed Down" and other gems which are contained in this opera.

COLUMBIA

The management of the Columbia theater announces another sensation for the coming week, when it will present Mr. James Ashton of New York and London, in the latest and most talked of play of the year, "The Devil." The story is a pretty one and deals with the higher up. A man of culture and wealth and his wife travel in Paris and in the Purlieus of that gay city are initiated into the society of the Quartere Latin. The wife is introduced to an artist of great merit, noted for his wonderful full length portraits. She sits for her portrait, the painting to be done in the garb of a Grecian maid.

The wife while sitting for the artist does a disrobing act, and while she is in the act the Devil appears and works his serpentine wiles. The wife falls in love with the artist and invites him to her home where she has a liaison with him. The Devil is introduced into this scene and informs the husband of the amour.

Thomas H. Clark enacts the role of the artist, while Corinne Walton has the part of the wife. Robert Trevor will appear in the part of Alto, the servant. Nina Maitland plays the part of Sophia, while Anneta Mullally is an artist model.

AMERICAN

The regular fall and winter season of Eastern attractions at the American Theater, San Francisco, will be inaugurated this evening, when Rice and Cady, the popular German dialect comedians, who created such a sensation here two years ago by their clever work in the Weber & Field musical shows, will present Joe Weber's greatest success, "Hip, Hip, Hooray," on the same magnificent scale which characterized its presentation at Weber's music hall for an entire season. The original production with its gorgeous costumes and elegant scenery and a well balanced company of forty artists will be staged in its entirety at the American.

Mae Phelps of "Gingerbread Man" fame, will have the prima donna role, while Bill Mack, character comedian, late of "Miss Bob White" company; Tom Murray, the baritone; Harry Shunk, the famous minstrel man; Maude Leroy of the Weber forces; Mazie Trumbull, the terpsichorean artist; Wellington Cross and Rose Leslie will help Rice and Cady to extract the laughs from the spectators.

The piece is full of song hits, the most catchy being "Coon College," "Ivy Green," "Dear Old College Days," "How Would You Like to Take Me Home With You," "Good-Bye, Mr. Ragtime," and "Gee, I Wish I Had a Girl." "Hip, Hip, Hooray" will be the bill for one week only, with a matinee on Saturday.

Following "Hip, Hip, Hooray" the powerful four act drama "Texas," depicting life on the plains, will receive its initial western presentation at the American Theater with the original New York cast, which includes Frank Conway and Norman Shelby.

BUFFALO BILL

Our pleasure-loving citizens will be interested in the announcement that Buffalo Bill's Wild West and Congress of Rough Riders of the World will visit this city soon. The internationally famous exhibition comes direct from Madison Square Garden, New York City, where it began its tour this spring, after having been abroad for four consecutive years. The program which the Wild West presents upon the road is identical with that given at Madison Square Garden and which, the New York press declared, was the best entertainment "Buffalo Bill" has ever presented during the twenty-five years the Wild West has been before the public.

The Congress of Rough Riders will as usual, be made up of horsemen from every clime, our own native cowboys vieing with foreign equestrians in rival feats and displays of equestrian daring. In addition to these exhibitions of horsemanship the Wild West program will include two special features prepared expressly for the Buffalo Bill entertainment as typical of its aim to present historic scenes incident to the conquest of the Far West. These features will include "The Battle of Summit Springs," a pantomimic melodrama, and "The Great Train Hold-Up," and "The Bandit-Hunters of the Union Pacific."

"The Battle of Summit Springs" will depict one of the most thrilling episodes in Indian warfare. It has been fittingly designated as a triumph among open-air productions. Historically accurate, it shows one of the many scenes in border conflicts in which Colonel William F. Cody ("Buffalo Bill") justly earned his fame as an Indian fighter, scout and intrepid plainsman.

An opposite phase of Western life is shown in "The Great Train Hold-Up" and the "Bandit-Hunters of the Union Pacific," wherein is accurately illustrated one of a hundred scenes of depredation with the white men as the sole participants. To properly present "The Great Train Hold-Up" a scenic display of great beauty has been provided, and there will be a real train of cars, realistic locomotives, and all the outward semblances of a real train robbery.

A Paying Investment.

Mr. John White, of 38 Highland avenue, Honlton, Maine, says: "Have been troubled with a cough every winter and spring. Last winter I tried many advertised remedies, but the cough continued until I bought a 50c bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery; before that was half gone, the cough was all gone. This winter the same happy result has followed; a few doses once more banished the annual cough. I am now convinced that Dr. King's New Discovery is the best of all cough and lung remedies." THE TAXICAB IN SAN FRANCISCO

New Vehicles Are Becoming Popular and Giving Good Service.

By ELIZABETH GREGG

The taxicab, which has almost entirely superseded the hack and the cab in European and eastern cities, has come to San Francisco, and has undoubtedly come to stay. Two months ago an Elmore Taxicab was purchased by the United Carriage Company, located on Eddy street, near Van Ness avenue. The taxicab is kept in front of the Stewart Hotel and it has proved such a success that the United Carriage Company intends to enlarge the service by a number of the machines.

The fact that the taxicab registers the revolutions of the wheel and you pay for the distance you have traveled, is an improvement on the old system where the cabby charged what he pleased, or as much for three blocks as a mile. An interesting feature of the taxicab service in the East is the fact that the tire factories equip the machines with tires and keep them in condition for so much a mile. Goodyear tires have given great satisfaction in this use in New York City. One tire was absolutely proven to have traveled 18,000 miles, in which case the Goodyear company must have made some money.

Carmichael-Bray, San Francisco agents for the Elmore, look the United Carriage Company's taxicab over each day, and are as pleased as the owners with the work it is doing.

ELECTRIC MACHINE MAKES 100 MILE RUN

For some reason people are under the impression that an electric runabout is only for town driving, whereas they can be run into the country with the greatest ease. R. Scrahn and L. MacDermot of this city recently took a Sunday trip in a Columbus, and upon their return had covered a hundred miles on the one charge.

Leaving Oakland in the morning their first stop was in San Jose at the St. James Hotel. On the return trip they took in a third person at San Leandro, but even then had no difficulty in getting to Lake Chabot though they climbed a hill which for half a mile has a 15 per cent grade. When back in Oakland the little Columbus still had current to spare and the odometer registered 98 3-10 miles. The enthusiastic owners of the machine, to prove that it would go over a hundred miles then ran about town and were thoroughly satisfied with the test.

THE GREAT DEMAND FOR AUTOMOBILES

When, at the New York Automobile show three years ago, it was announced that certain sales agency had contracted for the entire output of a western factory, the order calling for 1000 cars, the news created a tremendous sensation. Yet that sales agency had all the United States and the rest of the world as territory in which to dispose of the product.

That wonderful progress has since been made in automobile manufacturing and that demand has more than kept pace with increased supply, is evidenced by the fact that the H. J. Koehler Sporting Goods Company of 1709 Broadway, has contracted for an even thousand E-M-F. "30" cars for a very small territory—New York City, with ten adjoining counties and the State of New Jersey.

"Nor was the 'thousand cars' condition imposed by the manufacturers," said Mr. Koehler. "On the contrary, we had to put up a strong argument to get the desired allotment. The E-M-F Company is desirous of distributing its product equitably among its various representatives and, on a basis of population, our quota was less than 500 cars. We have, however, already disposed of over 200 and with the waiting list we now have could not see how we could possibly take care of the demand with less than 1000. The sensational price of the E-M-F. '30' car has created a demand greater than ever we expected.

"The Studebaker Bros. Company has contracted for 600 E-M-F. '30' cars—one-half of the factory output—and stands ready to take as many more as they can get for distribution in their territory, the West and South. Why, the San Francisco branch alone has already taken orders with deposit money paid down, for 443 E-M-F. '30' cars. That branch will easily handle another thousand. Under the circumstances the Everett-Metzger-Flanders Company, while willing to favor us, could not agree to deliver one car more than we were willing to contract for at once with a cash deposit and delivery date specified on each car. We determined to be on the safe side and so ordered one thousand E-M-F 'thirties'. We expect to sell more than this, and I feel certain the company will furnish them if possible, but we're sure of these."

Mr. Koehler has just returned from Detroit full of enthusiasm. He says the car is a wonder in performance and the new factory a model one. He expects a demonstrating car in a few days.

COMET IS TO GIVE AN EXHIBITION AT FRESNO

Al Hall, the designer and maker of the Comet, and Frank Free, the driver who has lately been winning so many victories for the San Francisco car, are in Fresno. While the rules for the Fresno meet have barred the Comet from competitive racing, because it has not the number of cars in existance which the association requires of a stock car, it is the purpose of Mr. Hall to give an exhibition drive to show what the Comet can do. After the record breaking runs at Santa Rosa and Tanforan the Hall Auto Company was deluged with inquiries and orders are being filled as rapidly as the car can be turned out.

A NEW RENAULT FOR AMERICAN ROADS

In order to meet the demand for a car designed to meet the unusually strenuous conditions presented by American roads, Manager Paul Lecroix, of the Renault Freres selling branch, is now importing a new model especially designed for this purpose. The motor is a four-cylinder, 20-30 horsepower type, and is characterized by the usual features that have become familiar on the Renault motors during the last five or six years. But the chassis itself is lighter, shorter and narrower than the standard Renault chassis of the same kind designed for town use. The springs have been reinforced, the Renault liquid shock absorbers fitted, sturdier axles employed, and in every way the car has been fitted to travel over rough roads at a good speed.

The mater of clearance has come in for special attention, full 10 inches being allowed, the wheelbase being 120 inches. While the water-cooling system is of the same type as that which usually distinguishes the Renault, that is, with the copper tube radiator, back of the motor and thermo-syphon circulation, the radiator itself, in this case, has been considerably enlarged, and the bonnet has been made much longer. The control levers are much shorter than in the regular type. As a runabout this car is capable of 60 miles an hour, and has been designed with a capacity for high speed on rough roads. The complete chassis tips the scales at 2000 pounds, and when equipped with a runabout type of body lists at $6000.

GIVING GOOD SERVICE TO AUTO OWNERS

All automobile factories now recognize the importance of being able to fill orders for repair parts with quickness and dispatch. Thomas B. Jeffery & Company, the makers of the Rambler, claim to have in stock duplicates of every part of every Rambler manufactured since 1902 and further to be able to ship replacements on the same day the order reaches the factory. This promptness is due to the thorough organization of the sundry department.

All parts supplied on order are inspected by two men to insure accuracy, and again, in the shipping room the order is time stamped and double checked to avoid mixing orders in packing. The sundry department contains 1500 bins of various sizes, all arranged in sections eight feet in height. In this room are kept only such parts as are in most frequent demand; others are stored in a reserve stock room. In addition there is the annex, motor stock, transmission stock and axle stock rooms.

The fact that there are fourteen thousand Rambler cars in use, many of them now in their fifth and sixth year of service, makes this department very valuable to owners, while the fact that all Rambler parts are made in the Rambler factory enables the company to supply them very cheaply. Although repair parts may not be needed during the first or second season of operation, the company sees the wisdom of manufacturing and keeping on hand extra parts of all models, so that in years to come owners may procure them without delay and at a reasonable cost.

Miss Julia L. Austin, field secretary of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, who participated in the San Francisco Baptist Association convention recently held in this city, is working zealously to raise a fund for the support of foreign missionaries who are preaching Christianity in the far East. For many years Miss Austin has been a missionary. Her influence is felt in charitable and religious circles.

Miss Austin is co-operating with the ministers in regard to securing enough money to carry on missionary work in foreign lands. An appeal has been sent out from India for more funds and the cry for help will be heeded, declares Miss Austin. All the Baptist churches will assist in the great cause, which the ministers say will save thousands of souls. Miss Austin has been an earnest worker in this cause and is taking an active part in the movement to evangelize the world.

EATS 4 DOZEN CANS OF SALMON, OPENING CANS WITH HIS TEETH

Hungry Sailor Plays Havoc With a Large Shipment of Fish

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 26.—In twelve hours, ending Friday evening at dusk, Charley Hanson, plain sailorman, devoured four dozen cans of salmon and was about to begin on his second case of four dozen when he heard ominous sounds at the door of the Southern Pacific freight car at the foot of Davis street, where he reposed. He was angered and loth to respond when he heard a summons from without:

The command was uttered in a fierce tone by Special Officer T. J. Butler, as he peered into a Southern Pacific freight car on the Belt railroad at the foot of Davis street. It was Friday, and the day had waned. The officer had heard queer sounds from the interior of the car, like the crushing of a ship against a wharf.

It was Charley Hansen, plain sailorman, opening cases of salmon with his teeth. He withdrew his molars from the boards long enough to throw his searchlights toward the door and ejaculate:

"Vell?"

"Come out o' that! What are you doing in there?" shouted the officer, angrily. "Come out, before I throw something in after you?"

Having partially appeased his appetite, Hansen emerged. "Vell?" he repeated saucily, "Ees a man to go mit der yale inside because he ees hungary, yes? Vell, by golly, dor limit ees now. A lettle shleep an' a little fish, an' no harm mit not'in, ut der yale for me. Too much gov nment by der people, yes, an' not mough for her people, I guess so. 'or me again der barkentine Mary Vinkleman and so good-bye ever if I gets me dis schipe oudt, an' a sail 's yob fer me."

As Hansen came into the gla of an electric light the officer nes ly fell down from fright. For his victi looked like he had slept in a bed boiled salmon. Red salmon matted is auburn locks, and a few penny eights showed in each of his ears. H shabby clothes reeked with the fi h, and his hands were so red with the rloined product of the sea that it looked as though he had committed crime. Charley Hansen grinned.

"How did you open the cases of salmon?" asked the officer, as he started off for the harbor police sta on.

"Mit my toet'," replied the p soner, "an' I break me der cans in vo mit der boots by der feet, and feed myself mit two hands."

A charge of petit larceny wa placed against Charley Hansen's nam in the big book at the station.

MORAN AND HANLON BATTLE NEXT WEDNESDAY

POPULAR NATIVE SON LIGHTWEIGHT IS IMBUED WITH BELIEF THAT HE WILL WIN

Though Modest, He Is Very Confident

"Cute" Eddie Hanlon Is Not Bragging But Working Hard and Believes He Will Stop the Briton.

By EDDIE SMITH

CAN a fighter at the age of twenty-three years, with two years and a half of dissipation to ruin the tissues and muscles of the body that by six months' hard and faithful work, not come back to the physical condition he once possessed? And can a fighter who is twenty-three years of age and one year and two days older than he, be considered the young fighter in the very prime of his fighting career, or the only one to be in condition for a rattling twenty round contest?

That is the exact standing of the affairs in the sizing up of the coming Hanlon-Moran contest that is to be settled next Wednesday night at the Coliseum in San Francisco.

On the second day of the coming October Eddie Hanlon, San Francisco's most favorite fighter, will be twenty-three years old and two days later on the fourth of the same month Owen Moran, champion featherweight of England, and an equal holder of the world's featherweight championship with Abe Attell, will have lived twenty-four years.

CONDITION FIGURES.

On these quest ons hinge the result of the contest of next Wednesday—that is, if one is to believe the wise sages of the ring in their doping up of the outcome It seems the concensus of opinion among these men that if Hanlon is the sturdy, aggressive fighter of old, really a rejuvenated fighter, that he will win and do so before the full twenty rounds have been fought. On the other hand, if Hanlon is not all that he imagines and confidently thinks he is at this time, they point o the very many ways that Moran will have to beat the so-called old-timer

Hanlon himself is as confident that he is as good as ever, or even better than for some of the fights he has had as he is that he is alive. He has advised his numerous friends to bet on his chances and is so sure of victory that he is counting on what next he will do after disposing of the Britisher.

Moran, to be sure, is just as confident. He is positive in the first place that Hanlon is not the fighter he was in former days, and says with great emphasis that even if he is that he will be able to trim him.

MORAN'S ARGUMENT.

Owen is inclined to believe that the people on this coast have little idea what he can do when under a full head of steam when fighting a man who will be willing to exchange wallops and take a chance of getting hit to land a good punch.

He points to the Nell fight, and says that he had such an easy time that he did not get a good start, and in the two Attell fights he simply asks one the plain question of how any one could expect him to put up a good fight with Attell with the clever Hebrew stalling half the time and refusing to take a chance.

The logic of the question to the experienced fight follower is plain and undeniable, for it would indeed be hard to find any fighter of many pounds more weight than Moran who could do much with Attell when he does not care to take a chance.

It is an assured fact, however, that Wednesday night he will meet a man who will do little stalling and it may be that he will show to better advantage.

At any rate everything possible has been done to make the condition of Hanlon perfect, and he certainly looks fit and works in his gymnasium with a vigor that would lead most any one to believe he has a great chance to win

Mr. C. L. W., the gentleman who wrote the communication to THE TRIBUNE last week regarding the colored fighters and the unfairness of the term, champion being applied to the name of any white man who refused to fight a colored member of his profession who was able to make a certain weight and draw a good house and who was in good standing with the community at large, takes exception at the writer's version of the right of a white man who has never fought a colored chap refusing to fight one after that party has reached the championship

MORE ON COLOR LINE.

In the article we tried to convey the idea that we were thoroughly in accord with the claim that a man was not an undisputed champion if he refused to fight a colored man in good standing who was capable of giving him a good rub for the title, but we did say and still stick to it that a man who has never fought a colored man and who has refused from the very jump to consider a challenge from a colored chap has the right to refuse him or for that matter any other race or creed that he may deem fit.

RACE PREJUDICE.

It is only the great right of personal independence and a man without that quality is little good to any one Suppose, for instance, a man had been raised by race prejudiced parents and had been taught from childhood to shun colored people, why should he be forced to fight a colored man simply because he had chosen the profession of a pugilist as a way to earn a fortune?

The argument that he would not be an undisputed champion still clings to him, however, and it is the opinion of the writer that if he expects to be known as that champion he should fight any and all comers, be they black or white, and in this C L W. is right

Personally the writer has no prejudice against a colored chap and in a contest between a colored man and a white he has no preference, except that of any man to see the man he may have a bet on or for friendly feeling want to see win

The color line to me is a joke but we cannot all be of the same feeling and the claim that a man has a right to choose his opponents or his company if he be a fighter or any other contender in athletics is a just one

ATTELL'S NEW LEAF.

Abe Attell is still about San Francisco looking for a chance to get a fight with some of the good men of his class and also gambling away the money he won by fighting Owen Moran a twenty-five round draw

If ever there was a fighter who needed a good talking to and a lesson in economy taught him, that one is little Abe Attell He will no doubt challenge the winner of the Hanlon-Moran fight and will be very desirous of getting on with which ever man wins.

Abe has said that he now realizes the tactics he has employed in the past are not the popular ones for a fighter and that if given another chance he will fight in an entirely different manner That Attell can fight when he wants to there is no one with an ounce of boxing knowledge who will deny, but the stalling and picking of easy ones and the demanding of conditions that exact too much from an opponent have about had their run with the local fans, and it is well that the champion has decided to do different.

If Abe would now turn over a new leaf in the handling of his ma uma he would be a very wise young man. Since the opening of this year and up to the matching of his last contest, it is estimated that Attell made something in the neighborhood of $16,000 and yet he had to borrow $100 from a fellow fighter to go into training for the Moran contest with

ATTELL A GAMBLER.

It is not going to be always thus with Abe The time will come when he will not be able to win that much money with the padded fists and then what is he to do? The example of the fallen fighter without funds is staring him in the face all the time and he should take heed He is not any smarter then they and the continual squandering and gambling away of his money will leave him high and dry without a cent, just as it has these men

The night that Attell landed in San Francisco he sat in at a poker game and after about twenty hours of playing he left the place none the wiser and about $500 the poorer Guns in his day has been a gambler, but he never had it on the clever little Hebrew fighter. In fact, few if any fighters ever did.

Abe can neither sing, whistle or dance, as Kid Norta would say, and he had better try to save some of the filthy stuff that he is now making for we all have rainy days, and if Abe don't look sharp he will have a regular hail storm when his comes

QUESTION OF CONDITION A BIG FACTOR IN HANLON-MORAN FIGHT

Lightweights Claiming Good Condition

Hanlon a Year Younger Than Moran and Yet Is Considered the Old Timer in Coming Twenty Round Contest.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept 26—On Wednesday night the crowd will gather the lights will flare and the gloves will fly at the Coliseum And unless all signs fail it will be a stormy evening As a rule it isn't safe to build on the class of entertainment a pugilistic show will afford but when you are dealing with one-way fighters like Eddie Hanlon Owen Moran, Sam Nelson and Kid Harrison you can come pretty near telling what to expect

The wise fellows have made Moran a favorite over Hanlon, something that was practically a foregone conclusion, not because he is younger or stronger but because his fights have been of a building up character while Hanlon is thought to have fallen away from his form of five years ago.

Eddie is determined, however, to show that it is a mistake to list any pugilist with the has beens before his mustache begins to sprout. He has taken for his motto

'Tis not in mortals to command success,
But I'll do more—deserve it

And he has worked long and faithfully to improve his chances of restoration to fame and favor

REST HELPED HANLON

He thinks it was too much fighting rather that the beatings he took which caused him to slow up a couple of years ago, and he believes that two years of abstinence from Queensberry have given him a fresh stock of turmoil and removed all traces of the fo stamina tterings he endured from his sy ger bat- m

He has many friends who fe con- fident he ques correctly As ilities to the rear guard Eddie has taken his ad- mirers point to his great pluck his per- severing methods of battling n when the going is all uphill, and his doubted endurance

Truth to tell, this latter qu ification In Hanlon has not been give proper weight If falls very little hort of Battling Nelson in powers of ssimila- tion As the majority of his fi ts were fought in San Francisco his re d is an easy one to recall and the fa stands out that his losing fights were added by the interference of his second or the referee rather than by the nockout route Even Young Corbett t gre it- est pun her the world has kno n for a little man, didn't put Hanlon in e hands of the timekeepers

MORAN HAS TOUGH JOB.

What Young Corbett failed t accom- plish there is little danger o English Moran accomplishing, say Edd s sup- porters They go further an argue that Moran punishing ability alls so far short of Corbett's that the is lit- tle fear of Hanlon being ren red so helpless Wednesday night as invite interference from referee, second or any- one else

Win or lose it goes without saying that Hanlon will make a despe e fight He would like to be up in t front rank again and the determin lon he will show will be in keeping wit the ex- tended careful preparation he h given himself He is having his dau breams, is Eddie He always felt tha it was carelessness towards the end o a win- ning fight that made him lose Bat- tling Nelson and he is filled ith the ambition to have one more crac at the Durable Dan Of course if he beaten By Moran his air castle will cr ible Hanlon will be as fit as pa staking work can make him, and if any e hair bers the idea that Owen Mor has slighted his training it will be s well to banish such a notion The wit heard that the English boy was not working as had as he might and took teps to ascertain if the report was c rect I an in a position to state tha Moran has trained faithfully and well d that so far as condition is concerned Hanlon will have no advantage The S Fran- cisican will have six or seven pou ds to way in the matter of weight ik to against this Moran is a better b thing a sure hitter than Eddie ough Moran, like Hanlon, has a lot tried Over in England they feted Owe went one British champion that upl sterly country's prestige among fore ound recent years They gave him pros- some belts as a token of esteem pects were at pains to show him th Willis's dear old Albion's white-headed led addition to the way his stick we gled on this side if he was beaten dle's over Eddie Hanlon the little ward would lose his caste in his ow s in try, and this is a condition of a made will try mighty hard to avoid ltisher Which ever way one looks at it there ar coun- tirs be sound reasons for expecting one slashing, stubborn fight

NELSON AND HARRISON.

Among the immediate adherents of Sam Nelson and Kid Harrison the go- between the two fighters named is of more absorbing interest than the Hanlon Moran affair For that matter there are others, too, who feel that as a producer of thrills the Nelson-Harrison bout will hold its own with the other. If the men stand to their guns as they did at Colma the bout is sure to keep the crowd in a ferment while it lasts.

Billy Papke, according to latest accounts, will improve the shining hour by fighting ten rounds with Hugo Kelly in Milwaukee Jack Gleason, who probably made a wry face when he heard the news, says the affair will in no way interfere with the Ketchel-Papke contest which is scheduled for Thanksgiving eve in his city.

It might be well, however, for Gleason not to go too deeply into arrangements for handling Papke and Ketchel until the Papke-Kelly go becomes part and parcel of pugilistic history

These "in-the-meantime" bouts have dashed the hope of many a "ring champion The Papke-Ketchel upset at Los Angeles is a case in point. Ketchel, who had been all over the middleweight ground once, and who had made one excursion into heavyweight territory, agreed to box Papke, just to kill time while he was waiting for Burns to return from Australia and give him battle for the highest title of all. We know the result.

PAPKE IS NO FOOL.

Papke now occupies the position that Ketchel occupied before Los Angeles, and presumably thinks Kelly as easy game as Ketchel thought Papke. But the unexpected happens in pugilism more than in any other line of sport, and as Kelly is anything but a weakling we will have to wait and see what happens at Milwaukee before building on a Ketchel-Papke return

The promoters of the Burns-Squires contest in Australia claim to have taken in thirteen thousand pounds, or roughly, $65,000 If the receipts are as stated, we will have to admit that Australia, on great occasions, can hold its own with the United States in patronizing prize ring events

With these figures before us the cabled reports of an offer of $50,000 for the Johnson-Burns match would not be so hard to believe The only thing that confuses the situation and creates further doubt is that Burns himself is authority for the statement that he is to receive $30,000 for fighting Johnson and that Johnson will get $5000. It is more than likely that Squires got $2000. These figures are official and they show that the promoters, on a basis of a $65,000 gate did mighty well.

Larney Lichtenstein, manager of Cyclone Johnnie Thompson, writes from Chicago that his man is more than anxious to hook up with Willie Fitzgerald, or any other lightweight the San Francisco fight promoters may select. In view of the dearth of good fistic material in this city the Fitzgerald-Thompson go should commend itself to the matchmakers Fitzgerald is beyond a doubt the hardest hitting lightweight before the public at present, while it is claimed that Thompson's powers of endurance are greater than Battling Nelson's Such being the cast, signing Fitzgerald and Thompson would seem like pitting "the immovable body" against "the irresistible force."

STATE LEAGUE WILL COME INTO ORGANIZED BASEBALL

As announced in these columns some weeks back, many of the Pacific Coast League directors are in favor of bringing the outlaw California State League into organized baseball or, in other words, to have them ruled by the National Commission.

This season is the first that the outlaws have tried to buck the senior organization, and they found that it would not pay.

Speaking of the possibility of the State League clubs coming under the wing of organized baseball, Henry Berry, manager and owner of the Los Angeles Club, said: "I don't see any reason why the State League shouldn't come into organized baseball. As it stands now they are trying to put the Coast League out of business, and our league has too strong a hold for them to attempt such a thing with any amount of success." The rotund little manager of the Los Angeles team smiled as he said this, insinuating that they would have a hard time in accomplishing such a thing.

"There is certainly room for two leagues on the Pacific Coast," continued Berry, "and there is no reason why the two should not prosper

"As the situation now stands the majority of the State League clubs are dissatisfied, and, furthermore most of them are losing money. They are paying exorbitant salaries and they are not drawing the crowds on the two-games-a-week schedule.

"The Coast League will send to the managers of the various State League clubs a circular letter favoring the outlaws' entrance into the organized baseball world, and get their views on the matter."

Berry seems to think that the State League managers will be glad to come under the fold of the National Commission.

"Ping" Bodie, the busher signed by Danny Long, has been out in uniform for the past week, but the fans haven't had a chance to get a line on him. Long will probably give him a chance to work this week

When the present series between the Seals and the Angels opened at Freeman's Park, Oakland, last week it looked as if the Angels would have a walkover. Tuesday and Wednesday the games went to Los Angeles, but on Thursday "Brownie" Brownie improved a stumbling block to the leaders. He pitched a masterly game, and backed up by clever fielding had no trouble in downing the men from Lemonville. Then, too, the Seals seemed to wake up to the fact that the fans were paying admission and wanted to see a baseball game, not the ping-pong variety, and put up a much improved brand of ball They ran the bases well and improved in their sticking.

"Slivers" Henley on Friday pitched one of the best games seen on the local diamond. He had all the southern batsmen on his staff, allowing them but two measly bingles His control was perfect, not issuing a pass or hitting a batsman.

Frank Goings, who is one of the men who are promoting the Venice team, which is to give Los Angeles continuous baseball, arrived in this city a few days ago to have a talk with the officials of the Coast League in this city.

Ivan Howard, the second baseman purchased by Berry from Grand Rapids of the Three I League, has proven that he has the class. He has played the second station like a first class man and has been hitting his couple of bingles regularly He should prove a great strength to Berry's infield next year.

Flynn and O'Connell will umpire the series on the local grounds between Portland and Oakland the coming week Perine goes to Los Angeles for the Los Angeles-San Francisco series

Griffin will work this morning for the Seals and Browning or Berger in the afternoon.

Rose Makes New Record

NEW YORK, Sept 26—Ralph Rose, the giant weight thrower from the coast, showed his great skill at the games of the New Jersey Exhibition Company at the West Side Park today, when he tossed the sixteen-pound shot and established a new world's record of 50 feet and 1¼ inches. Right after capturing the laurels in this event Rose had an easy time in winning first prize in the hurling of the sixteen-pound hammer

Sheppard the greyhound of the Irish-American Athletic Club, was considered a sure winner in the 500-yard run from the scratch, and he lived up to his reputation by getting home first in his masterly style.

'Chick' Wright To Play J. Carney

Monday evening at Carney's Billiard Parlors, 410 Twelfth street, a match game of balk line billiards will delight the lovers of the game in Oakland. The contestants will be H A (Chick) Wright of San Francisco and Joe Carney, now of this city Mr. Wright should soon be able to strike his stride on this side of the bay Something he has yet failed to do, as the foregoing records will show At 18-inch balk line in Los Angeles, when he played Geo Kennedy 1000 points, Wright made a high single average of 18 4-11 and a grand average of 17 17-23 He left shortly after for Chicago, where he went into practice for the national tournament with that old master Jake Schaffer. He came away with flying colors, Wright playing 18-2, Schaffer 18-1 Some of the scores may be of interest to the local fans In the first game Wright won 400 to 300, with an average of 20 flat His second game with the wizard was Wright 300, Schaffer 299, Wright averaging 18 14-16 The third meeting resulted in a defeat for Wright but he was there with an average of 16

Wright's high run at Los Angeles was 132 Lately in practice he has made several large runs, some of which are worth mentioning 110, 111, 123, 146 186 All these runs and averages were made at the wide balk 18-2. The game Monday evening will be 400 points at 18-inch balk line and the billiard fans of Oakland will surely see a contest that will be worth the while to attend, as both players are known to put forth all that is in them and some fast playing will surely be the result.

Clifford-Dalton Match Called Off

News has just come to hand that the Jack Clifford-Kid Dalton twenty-round contest has been postponed to October 8, owing to Clifford having a carbuncle on his knee The contest attracted considerable attention throughout the north and the Marysville people would have had a large house

Oakland High Is Not Discouraged

Oakland High is not discouraged by the showing made by the football team in its game with Wilmerding, as it was up against one of the hardest football elevens in the bay counties Only of the best players on the Oakland lineup did not play, which weakened the team considerably, as it had to switch the team around, so that it made it almost impossible for Oakland to do its best At that, at the beginning of the first half it seemed as if nothing could stop them, until the strong line of the Wilmerding team put a stop to their bold line plunges

As was predicted, Captain Bangs of the Oakland team played a star game for his team, making several brilliant plays Although a very light man, he played the halfback position with considerable ability.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept 26—Ralph Willis had his second chance of the week to wallop the Los Angeles champs at Recreation Park yesterday afternoon and for the second time had his colors lowered The debonair boxman didn't have a bad assortment of twisters, but it so happened that a majority of the six Angel batters came at opportune moments And it's timely sticking that wins ball games 'Judge' Nagle was on the job for the opposition and twirled his usual consistent game The "Judge's" spitter was especially effective at critical periods

Along in the sixth, when the Dillonites got busy and made two runs to wipe out the lead of the Seals there was almost a contest of the sort usually pulled off in a roped arena Oakes, the scrappy outfielder, objected to the spot on which Catcher Berry had deposited his mask just previous to the attempt to put Oakes out on Zeider's throw when Brashear grounded to the shortstop.

ZEIDER'S BAD HEAVE.

Zeider's throw was not accurate and the Angel easily scored Oakes was nettled, however, that he had been compelled to jump over the mask to reach home and after crossing the plate, returned, picked up the offending cage and deliberately threw it against the grandstand Berry made a move as though to follow Oakes, but a warning look by Dillon cut his purpose short

A few seconds later Dillon slid into the plate, although Hildebrand did not throw the ball to Berry To some spectators it looked like an attempt on the part of the Angel chief to continue the feud that had just been started by Oakes

As in so many other encounters, the Seals were all to the good right at the beginning of hostilities Curtis the first up singled to left and went to second on Hildebrand's sacrifice On Zeider's corking two-base drive to right little Joe scored Zeider tried to put him third and Elsterly retired him with a nice throw to Bernard Melchoir fanned

BRASHEAR'S TWO-BAGGER.

Kitty Brashear drove out a beautiful two-bagger in the fourth, but his teammates could not help and the drive came to nothing

The sixth in which the bad blood between the opposing hosts was so markedly shown, was put into full swing by Bernard's single to right Bernard was caught napping when Berry made a quick peg to Williams Oakes, the irascible orator, was safe on Zeider's boot Dillon's terrific drive to the right fence Oakes was advanced to third Berry grounded to Zeider and Oakes attempted to throw home Then came the mix-up Howard singled to left scoring Dillon "Teeny" was forced by Ellis at second Delmas flied out, retiring the side

In the seventh the visitors added third run to their string Ted Howard rapped one at Curtis that was too hot to handle and moved up to second on Bernard's out sent Ted to third

OAKES IS BOOED

Oakes then faced the multitude and was greeted with a few healthy boos Willis let loose a wild one and Oakes went down in a heap It was some minutes before the center fielder recovered sufficiently from the blow to walk to first

Berry decided it would be just thing to nip his enemy at second, even though Elasterly was in third So Claud tried to throw to second, but the ball went sterly bounding out into the field Dillon romped home Dillon was the third out to die

The Seals had a grand chance to score in the last half of the prospects by a phenomenal catch of Willis's fly with two on bases Willis led off with a single to center

After Beck had flied out Berry batted Both were advanced a peg on Melchoir out Willis lifted the ball far out into the clubhouse with Oakes and Howard apparently hopeless pursuit Ellis did pull down the leather when running at top speed.

NAPOLEON LAJOIE OF CLEVELAND IS MOST GRACEFUL PLAYER IN THE GAME

Leader of Naps Is Wonderful Ball Tosser

His Style of Play Is So Graceful That They Say of Him That Every Movement Is a Living Picture.

By T. P. MAGILLIGAN

WHEN the parents of LaJoie christened that gentleman of batting and baseball "Napoleon," they showed an aptness in nomenclature that will forever redound to their credit, for in many particulars LaJoie is the Napoleon of baseball.

As a player of baseball LaJoie is your man of grace, your artist, a gem of style, one who plays baseball much after the manner of a great artist, and with as much sang froid as your Brummel when he asked the witty though whimsical and feminine Richard Brinsley Sheridan, "Who's your fat friend, Sherry?"

For years and years your writers of baseball, literary hetaereas of the press, men whose burdens equal that of a Sisyphus in the miniature have questioned themselves mostly as to who was the greatest of all ball players, having in mind the question of superiority between Wagner of Pittsburg and LaJoie of Cleveland.

As to the value of the men, the writer has naught to say. So far as the artistry of the game is concerned, LaJoie stands out over a Wagner as your Joffres would stand out over an Attell, or as your mountain of Gibraltar stands out over a sand hill.

LAJOIE AN ARTIST.

In all the history of the game no man ever followed this LaJoie in grace and style. Those of a literary turn of mind say of Macauley that he could write entertainingly about the almanac. LaJoie of your Macauley type of man can play entertainingly, can thrill a crowd as no man thrills them in baseball.

Fighting qualities LaJoie has none to speak of. In the art of grace as applied to baseball he is a veritable Messonier of the diamond, a man whose every motion afield or at the bat is a living picture.

Ever since his advent into the National League, and that was a good many years ago, LaJoie has been the greatest artist of baseball.

So wonderful is this man at bat that his fielding qualities are frequently overlooked. As a fielder no man in the world today can out do LaJoie. His style is so charming that he must have robbed the graces in the acquirement of it. LaJoie makes difficult plays look easy, and for this reason none but your keen students of baseball know the real fielding abilities of this great player.

LAJOIE AND WAGNER.

We have no desire to take any iota of the credit that away from him Wagner has piled unto himself as a player of baseball. He is a great player, albeit a slovenly one, and one lacking in personality as much as ever your asphalt pavement lacked that quality. LaJoie is the antithesis of Wagner in this respect. Every grace that a ball player could wish is his. His style at bat is perfection itself. As he stands facing the pitcher, bat loosely swung, delicately arched, and with no menace in it, he is a picture worthy the brush of any artist who cares for grace. There is none of the sloven in this man. One who had never seen a ball game would but have to see LaJoie lift a bat, and he would know that the man realizes for what purpose that piece of ash was modeled and shaped.

As a hitter LaJoie is simply wonderful. He can hit any and all kinds of pitching at any and all times. He has the knack of chopping them down to perfection and the ball goes singing from his bat like a ball from a rifle. LaJoie is not your wild swinger, one of those men who always have murderous intent on the ball. Rather he hits the ball a deft clean blow with rather the force of brains than brawn back of the blow.

CAN HIT THEM HARD.

We have seen LaJoie drive a ball into the bleachers for a home run time and again and often marveled how he did it with the lady-like swing he takes.

In the field LaJoie has as wonderful a style as he has at the bat. He seems to divine intuitively where a ball is going to go when it is hit by a batter and always he is on the spot. He is a great ground coverer, but for the reason that he goes after it like a whippet after a hare instead of like a dachshund after a sausage wagon, many of the spectators fail to see the great amount of ground that LaJoie covers. As a rule it is merely the obvious that ball fans, in common with other folk, see. Anything with the element of art in it is over them and beyond and above them. A man who will make a bustle like an elephant rolling a peanut and cover ten feet of ground for a play will get more credit for it than will this LaJoie for covering ten yards, and all because most ball fans fail to see the style, the timeliness and the grace of the LaJoie fielding.

CLEAN CUT ATHLETE.

Physically LaJoie is of a cut close to the best mode. He is your man of six foot in the perpendicular, and of a good 190 pounds of sustaining weight. Yet is this weight so well and neatly spread over LaJoie that he has none of the appearance of being heavy or boorish. He is graceful physically, graceful at play, and has a wonderful personality.

As a batter LaJoie has never had a superior. As a fielder no man ever stepped on the diamond could ever outshine him.

On the bases he is no fleet foot, but he is no sloven either. Slovenliness is altogether foreign to him. He is the greatest artist of baseball the game has ever known, one of its greatest hitters and fielders, and speaking truthfully, the best drawn card in either one of the major leagues.

The double victory of both Chicago and New York and the win of Pittsburg left the race in the National League last night the same, or practically the same as it had been before yesterday's games were started. Of course Pittsburg lost slight ground by wining only once.

The race in the National League this season has been the most thrilling in the entire history of that league. Before the season opened all the baseball experts picked the Chicago "Cubs" to win the pennant without any great opposition. They reason that as Chicago had such an easy time in both the 1906 and 1907 races they would experience no difficulty in the campaign which will come to a close in about two weeks.

New York was considered by these experts an excellent team, but was not given the credit which its showing all season entitled the team to have.

EXPERTS LOSE POINT.

All these experts overlooked one great point in the race. They overlooked McGraw and his personality. McGraw is your fighting type of manager, a man who knows the game, and one who will not stand for laggards on his team. McGraw has a great personality. He is the best baseball commander the game has ever known. McGraw naturally would rather win by fair means than any other, but nevertheless he wants to win at any cost.

All of McGraw's men play ball for him. He will stand for no other sort. He is the cock of the walk of that New York team, and rules with an iron hand. At that he knows human nature and does not thrust himself too strongly into the affairs of his players.

NAPOLEON LA JOIE,
A Ballplayer of Such Grace on the Field and at Bat That His Every Motion Is a Living Picture. For Style This Player Has Never Had an Equal.
—Courtesy of Al Smith.

Any man who can handle such a man as Mike Donlin in the same way that McGraw does surely shows a genius of a high order. Donlin never played a better game than he is playing now and the wiseacres of the game predicted early this season that he would not do much, and that because he was out of the game all last year and broke his leg the year before. But Donlin fooled them. Fooled them badly, and Michael Angelep is playing such a game as he never played in his career before.

DOYLE A STAR.

The experts also held that Doyle was a player of too little experience to make a team of pennant winners. While they were sizing up New York also they said that Bridwell was not a strong enough hitter.

Doyle turned out a very gem of a second baseman and a fine clipping hitter, while Bridwell has played a brand of ball that has made him at once the envy and despair of the rest of the National League shortstops.

Under any other man than McGraw these results would hardly have been brought about. McGraw stands in a class by himself when it comes to managing a ball team. He knows the game and has the great and rare ability of being able to impart his own iron spirit and knowledge of the sport to the men who play under him.

Should New York win that pennant, and they have the best chance, McGraw will be the biggest man in New York for the next couple of months.

John J. McGraw Is Keenest of Managers

Has the Great Faculty of Not Only Knowing Game Thoroughly, But the More Valuable One of Imparting It.

PORTLAND BEAVERS HANG ANOTHER DEFEAT ON OAKS

Pitcher Christian Is Walloped Unmercifully by the Hard Hitters on McCreedie's Team.

PORTLAND, Or., Sept. 26.—Portland had no trouble getting back into its stride today and defeated Oakland, 7 to 3. Christian was very wild. Big Ed Kinsella pitched steady ball and up to the sixth came in the second chapter. McCredie grounded out. Bassey walked and Madden was safe on Hogan's error. Kinsella tried to bunt twice and then shut his eyes and hammered a liner to right field that filled the bases. Casey and Bassey worked the squeeze play for a score and Cooney was walked, forcing in a run. With the infield playing close, Johnson tore off a fast one that Hogan could not handle and Kinsella and Casey crossed the plate. Madden drove a triple to Hogan and Cook in the fourth inning singled and Heitmuller walked, and both scored on Hogan's double to center. The star fielding feature was Miller's catch of Danzig's foul after a great run straight back. The score:

Sacramento Wins From Santa Cruz

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 26.—By beating Santa Cruz, 4 to 0 today, Sacramento scored its sixth successive shut out, having traveled fifty-four innings now without allowing their opponents to ring the bell. The teams shut out are Stockton 1, Oakland 2, San Francisco 2, and Santa Cruz 1. This is claimed to be a Pacific Coast record. Brown twirled for the locals today and was accorded gilt-edge support. Hardy, for the Red Dogs, did well except for the first inning, when he walked two men, registered a wild pitch and allowed Neelon to clear the bases with a single to left.

Score:

New York Still Retains the Lead

By Defeating Cincinnati Twice the Giants Hang Onto the Top Place By Narrow Margin of One Point.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—As a result of the Giants winning both games at the polo grounds today, the first by a score of 6 to 2 and the second 3 to 1, while the Cubs were taking two from Brooklyn, the teams stand tonight just as they did last night, the Giants one point ahead of their Chicago rivals.

Thomson pitched the first game and held the innings safe at all times. The first game started at 1 o'clock and long before that hour the crowd packed the grounds.

During the interval between the first and second games the Evening Journal loving cup that was won by Mike Donlin after a voting contest was presented to him by Joe Humphreys. Mike was called on for a speech, but blushingly refused. Maybel Hite, the popular right fielder's actress wife, viewed the presentation scene from a private box from the grand stand.

In the second game Ames started off a little wild but soon steadied down and was never bothered.

REULBACH WINS DOUBLE HEADER

Great Twirler of the "Cubs" White Washes the Bridge Jumpers in Both Contests of Day.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 26.—Reulbach, leading Chicago's world's champions, pitched two games and shut out Brooklyn twice, 5 to 0 and 3 to 0, holding them safe at almost every stage. He allowed them only seven scattered hits in the eighteen innings.

Twice, once in each game, the Dodgers looked threatening, but each time the grand work of Kling broke their rallies. Kling caught marvelous ball and gave an exhibition of catching, hitting and baserunning that set the crowd wild.

By the double victory the Cubs closed their sensational Eastern invasion and hung up the Giants.

Cleveland, Chicago and Detroit remain in the relative positions they were in before yesterday's games and Cleveland is still two points to the good. St. Louis dropped back a bit again by losing to Boston, Arrelanes, the California boy, turning the trick on the Browns.

There will be games in Chicago and St. Louis this afternoon and the result of these contests may have an important bearing on the league race.

Newman Wins Game From Transportations

The Newman team proved themselves to be as clever a ball club as their most enthusiastic admirers claimed for them by taking the fast Transportation club into camp yesterday afternoon at Freeman's Park by a score of 11 to 0.

The game was one-sided from the start and the Newman men won all the way and as handily as they pleased. Score:

SANTA ANITA RACE TRACK WILL NOT OPEN GATES UNTIL THANKSGIVING DAY

Postponement Caused by Election

Directors Feel That Unsettled Conditions Will Prevail and Decide to Set the Open- for a Later Date.

News comes from Los Angeles that it was officially announced at the office of the Los Angeles Racing Association yesterday that it had been deemed expedient to change the date of opening the Santa Anita Park meeting from November 14, as first intended to Thanksgiving Day, November 26, the usual date of opening the local racing season. Last year, owing to the delay in track construction, the track did not open until December 7, so that opening day this year will be nearly two weeks earlier.

The three principal reasons which actuated the management in arriving at the decision of opening Thanksgiving Day were that local feeling favored opening on the usual date; that the November elections throughout the country would require three or four weeks for business to resume its normal conditions and finally, that many horsemen racing horses in the East and Middle West until late in the fall, felt unable to get their charges here in time to get them ready for the valuable opening stakes at Santa Anita Park.

The change will of course necessitate the shifting of dates for the stake events to be run at the meeting, the Pomona handicap at seven furlongs, for two-year-olds and upward, being run on opening day. The date of closing for stake entries will also be moved forward from the original date set, November 7. "Jack" Atkin will arrive from the East next Monday to assist in arranging the new stake dates for the best interests of all those wishing to make entries, and the new list will be announced shortly after his arrival.

Reservations for stalls continue to pour in from all parts of the country and Canada, horsemen fearing that delay might find them unable to secure quarters. Many of them from distant points state that they do not intend shipping until late next month, showing the wisdom of the association in moving forward its dates so as to insure ample time for preparation to all the high class horses from the East wishing to enter for the early events.

The announcement of the stakes to be run at the Arcadia racetrack this winter shows that there will be five more big money races this year than there were last winter. These have been named Glendora Handicap, of $1500; Hollywood and Alhambra, of $2500 each; Covina Selling Stakes, and the Holland Cup, of $1500 each. The latter will be at two and one-quarter miles. The race known last year as the Gardena Handicap will this year be called the Monrovia Handicap, and the distance has been increased from one and one-sixteenth miles to one and one-eighth miles. The total of stake added money is $41,000.

Racing will begin November 14 and continue until about April 1, 1909, and the stakes, distances, values and dates are as follows:

Stake.	Dist.	Value.	Date.
Pomona handicap	⅞	$1500	Nov.

And the long-green's flyin' too;
But the stakes they lost—ah, did they now?
Well, they're twenty-three—skidoo.

When she's tryin' to shine," they say,

San Jose Beats the Poor Boobs

SAN JOSE, Sept. 26.—The "lucky seventh" was the only inning in which the locals did not score today in the game with Oakland. At the end the visitors had gathered in three runs, while the Prune Pickers were accused of having thirteen. It was a ragged game from start to finish, though it had a few sensational features. O'Neill, the slab artist for Oakland, was wild and was batted hard, fifteen hits being secured off his delivery. Strickilett allowed several hits, but was simply playing with the visitors most of the time. Reid rapped out two three-baggers in the first two times he was at bat. Wolters made a sensational running catch. Errors were abundant on both sides and the locals pilfered bases at an almost criminal rate. Score:

Oakland	0 1 0 1 0 0 0 0 1—3	9	6

Pittsburg Wins Game From the Boston Nine

BOSTON, Sept. 26.—Pittsburg bunched hits in the first, sixth and eighth innings and won from Boston today, 5 to 4. Boston took Mattern out in the eighth and Lindeman pitched the last inning. A double play in the sixth and seventh prevented Pittsburg piling up the score. A double stopped Boston scoring in the second and close fielding in the third, when Boston had two men on bases, the only other time in the game, shut the home team out from any chance of scoring.

At Boston:

"Lucky" Jack McGinnis has extremely hard luck with his horses this season. In the last year he has paid $30,000 for thoroughbreds, including yearlings, but has only a lot of Old and for his trouble. He sold O. U. Cairngorm to G. P. Frazier for $2000 each, V. Harand disposed of My Maritutch to 200 for Ris for $450. McGinnis paid will sell Maquine last season, but says he for that the colt now for $100 to any breeder. It is may want him for stud purposes, more, said that McGinnis will breed Frank Notanthan, to the College stallion Gill, next year. McGinnis had an idea some time ago that he would go to California this winter, but he says that as it would be a case of "dog eat dog" there, he had decided to remain in the East, "If the big tracks do not run next year," said the young turfman, "I will race at some of the county fairs, where, under the stand, some pretty fair purses will be hung up."

Betting on the race for Governor of New York—George A. Wiley has $10,000 invested on Chanler's chance for Governor at evens, and is accommodating all comers at the same price. He has bet $5000 with Henry Harris, Shay taking the Hughes end. Robert latter made two wagers during the morning of $2500 and $7000 on Chanler, and $2,500 more. This is probably "Tim" Sullivan's money. The majority of these bets were booked at Gravesend recently.

The Chicago Racing Form says to Trainer Andrew Jackson Joyner belongs the distinction of having saddled more winners this year than any other trainer in this country. It is not an unknown honor to Joyner, but he probably enjoys being the leader again just as he had not before experienced all as if he had not before experienced the pleasure of handling his skilled competitors. J. Collins, trainer for Ed Corrigan, is his closest follower, with John E. Madden a good third.

Trainer John J. McCafferty, whose news at Gravesend recently would sail for Buenos Ayres on Jan. 26. The noted trainer says that he received a sort of an offer to train horses there, but would take it with him. He has been identified with the turf in this country for many years. Some time ago, because of a split with "Boots" Durnell, at Los Angeles, McCafferty and Durnell were ruled off the turf, only to be reinstated later. McCafferty formerly trained for Weinberg, but since he got out of California trouble he has not been license to train on the Jockey Club's tracks. Still, he has had a share in the handling of Weinberg's horses, though not actually saddling them.

McCafferty is a Texan by birth and speaks Spanish like a native. This talent will be handy to him in Argentina Republic, if he does not though he is actually saddling them. He began his turf career as a stable boy, and has been rider, trainer, owner and breeder in all American countries. Mc-Cafferty will first try his luck in Argentina Republic, if he does not do as well there he will try England then France, and finally Germany. "There is no reason why McCafferty would not do well anywhere, for he is a thorough horseman.

He has informed the headquarters of the league, at 220 Broadway, New York City, that the branch has 19,278 members registered and several thousand blanks have been signed, but not yet returned. The other officers of the Buffalo branch of the league are E. W. Mills, secretary, and Clarence D. Tawler, treasurer. All are enthusiastic over the outlook.

A dispatch from New York says that Fred Burlew and Frank O'Neill, former jockey, who have been turfing for several years, racing in the East, the B. & O. Stable, have decided to quit the American turf. They will go to Panama Wednesday, taking along all their horses, their foreman. They intend to buy a number of horses on the other side and race them, as they cannot take American race horses with them. Burlew has several places to be used for training quarters in view, and as soon as he arrives in France one of them will be engaged. For two winters Burlew has been one of the leading owners at New Orleans, where they raced a big string of horses. They will go abroad with plenty of money.

H. Stanhope of Lexington, Ky., is in receipt of a letter from William Allison informing him that the yearling colt by Waterboss—Marechal Neil, sold to England recently for $5500, was bought by Mr. Bygone, and that he is daily expecting a buyer from Ireland for Marechal Neil at $4000, her reserve price. The buyer may be Richard Croker.

Phil Dwyer's old Red Friar is a bad a rogue as the race track ever saw. He is simply sour and will not try. recently he had been well supported and as expected to perform creditably, but at the outset of a furlong he simply stopped and refused to run any more. Dwyer, at the track, used the whip freely, but the horse responded by kicking his heels in the air, and the boy finally gave up.

New York turfmen admit that the pari-mutuel system of betting is needed in that state. The Morning Telegraph, in praising Messrs. Winn and Grain for the Kentucky Racing Commission, in taking such a firm stand against bookmaking, has this to say:

"That the pari-mutuel system of betting is the fairest, everyone pretty well to knowledge of the sport knows. If we had been using pari-mutuels in New York State these ten years racing, probably would not be in desperate straits today.

"The racing associations in Kentucky may not, perhaps, make as much money with mutuel betting as they did under the old bookmaking system, which yielded a revenue of $100 a day each from about thirty books, but the success of the last spring meeting at Churchill Downs proved that they can do well enough.

"The tracks that have suffered under the operation of Governor Hughes' oppressive and confiscatory legislation are Empire City, Gravesend, Sheepshead Bay, Belmont Park and Brighton. The Gravesend and Empire City meetings and the Sheepshead Bay fall session were curtailed a bit, but the Sheepshead and Brighton summer meetings were held as per schedule.

"Brighton has thrown up the sponge this fall, but Philip J. Dwyer is going the limit, and it is not improbable that James Butler and his associates in the Yonkers enterprise may dedge their obligations. A bet that the Yonkers fall meeting will not be curtailed is as safe as a bet that Mr. Dwyer will not reconsider and cut the current Gravesend meeting.

"Forty-eight days' racing this fall in Kentucky, at Latonia, Lexington and Louisville, will help Eastern horsemen by withdrawing from the competition for purses Western horses that have been in the East since the Saratoga meeting.

"But the owners of Eastern stables can just the same stand as many days' racing as may be squeezed into the legal season. They have been running for reduced purses since the middle of June, but the price of feed has not been lowered nor is help less dear."

One of the most prominent stewards of the New York Jockey Club declared at Gravesend yesterday that there would positively be racing next year over most of the New York tracks, if not all that are under the jurisdiction of the Jockey Club, no matter what the political conditions in the state. Before the winter has passed, he said, it will be known just what is permissible under the present anti-betting law and what is not, and plans will be laid to meet the situation exactly as it will confront the Jockey Club and the racing associations in 1909. The foremost lawyers in New York State say that the election of Wallace to the Senate will be declared illegal by the courts, which will have the effect of making the Hart-Agnew law null and void.

"One hundred years ago this month," says the London Sportsman, "a bet of $250 was won by a Londoner who ran his pony against the mail coach from London to Exeter. They left Hyde Park Corner on Saturday night, the pony without a rider, led by a groom on another horse, and relays of men and horses were stationed along the road to lead it on. Coach and pony kept nearly together for upwards of 100 miles, after which the pony continued to gain ground, arriving in Exeter on Sunday evening an hour before the mail, having performed a distance of 178 miles in twenty-three hours and thirty-nine minutes. The pony was twelve hands high."

PEARY LEAVES ETAH FOR THE NORTH

After "Roosevelt" Sails, the Steamer Erick Collides With Iceberg and Is Seriously Damaged.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—The Peary Arctic Club received the following telegram today from Commander Robert Peary, who sailed from here in July on the steamer Roosevelt in an attempt to reach the North Pole:

"Etah, North Greenland, August 17, 1908, via Indian Harbor and Cape Race, N. F., Sept 26, 1908:

"Peary Arctic Club—Herbert L. Bridgemenn, secretary: Arrived Cape York July 31st. Roosevelt went to Etah to overhaul and trim for the ice. With steamer Erick, visited Eskimo settlement to secure dogs and material for equipment. Thirty-five walrus killed by party. Rejoined Roosevelt at Etah with Erick August 11th. Coaled Roosevelt from Erick. Landed coal supplies for relief of cook, who had not yet returned.

UNUSUALLY STORMY.

"Put two men in charge and sent cook's companion home disabled. Whitney will remain through the winter to hunt musk oxen and bear. Unusually storm season, but no ice yet. Snowing furiously now, plenty of it. From Littleton Island and Sabine north all depends on ice conditions beyond. Have good supply Eskimo dogs and walrus meat. All well on board. Expect to steam north some time tonight.

"PEARY."

A second dispatch forwarded by the same route was also received by Secretary Bridgeman from Captain Samuel W. Bartlett, telling of the steamer Erick having collided with an iceberg and sustaining serious damage. Captain Bartlett also reports that Peary's steamer Roosevelt left Etah August 17th.

The dispatch follows:

"Collided iceberg Monday night. Damage serious. Proceeding along shore. Roosevelt left Etah August 17th. Prospects good."

AVENUE IN ELMHURST IS BEING IMPROVED

ELMHURST, Sept. 26.—Several thousand dollars are being expended by the county and town in the improvement of Jones avenue. A force of seventy-five men with teams is now at work grading and macadamizing the highway, which has long been in need of improvement. It is estimated that the improvement will cost about $8000, half of which will be paid by the county. Other street improvements are projected and will be executed as soon as the Jones street work is completed.

FER-DON

CAUSES BIG EXCITEMENT IN OAKLAND.

Indication That His Big Success Elsewhere Will Be Duplicated Here. His Free Concerts and Demonstrations Draw Big Crowds. Cripples Made to Walk and Deaf Made to Hear.

If there ever was a man that has caused talk and excitement in Oakland, Fer-Don is that person. Never in the history of the city has there appeared a man like Fer-Don.

MADE DEAF HEAR.

Many Oakland citizens came upon the platform to test the healing power of this French scientist's great medical discoveries. Mr. Burkhart, 435 Moss avenue, had been deaf for several years, was relieved and made to hear the ticking of his watch by one application of Fer-Don's peculiar medicine.

PARALYZED BOY.

Little Charles Flusher, living at 54th and New Broadway, troubled with spinal disease and could hardly walk, was relieved after one treatment. He was able to run and jump. Thousands of people saw these demonstrations.

The show, which is held upon the large vacant lot at 19th and Broadway, will continue nightly. The lectures by the great Fer-Don are remarkable examples of the oratorical power of the man. Of imposing appearance, his dark hair lightly touched with grey, Fer-Don has the look of a man who has done many things and accomplished much along the line of his life's work. His voice is clear, and when he speaks he speaks conviction into the hearts of his hearers.

Fer-Don has traveled around the world three times in search of medical science and experts, who could control and cure diseases that have baffled the American physicians for centuries. After years of travel and experiments, also thousands of dollars expended, Fer-Don succeeded in Europe in finding just what he was looking for. After visiting the different hospitals and medical clinics in London, France, Berlin and Austria, he was able to select experts and bloodless surgeons and after engaging them on a tour of America to demonstrate their European methods of curing the sick, in New York, in Boston, in Los Angeles, in San Francisco, where Fer-Don's European Experts have been demonstrating, reports of their wonderful work have followed him. From San Jose comes reports of the LAME MADE TO WALK.

In the case of Mrs. H. A. Shelby, who lives at 248 Jones avenue, San Jose, in speaking to a newspaper reporter, Mrs. Shelby remarked: "I have been crippled for seven year—could not walk without my crutches. All physicians said my case was hopeless. I visited the European Experts when they were in San Jose and after the second treatment I walked without my crutches. I have taken several treatments from these foreign doctors and I am entirely cured. My neighbors say it is wonderful."

Fer-Don has opened up offices at 1069 Broadway, where his European Medical Experts are kept busy in the day time healing the sick and afflicted. Hundreds are calling daily.

TRUMPET TO SOUND CLOSE OF JEWISH NEW YEAR SERVICES

In Both Oakland Synagogues the Ceremonies Today Will Have Deep Historical Significance.

The blowing of the trumpet this morning in all the synagogues will close the new year services which began at sunset Friday evening in the temples about the bay cities. The ceremonies in the synagogues carried the Israelites back to the time of the prophets whose precepts have been handed down from generation to generation. Reading of the scriptures will be an important part of the services this morning. The sounding of the "shofar," or trumpet, which in ancient days was a signal of universal liberty, is one of the traditional customs which will be observed today.

IN BOTH SYNAGOGUES.

In both the First Hebrew Congregation and Beth Jacob synagogue the old form of worship will be held. In Beth Jacob synagogue no music will be heard during the services, save that of the voices of the worshipers. The ceremonies in this synagogue closely follow those of the orthodox Jews of ancient history. With the exception of the rabbi's sermon, which is spoken in English, the entire service is said in the Hebrew language.

WILL SING "SHOFAR" SONG.

An interesting part of the ceremonies in the First Hebrew synagogue will be the "Shofar Hymn," which will be sung by the choir. Sacred music, rendered by an augmented choir, will add to the impressiveness of the holiday services. The choir is composed of many prominent singers who are well known to music lovers of Oakland. Among those are Miss Charlotte McMahon, Miss Catherine McCoy, Mrs. Jo. S. Mills, Miss Mabel Gray, Mrs. Arthur Fickenscher, E. D. Crandall, H. I. Cruzan, Peter Oksen and H. W. Baldwin.

EDITOR CHAPARRAL JOINS WITH JORDON

Favors Prohibition Measures Adopted at Stanford and Burys Hatchet.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Sept. 26.—In the second issue of the Stanford Chaparral, Editor Ferry joins hands with President David Starr Jordan and comes out for the enforcement of strict prohibition. Editor Ferry also writes an article on the "Rough Necks," and says that they are the Stanford type of men and leading spirits of the college. Following are the editor's comments on the prohibition rule:

The policy of the university has been announced as strictly prohibitional, and Chappie wants to bury the hatchet and join hands with the Infant Terrible of the Squaw-ya and say that he is for prohibition, too. Now, everyone, from the higher-ups and down to the Daily Press, after having told you why you should leave the nasty stuff alone; but as usual, Chappie knows the reason why. 'Tis this; you have no other choice. 'Tis not that we love Charlie less, but we love Scollege more.

BURY THE HATCHET.

In closing, the Chaparrel editor mentions how President Jordan bewails the breach between the students and faculty and in part states the following: "Chappie would be tickled to death to see the re-establishment of the old-time comradship. It would mean no more of this damphul fear and trembling in the presence of the instructor, which has been responsible for more bitter hatred and more trouble than was ever conceived in your philosophy, Horatio. Dr. Jordan, Chappie and his friends are ready for the innoculation of good feeling. How about you, faculty?"

Following out the custom that was inaugurated by the class of 1910, the sophomore class today decided to give a cotillion December 4. It will be the only social function the class will give during the year. Beside giving a cotillion the class decided to follow tradition and stage a farce some time next semester.

PROHIBITIONISTS KEEP BUSY WITH POLITICS

600 NAMES ARE DRAWN FOR RUEF

Likely That Judge Lawlor Will Send the Sheriff for More Talesmen.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 26.—The drawing of jurors for the trial of Abe Ruef has exhausted the names in the big jury box, and in all probability Judge Lawlor will be compelled some time this week to send the Sheriff, or a specially appointed editor, out to bring in talesmen to complete the jury. Six hundred men have been drawn to secure a jury, and only six sworn jurors are waiting for the day of trial. Six more jurors must be secured, and the only names available are a venire of forty-two, a portion of which was returned today, five men ready for examination and a few jurors not yet called.

Taking the previous record made in the case as a basis, as the examination of jurors commenced August 27, it will be well into October, and possibly November, before the presentation of evidence begins. In the meantime six men are under close guard at the St. Francis hotel waiting to hear the evidence.

TO APPEAR MONDAY.

Judge Lawlor drew 642 names for the Ruef trial. Forty-tow of this number were made returnable today. Thirty of the talesmen appeared and fourteen were excused for various reasons. Sixteen will be in court Monday to supplement the five men drawn Friday and a few left-over names.

As the jury box has been exhausted, as soon as the other departments use the names they have on hand the Sheriff will be called upon to furnish jurors for civil as well as criminal cases.

McTURK IS REINSTATED BY FOOTBALL EXECUTIVE

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 26.—The executive committee of the California Football Association held a meeting last night. Fred Birdsall, the newly elected chairman, presided.

The resignation committee for the season was named and will consist of George James, F. Thorpe and D. Erskine. The members of the executive committee are: J. Fay, J. Askham, L. G. Peterson, W. Duncan and R. Ainsworth.

The case of J. McTurk, who was suspended until January 1st of next year for unseemly conduct on the football field, was reconsidered and the committee voted to restore McTurk to good standing on October 24th of this year.

In order to prevent further breaches of the rules governing rough play the committee passed a resolution that all players suspended by the committee would not be allowed to take part in any game, whether it is a league contest, cup tie or friendly contest. The committee will deal severely with any players who transgress in the future.

GROCERIES TO BE TESTED FOR PURITY

Committee of Retailers to Pass on Goods Before They Are Marketed.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 26.—Groceries offered for sale to local dealers will be inspected before being placed on the market as to their purity by a committee to be appointed by the retail grocers of San Francisco, in compliance with a resolution passed by the organization Thursday evening. In this way it is hoped to protect the members of the society from arrest for infringement of the pure food law.

At the same meeting it was decided to appeal to the police commissioners for protection from men wearing the badges of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, who have been in the habit of arresting delivery men and without informing the firms they represent, keeping their wagons and goods locked up over night, to the disappointment of customers and dealers.

The society elected the following new officers at the meeting Thursday night:

President, John F. Schomer; first vice-president, A. L. Zott; second vice-president, Malcolm Brock; treasurer, M. W. Boeken; secretary, F. B. Connolly; directors—George Golder, Anthony McCaw, James F. Irvine, P. A. Buckley, and Gus F. Lehrke.

ST. CECELIA CHORAL SOCIETY HOLDS MEETING

The first meeting of the St. Cecelia Choral Society was held in the St. Cecelia vocal studio, 1069 Broadway, Thursday afternoon, when Charles P. Hildesley was unanimously elected musical director of the society.

The society is composed of the students and outsiders from the various schools, colleges and academies in Oakland, Alameda and Berkeley, but largely from the Oakland High School. The young men and women number about fifty, and are very enthusiastic.

At the next meeting preparations and assignments will be made for the production of the opera "Priscilla," which has never before been produced in this country.

The following officers have been elected: President, Miss Nellie Barnett; vice-president, Miss Jessie Onlup; secretary, Miss Eleanor Bassett; treasurer, Miss Edith Geiger.

Scalp Specialists

Use and Recommend

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

"I am sending you my photograph to show what Newbro's Herpicide has done for me.

"Since I first tried Herpicide upon my hair I have used it exclusively in giving scalp treatments to others, and I would not think of trying to get along without it.

"(Signed) MRS. ANNA CONNER.

"2807 Archer Ave., Chicago, Ill."

Hundreds of lady scalp specialists and hair dressers use and recommend Newbro's Herpicide, instead of products of their own manufacture upon which a much large profit could be made. They claim that Herpicide makes friends for them and gives much better satisfaction. Some hair dressers use Herpicide for obsinate cases only, but why not use the best first?

Herpicide is a delightful dressing that can be used when there is no disease of the hair or scalp, and as an actual remedy for dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair it stands in a class singularly its own.

Many ladies object to a gummy and stick hair dressing, or one that is full of sedimentary chemicals intended to dye the hair. The marked preference for a clean and dainty preparation, particularly one that overcomes excessive oiliness and leaves the hair light and fluffy, is reflected in the enormous sale of Newbro's Herpicide. Discriminating ladies become enthusiastic over its refreshing quality and exquisite fragrance. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

Two sizes—50c and $1.00. At drug stores. Send 10 cents in stamps to The Herpicide Co., Department N., Detroit, Michigan, for a sample. Guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act June 30, 1906. Serial No. 915. Some druggists boast of their ability to sell substitutes to mild-mannered customers. Get Herpicide.

For sale at all drug stores. Applications at prominent barber shops.

Anecdote of Judge McFarland---Society's Bare Shoulders

THE KNAVE

Spreckels' Failure as a Union Labor "Boss" Casey Struck Out

SAN FRANCISCO, September 26.—A few stories about the late Justice McFarland have crept out here and there. He was a rugged old Californian with a turn for profanity and spoke with a touch of cynical humor at times even of those who were opposing him bitterly.

When he ran for re-election ten years ago the Examiner led a hot fight against both him and Justice Van Fleet. The latter was beaten and finally forced into a life job on the Federal bench, where he is making an exceptional success. McFarland managed to pull through, but it was a close squeak, and the campaign was more than usually acrid.

One day the Examiner came out with a charge that McFarland was not fit for the job because he was always hanging around the Occidental Hotel bar playing pedro and drinking toddies. That morning the aged jurist appeared before his colleagues with the paper in his hand and an appearance of great anger, and in a tone of tumultuous vehemence exclaimed:

"Here's an outrageous falsehood—a damned lie! This rascally paper declares that I am in the habit of hanging around the Occidental Hotel drinking toddies. It's a lie—a cursed, unmitigated lie. I haven't put sugar in my whisky for twenty-five years."

When Nat Goodwin first met the beautiful Maxine Elliott he had no notion of marrying her and even despaired of having the tall beauty in his company. On the day of their first meeting he was seated in Delmonico's old place, at Twenty-sixth street, Broadway and Fifth avenue, New York, when Edgar Murphy, the crack shot, dropped in and joined him over a drink. Murphy, a stalwart fellow, was colloquially known as "The Irish Giant," and Goodwin, as everyone knows, is undersized.

"I've had a most unusual experience this afternoon," said Goodwin, and Murphy and a companion squared away to listen, as there are few raconteurs who can equal the comedian when he cares to talk. "It was a most unusual experience. I am in search of a leading lady for next season, and a friend recommended to me a young woman on whom I called.

"She received me half reclining on a couch. As we talked she seemed the most beautiful creature I had ever seen. Our ideas agreed perfectly. In the matter of terms there was no hitch. She was eager to play in my company. I became more and more eager that she should. At last I had discovered my ideal leading lady, and I had about clinched our bargain when I rose to go.

"Well, that beautiful woman kept getting up, and getting up. She kept getting up. Then she got up some more, till she was like 'some tall cliff that lifts its awful form.' I was nearly bent double backwards, gazing up at her far away beauty.

"'Madam,' said I; 'our contract is all off. My making stage love to you would seem like Admiral Dot sparring with big Edgar Murphy."

But for all of that, the divinely tall and divinely fair young woman was his next leading lady and soon became his wife. Now she is beyond him again—getting up and getting up and getting up.

The other day George A. Knight was telling how he had sold all his cattle and was letting the deer take his Mendocino ranch, when it called to his mind an episode in Ukiah last week. A rancher was trying to draw him out on the graft prosecution and get him into an argument, but he steadily declined the issue till the farmer snapped hotly:

"Well, you know there's one law for the rich and another for the poor. That's so, now, ain't it?"

"See here, my friend," replied Knight, "do you know the Haas ranch?"

"I know every spring and every trail on it."

"How much ought that ranch to net its owner?"

"Easily $3500 to $4000 a year. That's what Smith used to make on it."

"Well, my friend, I have owned that Haas ranch for the last eight years, and I haven't been able to make it pay taxes. Which is wrong—the ranch or the man?"

"The man," promptly replied the farmer.

"Well, did it ever strike you that it is the man and not the law that is wrong," returned Knight.

"Knight needs a guardian," said J. C. Ruddock, the Ukiah Democratic leader. "He can't make that ranch pay because he's an 'agriculturist.' You know an agriculturist is a man who tries to make enough money in the city to support a farm; while a farmer is a man who tries to make enough money on a farm to support a city. The reason Knight had to sell his cattle was because he tried to set up a dairy with a herd of steers."

But though they are laughing at Knight and his ranching, he bought the property when it was 60 miles from a railroad. Now the road is ten miles from the ranch and land that cost $2 an acre is salable at $10. The Southern Pacific has a right of way through the property and is going to build. So the great orator is not such a failure as a farmer after all.

The laugh is on the Cleveland Democrats who, led by John J. Barrett, have gone over to Taft this campaign. When asked for their reason for turning their political coats they have pointed to the sacred bust of Cleveland. Then, with much piping of the eyes and many tender reminiscences, they have said:

"He was our dear leader. We follow him in death as we did in life. Did you read that last fond letter of the dear departed—the one published in the New York Times? It was like a voice from the grave. It commanded us to vote for Taft this campaign, and so we are going to do it. We heard our leader's voice and harkened unto his last words. It is a solemn trust to carry out his will and wish."

And now, after all the tears and moans and solemn protestations, it turns out that the letter was a forgery and that Cleveland didn't boost Taft after all. As the world is always ready and eager to laugh at a political turner and twister, the roar rings round.

The Republican managers thought it would be quite a fine thing to put John Barrett out on the stump this fall, as they did when Horace Platt wabbled out of the Democratic party and into the Republican fold. Barrett is one of the ablest orators in the State, and has a particular knack of rousing a political audience. So he was looked upon as a fine drawing card.

There was a suggestion that Sam Shortridge, one of the leaders of the Republican electoral ticket, should join his friend Barrett on a stumping tour, the two being boon companions. But suddenly one of the wise guys at headquarters said:

"Hold on! That will never do!"

"Why not?"

"What kind of a campaign for good government and high ideals can we make before the people with the attorney for Schmitz and the attorney for Ruef on the same platform?"

So that grand oratorical project was dropped like a hot potato. Shortridge doesn't need any oratorical help anyhow.

Now comes State Senator George B. Keane and threatens to advertise for sale on behalf of a client a judgment for $10,000 against the Metropolitan Surety Company. This is the corporation in which the late Judson C. Brusie was concerned, and there has been a great deal of feeling over the way the company hounded Brusie in his last days. So there is a tendency to tell Keane to "go to it" with all his might.

But that company is on the bonds of many of the "higher-ups," and to advertise for sale a judgment against it would cause a tremendous flutter all along the line; and perhaps Judges Dunne and Lawlor, who were friends of Jud Brusie, might insist on new sureties from all the accused. That would be a dreadful smash at the company's business on this coast.

Incidentally Mrs. Brusie has gone into the office of Paul M. Nippert, a rival surety-man, and all the old friends of her husband are rushing to place their business in her hands. Sometimes it pays to teach these eastern upstarts a lesson in decency when it comes to treating a man whose personality was about all there was to the Metropolitan's business in California.

John D. Spreckels has been put in the somewhat ludicrous position of suing the Citizens' Alliance for $35 It is the amount of a bill for advertising in the moribund Call. To be sure John D. has been acting with the machine in San Diego politics, while the Call has been doing the political dirty work of John D.'s despised brother, Rudolph. But it is John D. who has his name used in this suit, though the rumors grow that he is soon to take back his decrepit paper and make another spasmodic effort to put it on its feet.

There is a funny story connected with that advertising bill and the suit over it. The Citizens' Alliance didn't have any more sense than to advertise in the Call and sent to that fading publication some matter that it wished to get before the public.

The alleged management of the paper didn't like the policy of the advertisement and so deliberately changed it without asking permission. The Alliance managers were greatly surprised to see in the paper a splendid laudation of James D. Phelan that they were expected to pay for. As that was about the last thing in the world they expected to pay money for they refused to meet the bill. After correspondence that used up about $35 worth of stationery the suit was brought. The Alliance will fight.

There is a general dissatisfaction with the exterior appearance of the new Palace Hotel, now that the walls are up. You hear comment everywhere that it does not compare in beauty with the First National Bank building across the street; with the Phelan building, the Alaska Commercial building, or with half a dozen other structures, including the Fairmont and St. Francis.

Now, the new Palace is the product of eastern architects, while the other buildings mentioned were designed by our own men. The opinion is gaining ground that builders are fools to go abroad for their architects when we have right here men like Clarence Ward, Willis Polk, Albert Pissis, the Reids, Curlett and Bliss. The work of these men wins the wonder and admiration of their brethren in all the cities of the world, and just why it was necessary to go to New York for an inferior design for the new Palace will remain one of the mysteries as long as the buildings shall stand that are now compared with it to its manifest disadvantage.

By the way, the new Palace is not to be ready for occupancy until one year from the first of next November.

Beardslee of Stockton will not be Speaker of the next Assembly if I am correctly informed. Beardslee will be re-elected all right, but the Speaker's gavel has been promised to another lady—Phil M. Stanton of Los Angeles. I don't know that Beardslee expects to rule the Assembly again, but he's not to get the job, anyway.

Stanton has served two terms in the Assembly, having been chairman of the Ways and Means Committee during the session of 1905. He was ostensibly a Pardee man in 1906, and somehow turned up on the Gillett band wagon, along with all the other fellows Pardee had depended on to deliver the Los Angeles vote. Pardee got barely a smell out of the orange groves, now Stanton is to be made Speaker. It's queer how things turn out.

The present indications are that Judge Frank Dunne will have to make his fight for re-election with Judge John Hunt as his immediate opponent. Hunt is the only one of the Republican quartet of nominees for the ing judicial terms who was not indorsed by the Union Labor convention. This would seem to leave him short of many of the 3000 to 6000 votes that will be cast by that organization and consequently the low man on the Republican judicial ticket whom Judge Dunne will have to defeat at the polls in order to secure his own election.

The failure of Dunne to make a better showing in the Union Labor convention is a subject of much remark. It was current rumor in and about the convention that Tom Egan was forced to place Dunne in nomination under penalty of losing his office as Commissioner of Public Works. Among the delegates to the labor convention were at least fifty employes of the Board of Public Works, supposedly controlled by Michael Casey, the president of that commission, and yet Dunne, on a secret ballot, received but sixteen votes in the assembly.

It was understood that Casey controlled the labor convention and the questions now being asked are, did he give the Spreckels-Taylor municipal combination the double cross, or did some one other than Casey have first say with the delegates?

Casey has been using the Board of Works almost solely for the purpose of building up a political machine, and yet the first time his organization is called on to nominate one of the graft prosecution's Judges he is unable to deliver the goods. Civil service and other laws have been violated, or avoided, in order that Casey might do politics. It is estimated that over 300 men are employed by the Works Department in violation of the civil service rules, and yet Casey has not been able to make good to Spreckels. As all men are either slave or enemy to the would-be reform boss, it is now said that Casey will have to go. Rudolph wants Casey's scalp and his fact ptum, Mayor Taylor, will probably lift the political hair of the head of the Works Commission and present the auburn growth to Spreckels.

Already they have begun to "trim" Michael Casey and he was shorn of some of his special privileges to violate the civil service rules almost the day after the session of the convention at which he failed to nominate Dunne. The Civil Service Commission, which is controlled by Spreckels et al. through Mayor Taylor, notified Michael that no longer might he appoint men on his own motion when there were eligibles on the civil service list. The San Francisco Democratic Club, otherwise known as the "bolters," and of which Mayor Taylor is a member, is credited with making a little inspired disturbance and trouble for Casey.

Another head which is not regarded as over secure is that of former Police Commissioner Haggerty, for whom Casey created the special job of "Inspector of Watering Troughs" at a salary of $150 a month. Haggerty opposed the nomination of Dunne and his political head is now due to fall into the Spreckels basket.

It appears that the introduction of Dunne's name in the Republican local convention as a candidate for Superior Judge was not because the Lincoln-Roosevelt Leaguers of the minority wanted him for Judge or were favorable to his candidacy for that office, but because they wished some one else. The consensus of opinion among the leaguers was that Dunne "is not fit to sit on the bench," but they had a candidate in Sheldon G. Kellogg, whom they thought was finely equipped for that office. They wanted one Superior Judge out of the four, and claimed the right to nominate him on the grounds of harmony, and when they were refused they presented the name of Dunne out of spite and believing that it would be most obnoxious to the regular organization. It was a little political horseplay and if Judge Dunne can get any gratification out of it there must be as many errors in his political judgment as there have been in his judicial rulings.

In the Fifth Congressional District both the candidates for Congress are Union Labor men. E. A. Hayes is a member of the Typographical Union and carries his union card in his pocket. He learned to "stick type" back in Indiana when he was sixteen years of age and subsequently voted for, set the type and published a country newspaper.

George Tracy, the Democratic and Union Labor nominee, is also a member of the Typographical Union and president of the State Federation of Labor. Tracy was once president of the Typographical Union of Washington, D. C. But he is not popular now with the members of that organization, and if they lived in the Fifth District they would not vote for their one time president for Congress. The reasons for Tracy's lack of popularity among his fellow craftsmen in Washington will probably play its part in the campaign for Congress in the Fifth District.

The Hetch Hetchy water job is passing up the flume. All that appears to be left of it is an effort of the Supervisors, as the representatives of the originators of the scheme, to get the people to vote them $750,000 more for additional "preliminaries." Of this $750,000, approximately $120,000 is scheduled for "contingencies, fees, etc.," while the remainder of the large sum is alleged to be wanted for the purchase of Lake Eleanor, and Hetch Hetchy lands and rights of way. As James D. Phelan was at one time supposed to have secured for the city options on some, if not all these lands, it might not be uninteresting if the "engineers" and "experts" who have been fattening on this job would explain why the citizens should be called upon to pay $750,000 to some one else for them now. Possibly this $750,000 is to be paid as a premium to John Hays Hammond and Ham Hall, who are said to be not only the successors to Phelan's options, but personal and business friends of Billy Bourn, the new President of Spring Valley.

The story is going the rounds of financial and industrial circles that even James D. Phelan himself is tired of this political brat he fathered so long. Phelan sees that should the scheme, by any chance, be carried through, it would only reflect discredit on him and he has withdrawn from active support of the job the philanthropic pool threatened to perpetrate on San Francisco. In fact, Phelan and his associates, including some of the local newspapers that were in the pool, have practically abandoned the Hetch Hetchy delusion and some of the water scheme promoters are now maneuvering for a new position and are willing to take up any water proposition that they think may bring fish to their nets. What they will next attempt to do for the dear people in relation to a water supply for San Francisco will depend wholly upon what there is in it for themselves.

That the taxpayers will vote the junketing Supervisors $750,000 more to be expended in excursions, fees, for partisan engineers and similar petty graft is doubtful.

While the Republican platforms, State and municipal, contain no reference to the race-track issue, which has caused many to conclude that organization is in favor of or indorses the racing game as it has been played throughout the State, I have been told by party leaders, in a position to know whereof they speak, that such is not the situation.

Candidates and nominees for the Legislature have been told that wherever their constituents are opposed to race-track gambling and seek to commit the candidates on that subject, the latter are at full liberty to pledge themselves to work for the passage of legislation to that end, or in so far as the party organization is concerned, to take any position in that relation that their best judgment and interest may dictate.

Here in San Francisco the race-track people started out to make their fight in the Lincoln-Roosevelt League of Rudolph Spreckels, and it looks as though they were still at it with that movement as their political agent. That bright and shining political light, Senator Dick Welsh, is credited with being one of their particular stars in training for special performances at Sacramento.

At the last session of the Republican local convention, a delegate in the league camp presented an anti-racetrack resolution. In pursuance of the rules of the convention the resolution was referred to the Committee on Rules and there allowed to sleep, notwithstanding the league had 65 members in the assembly, until the convention adjourned sine die.

The introduction of this resolution by the leaguers was purely a bluff on the part of that band of hypocrites, for had they made the slightest effort to recall it from the committee the convention would have taken up the resolution and adopted it by the votes of the organization delegates. The only reason a similar plank had not been placed in the platform by the regular organization was that it had been overlooked by the committee on platform.

Similar conditions are reported to exist in the southern part of the State, the Lincoln-Roosevelt League being the champions of the rack-track propaganda.

The word is out that the lid is to be removed from Chinatown and open gambling on the graft basis permitted once more. Gambling by both whites and Chinese has been allowed throughout the city, other than in the Chinese quarters, for some time. These special privileges to violate the law have had times of temporary suspension, but as a rule a man who wished to could find almost any game from craps to faro. On the south side there have been about twenty lottery agencies in full swing for some time, presumably in consideration of the payment of $60 each a week to representatives of the Police Department. Similar conditions have obtained in other portions of the city. Now it is proposed to throw Chinatown wide open and there will be prosperous times and financial accumulation by both the gamblers and those who give them protection.

The system of rebating rents in office buildings, long in vogue in New York, has been introduced in this city. In order to keep their buildings up to a desired standard of revenue—on paper at least—the owners charge a certain specified rental per month the whole year round, but collect for only nine or ten months, in accordance with the agreement. But give the tenants receipts in full for twelve months' rent.

This is known in New York as the rent rebating system and it is said that without its practice many of the large office buildings could not make a good showing of occupants. The system has but recently been introduced here and time will tell whether the experiment is successful or not.

There was a bit of a flurry in political and graft circles the other day because of a report that former Mayor Eugene E. Schmitz was to resume his baton and act as leader of the orchestra in the new Valencia Theater. The facts are that Schmitz was made a most flattering offer to resume his former calling of orchestra leader, but declined on the ground that too much notoriety would accompany it and for the present he wishes to keep out of the limelight.

Schmitz is still engaged in the insurance business with his younger brother and is reported to be doing fairly well and at least making a good living at it. For the present at least, in so far as public performances go, Schmitz has laid aside the fiddle and the bow.

The fact that District Attorney Langdon has been employing minors in his office who have devoted their efforts to tampering with jurors has not met with the approval of the taxpayers. The charter contemplates that the employes of the city be citizens which carries with it the condition that they be of age. But since the city government has been turned over to the "new grafters," the charter has been practically ignored in its various provisions.

Charles Oliver Jr., one of the squad of Gumshoe Burns' private detectives who were employed by Langdon on an appropriation of $70,000 made by the Spreckels Supervisors for spy work, swore that he was but nineteen years of age, when as a representative of the District Attorney's office he officially tampered with jurors under orders.

Possibly it was because of his youth that Judge Lawlor sentenced Oliver to serve but two days for his offense. Still the taxpayers are wondering why they should be called upon to pay salaries to jury fixers, even under the name of Burns' detectives and holding authority by reason of their official connection with the District Attorney's office.

This same jury tampering youth was sworn in as a special police officer, in further violation of the provisions of the charter, which appears to be known to the "new grafters" only in the breach instead of the observance.

There are those who are speculating as to what one of Gumshoe's older and more experienced pupils in the District Attorney's gang might accomplish in the cause of reform, if an amateur, only nineteen years of age, could tamper with two or more jurors in one day. If civic virtue as typified by young Oliver is rewarded with two days in the County Jail what sentence should be meted out to the purifiers who gave him his orders after hiring him for the purpose of corrupting the jury system or doing any other vile work they might deem necessary to the accomplishment of their purposes of greed and revenge?

It is but fair to District Attorney Langdon to state that after young Oliver got caught he promptly discharged him.

Registration of voters in this city has fallen off nearly 3,000 during the past year and 6,000 in the past four years as indicated by the recent recording of electors. The registration this year was approximately 75,000, as against 78,900 in 1907 and 81,300 in 1904.

Disappointing, even humiliating as it may be to the pride of San Francisco, the shrinkage in registration in this city means a corresponding decrease of population. One does not have far to look for the cause of it all. It is the reform administration now in charge of the municipal government, and the influences that dominate it. After the excitement and feverish fright that followed the fire of April, 1906, had subsided the people began to flock back to San Francisco.

But what did they encounter? High taxes, increased gas rates, almost prohibitive insurance rates, caused by a lack of water for fire protection, the foisting upon the city of the prosecution's private band of grafting detectives, an expensive rat crusade, including experiments with tagged rodents, a general mal-administration of local affairs mainly conspicuous for incompetence or corruption, or both.

The people rebelled and sought homes elsewhere. Many workingmen have built homes of their own down the peninsula, between this city and San Jose. Just across the county line, in San Mateo, there are settlements of laborers and mechanics which are said to contain between 2,000 and 3,000 voters. The people, instead of paying the high rentals charged in San Francisco, have gone to the suburbs and are now paying for their little homes on the installment plan.

Farther down the peninsula similar conditions prevail. At Burlingame and other points well to-do people having occupations in San Francisco have made their homes. The same conditions obtain in Oakland, Alameda, Berkeley and other transbay points, all of which have largely increased their registration.

The city is at the mercy of an administration which under the false cry of reform has permitted greater graft than was ever dreamt of by those two worthies, Ruef and Schmitz. The official dawdling with the water question in criminal. The Spring Valley Water Company has notified the citizens in almost direct terms that unless it is paid $52,000,000 for its works, or twice what they are worth, it will cease to furnish sufficient water for fire protection and permit the city to burn down or up, they do not care which. Within a few days the water company has refused to set some fire hydrants much needed for protection.

Notwithstanding these menacing conditions the officials do nothing practical toward furnishing the city with a salt water auxiliary system for extinguishing fires, but devote their efforts to monkeying with a chimerical scheme called the Hetch Hetchy, the purpose of which course is seemingly to divert public attention and delay, if not prevent, any genuine competitor of Spring Valley securing a foothold in San Francisco.

The citizens of San Francisco are indeed a patient people. Ever since Supervisor Tom Lonergan made his confession to the prosecution sitting in bank, and that confession was manipulated into a prearranged "trapping" of that official, and distorted testimony was collusively introduced in that connection, the atmosphere of some of the trial courts of this city has been fetid with perjury, subornation of perjury and jury tampering. The trapping of Lonergan was a fake pure and simple and was arranged to furnish him an excuse for "squealing" against his fellow Supervisors which he had previously done. Yet sworn officers of the law sat in court and permitted this distorted testimony to go to the jury, not alone without protest but with their collusive assistance.

The same conditions were substantially repeated in the Schmitz trial when the Ruef immunity contract which was practically in the pocket of the prosecution was concealed from the jury. The oath to "tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth" has been violated so many times that it is well said that more and greater crimes have been committed in the name of Justice and The People than were ever dreamt of by the defendants, Ruef and Schmitz.

So notorious have these conditions become that San Francisco is being avoided by people of the East and abroad who might otherwise be expected to live and invest their capital here, and thousands of those who have been living here are seeking homes elsewhere.

The ladies of the smart set—or some of them at least—are reveling in a free display of shoulders, necks and busts. Some of the new gowns are amazing in their frankness. They don't leave much to guess at.

They are cut as low in the back as in the front, and are held in place by strips of cloth not much wider than suspenders. This fashion allows women with shapely backs to make up for lack of front elevation in doing the show window stunt in the "hupper suckles."

I observed a bunch of the haut monde at the theater the other evening, as they sat in a box, and they looked very much as if they were rising from a bath tub. Well, they may be overlooked, but are sure not to pass unnoticed. THE KNAVE.

ISLE CITY HIGH TEAM BEATS LOWELL ELEVEN

ALAMEDA, Sept 26 The Alameda High School football team defeated the team of the Lowell High school this morning by a score of 10 to 6

One of the features was the spectacular run of Jero Isshmura near the close of the game Isshmura plays right half on the Lowell team

The Alameda team had worked the ball close to the goal line In some way Alameda lost possession of the ball and before the participants in the scrimmage were aware that he had lost it the Japanese had nearly gained the goal Alameda gave tardy chase, but was unsuccessful

CZARINA IS IN POOR HEALTH

RUSSIAN PEOPLE ARE IN IGNORANCE OF IT

Policemen Will Remove the Hats of Women Which Obstruct Anyone's View in the Parisian Theaters.

BY PAUL VILLIERS.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—The ladies of Paris are furious over an order just issued by the prefect of police, which says:

"No person may obstruct the view of any spectator during a public performance, and if so offending shall be compelled to remove the obstruction by the policeman on duty."

The word "obstruction" obviously applies to ladies' hats and most of the theatrical managers greet it with delight. Henceforth the arm of the law may be called in to remove an obstructing hat and relieve the odium of being rude to the ladies; one may lay all the blame on the superior authorities. But while we may no longer have hats in front of us we shall certainly have scenes, the latter accompanying the removal of the former. The taking off of a hat from a lady's head by the brawny arm of a municipal guard will not be a spectacle without incident, crisis and denouement.

Dispatches from St. Petersburg announce that the czarina's condition gives cause of great alarm and the French greatly sympathize with Czar Nicholas, who has always been very popular here ever since his last visit because of his amiable personality. The Russian public are held in ignorance of the grave condition of her majesty, but in court circles no attempt is made to conceal the fact that a crisis is feared.

Inability to take outdoor exercise has greatly weakened the empress, but the real cause of her alarming condition is the terror inspired by the tragic events of the past five years. In order to arouse the czarina from the languid state into which she has fallen, the most celebrated physicians have advised her to make a stay of several months abroad, but with courageous obstainey she refuses to leave the czar, whose perils she is inclined to exaggerate.

AMERICAN BARON SHIPS AN OLD CHATEAU

Rented the Place, Paid Nothing and Took the Best.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 26.—An American "baron" has achieved one of the most striking coups ever made in Belgium. For several days he lived in an historic chateau near Alost, enjoying its luxuries and its sport at the expense of others, and then disappeared with all the portable valuables he could carry.

The mansion was for sale, and the owner, who mostly lives in the south of France, entrusted a bailiff with the disposal of the property. Inquiries were made by an American calling himself Baron Henry Jackson, who said he would buy the chateau, and requested the bailiff to send for his employer so that the deal might be ratified.

The "baron" and his nephew then took up their quarters in the chateau, ordered wines and spirits, horses and carriages, and shot over the game preserves, buying new guns for the purpose. Posing as the proprietors of the chateau they obtained everything on credit.

Then, when the arrival of the landlord was imminent, the pair disappeared and the chateau is still in the market.

BIBLE TRANSLATED INTO 412 TONGUES

Remarkable Statistics Which Have Been Collected by the British Museum.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—Interesting details of the progress made by the Bible among savage heathen tribes all over the world are provided in the annual report of the British and foreign Bible society.

The society has published the scriptures, or portions of them, in no fewer than 412 languages, and is always adding to the number. During the past year sections of the Bible have been printed in Lengua, a language spoken by the Indians of the Paraguayan Chaco; in Lu-Nyankole, the tongue of a tribe inhabiting the region southwest of Uganda, and in Hindu-sindhi, a dialect current among the Hindu inhabitants of Sindhi.

During the year 5,688,381 volumes have been issued by the society including 864,247 complete Bibles, 1,736,505 New Testaments and 3,687,569 portions of the scriptures. These volumes are distributed among the natives of many various wild countries by an army of coteporteurs who frequently meet with strange and exciting adventures, some of which are narrated in the society's report.

Doctors Duel In Budapest

BUDAPEST, Sept. 26.—A duel due to a slighting remark about a long-dead king, has been fought by Doctor Arkay and Doctor Benedek, the latter a well-known member of Parliament. Doctor Arkay, who was the challenger, received a severe wound in the head with a Turkish sabre.

The affair of honor was due to a casual remark on the part of the deputy, who characterized King Stephan of Hungary "an old fool and thief." Dr. Arkay resented this act of posthumus lese majesto—Stephan was crowned king of Hungary A. D. 1000—and the challenge followed.

AMERICAN GIRL WINS EARL OF GRANARD

He Is Very Poor But Serious Minded and Full of Ambition.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—Everyone here expects very soon the announcement of the engagement of the Earl of Granard to Miss Beatrice Mills. Lord Granard is very poor, but he is a serious minded young man with political aspirations, and by a sequence of remarkably lucky episodes he holds the high position of master of horse at King Edward's court. This, of course, is a government position, and Granard succeeded to it when the Earl of Sefton quarreled with the liberal party last year. Granard was a guard, three years ago, when the premier, Bannerman was at his wits end to find among the few radical peers men eligible for the posts at court that must be given to the house of lords.

Granard's brother officers, knowing his radical sympathies, thought they would have a joke with him by writing to Campbell Bannerman, asking for a government post.

To their intense surprise Granard got a letter from the premier asking him to call. He went, wondering what on earth was the matter, and was offered the post of master of the horse.

American Buys Wonderful Clock

LONDON, Sept. 26.—A wonderful clock, destined for an American millionaire's home, is now on view at the Franco-British exposition. Costing nearly $10,000, the clock has taken eighteen men four years to construct.

Standing twelve feet high, it is an exact reproduction of the great seventy-foot clock tower in the square of St. Mark at Venice. The four stories of the tower in the model, as in the original, are constructed of solid white marble, which has panels of colored Carrara marble and mosaic of gold.

REVIVAL IN LONDON OF WEARING EARRINGS

LONDON, Sept. 26.—The revival of the fashion of wearing earrings has filled the souls of jewelers with delight and at several west end houses it is stated that the trade in this item of feminine adornment constitutes the bulk of the business. Many women are wearing earrings with jewels whose hues best go with the color of the dress being worn, but diamonds, of course, are the favorite stones. Pearls are the next in demand, and there is almost a craze for black pearls.

Perhaps the most fashionable of all the styles is an earring nearly an inch and a half in length, but of such delicate workmanship that there is no suggestion of heaviness. A favorite design is formed of four small pearls set in a slender gold chain. Another consists of diamonds suspended from a thin chain with a single diamond fitting into the lobe of the ear.

A cluster of diamonds in the form of a flower is another pretty notion while another is fashioned like a leaf.

POWER OF RADIUM GREATLY OVERRATED

LONDON, Sept. 26.—The Times gives some prominence to the protest of an anonymous scientific writer against the recent description of the magic power of radium in transmuting metals. He asserts the powers of radium have been vastly overrated. Speculation on the most slender basis of fact, he says, has played far too great part in the inquiries. The nature of the substances supposedly formed by its transmuting agency, he asserts, has been the product of an unbridled fertile fancy and not any chemical change.

JILTED GIRL KILLS LOVER

German Lieutenant Murdered by Girl He Had Deceived and Forsaken.

Tired of Her Love When He Met Another--She So Carefully Planned Killing it Was at First Thought to be Case of Suicide.

By MALCOLM CLARK.

BERLIN, Sept. 26.—A couple of days ago Lieutenant Kurt Haensch, of the Fourteenth Infantry, was found lying dead in his bedroom at Bromberg, in eastern Prussia, beneath the body of a girl with whom he was known to have been on intimate terms.

It was at first supposed to be a case of double suicide, but subsequent information shows that the affair was of a more remarkable nature.

The girl, Martha Elchgrun, who was 26 years of age, and the daughter of a gendarme, had been the mistress of the young officer for five years and was attached to him by a passion of the most ardent and jealous nature. Her parents, after in vain having tried to make her give up the liaison, had cast her off.

LOVED ANOTHER.

A few months ago the lieutenant made the acquaintance of a girl of his own class, who, he thought, would be a more suitable partner for life, and with the object of carrying out this idea he prepared to cut himself adrift from his mistress. Anxious to spare the girl's feelings, he tried under various pretexts to induce her to take up some form of work, but she declared she would kill him rather than he should belong to another.

At last it was impossible to conceal the truth from her any longer, and as soon as she learned it she proceeded in the most deliberate manner to put into execution her threats.

BOUGHT A REVOLVER.

She sold all she had, and having bought a revolver and a wedding ring with the proceeds, she set aside what remained to cover her funeral expenses. She then put on her best clothes and waited outside the officers' casino till Lieutenant Haensch should return to his quarters.

It was already morning before he appeared. She followed him home at a safe distance and waited till she thought he would be asleep. Then she entered the house with a duplicate latchkey he had given her. Stealing up to the bedside she fired a bullet into his head killing him instantly. Not satisfied that she had achieved the first part of her purpose, she discharged two more shots into his heart.

WROTE OF HER DEED.

She next hunted up the love letters she had written him and arranged them in order, after which she wrote letters explaining the grounds of her action and asking that she might be buried in the clothes she was wearing. She then slipped the wedding ring on her finger, and, leaning over the prostrate body of her lover, fired a bullet into her own heart.

CHINESE DIPLOMAT PORTRAYS KAISER

BERLIN, Sept. 26.—An interesting Chinese view of the Kaiser has been published in the Pekin Gazette from the pen of Yu Shihmei, the Chinese statesman who was sent to Europe on a special mission to report on the different forms of constitutional government.

Yu Shihmei was received by the Kaiser, and in describing the audience and the impressions the great German war lord made upon him he says:

"The German emperor entered by the upper left-hand door, and faced northeast, standing sideways.

DESCRIBES VISIT.

"I reverently handed in my credentials, which the German emperor, raising his hand, took over in person, respectfully inquiring after the health of the empress dowager and the emperor. I deferentially assured him as to their welfare, and then in accordance with practice proceeded to read my formal address, which the interpreters at once rendered into German. The German emperor, in his reply, said (in general terms) that he would be very pleased to aid where he could in the object of my inquiries, but that constitutional questions were always of a very complex nature.

"The emperor is some fifty years of age and of middle height. He has a yellowish-red tinge, and the ends of his moustache turn upwards. The expression of his face is remarkably alert, and his gait is very active. He can undergo a great deal of hard work.

"The whole dominion of Germany is about the size of one large Chinese province—say, two small ones, somewhere about the extent of one of our Viceroy's jurisdiction; yet it stands forth prominently as one of the great powers of the five continents, while the German emperor himself is especially noted in Western Europe for his masculine abilities and great political capacity.

"In his capacity for undergoing toil he is like a soldier, while in his demeanor to visitors he may be compared to an ordinary gentleman; he hardly puts on as much pomp and ceremony as does one of our viceroys when moving about within his own jurisdiction; but, on the other hand, it is impossible quite to force comparisons in the case of customs so different as those of China and Europe."

The "facing northeast" described at the reception, adds the translator, seems to be a delicate but furtive hint that (like all vassals) the German emperor did distant homage to the Emperor of China.

THE PRINCE IS TOO FAT

BOLD COUNTESS WEDS PEASANT SHE LOVED

Angry Parent Applied to the Courts to Prevent Marriage --Died During Trial and Affair Has Ended Happily.

BY MALCOM CLARKE.

BERLIN, Sept. 26.—Finding himself growing into a "mountain of fat," as he expresses himself, Prince Eitel Freiderick of Prussia, the Kaiser's second son, has undertaken a novel cure, of which he has just finished the first stage.

For several weeks he has been living the life of a common day laborer at his summer residence, Ingenheim Castle, near Charlottenburg, where from morning till night he engaged in the most strenuous physical work. From 5 to 7 hours a day of gardening, tree felling, cutting hedges, sawing wood, carpentry and the building of sheds have made up his daily program.

STRENUOUS REMEDIES.

He has been taking an especially active part in building a new riding school, and dressed in jumper and overalls, wielded a hammer and saw for two weeks.

This work was going on during very hot weather, but remonstrances by Princess Eito, Frederich were disregarded.

In addition to manual labor the prince takes hard horseback exercise very early in the morning, on which trips his wife is his constant companion. The prince is 25 years old and though of tall, soldiery figure, has been growing very stout during the past two years.

LOVED A PEASANT.

A love affair of the true old-fashioned kind had its climax the other day at Budapest, in Hungary, when, before a civic judge, Countess Henrietta Pongracz, only daughter of an old aristocratic family belonging to the most ancient nobility of Hungary, was married to a peasant named Johann Ondrasik.

The love affair began last spring, when the 16-year-old countess formed an attachment for young Ondrasik, a peasant lad working in the fields of her father's estate.

Her father, Count Edward Pongracz, was furious when he discovered that his daughter loved the farm laborer and promptly sent her to a convent school.

The countess escaped soon afterward and joined her lover and the couple made their home in a miserable hut just outside the gates of Count Edwards' castle.

FATHER GOES TO COURT.

The infuriated father then appealed to the Hungarian court of guardians to exercise their authority over his daughter, as she was a minor, and the judge ordered the countess to be arrested and placed in a reformatory in Budapest.

Her lover retained a lawyer, who fought the order and appealed to the ministry of the interior.

Meanwhile Count Edward had died, leaving his daughter unforgiven and practically penniless, the bulk of his fortune going to his son, Count Johann Pongracz. The countess' mother, a woman of middle class birth, at last yielded to her daughter's entreaties to consent to their marriage, which was then celebrated on Tuesday.

The young countess has now begun legal proceedings against her brother, from whom she claims half of her father's estate.

Rich Foreigners Can Buy Invitations

BERLIN, Sept. 26.—A society paper publishes the following card: "Rich foreigners, either ladies or gentlemen, unmarried or widowed, can have cards of invitation for the most exclusive receptions of the Berlin West End, where they will have occasion to meet with aristocrats, men and women of different ages, matrimonially inclined. References will be furnished. Discretion on both sides is a matter of personal honor."

LITTLE SUPPORT THAT JESUS WAS NOT A JEW

LONDON, Sept. 26.—Professor Paul Haupt's theory that Jesus was not a Jew, but an Aryan, furnishes the sensational feature of the congress of religions, which met in Oxford this week, but obtained no greater support than it received when previously advanced in Berlin and Copenhagen.

In the discussion which followed the reading of the Baltimorean professor's paper, Dr. Gastser pertinently said that if there had been any taint of proselyte's blood in Jesus there would have been no hesitation on the part of the Jews in repudiating the claim of Jesus to be of royal descent. They made all sorts of accusations against him at the time of the crucifixion, but none that he was of foreign descent.

PLAN FOR REFORM OF HOUSE OF LORDS

LONDON, Sept. 26.—The Express says a majority of the House of Lords committee, of which Lord Rosebery is chairman which for months has been considering reform of the upper house, has decided to recommend a scheme of popularizing and strengthening that body by the addition of an eminent representative of the Commoners who may be elected in the duration of any Parliament and who may be eligible for re-election when that Parliament is dissolved.

BOY DESPERADO WANTS TO COME TO AMERICA

Tries to Get Morphine at Point of Revolver and Gets Six Years in Prison.

(By PAUL VILLIERS.)

PARIS, Sept. 26.—"When I leave the penitentiary in six years, I am going to the United States, where they give a boy like me a chance to do things," said fifteen-year-old Andre Binay to the judge who sentenced him to remain in jail until he shall be twenty-one.

The attempted victim of the precocious lad was Dr. Tremoliere, living near St. Lazara railroad station. The doctor was in his office when the affair happened, and he says: "My servant was out and my wife was playing the piano in the parlor. The bell rang and I went to open the door. A boy came in and said he had a message for me from an American gentleman living at the Grand Hotel named Mr. Lawrence. I asked the boy to come in and sit down.

"Suddenly he drew a revolver, pointed it at me and said, 'Hands up! Don't move or make a noise or I shoot.' Taking him to be a maniac, I threw up my hands. 'Speak calm and tell me what you want.'

"'I want a bottle of chloroform for Mr. Lawrence.'

"'I have not any, I have only morphine,' I replied, and made a move as if to go and get the morphine.

"'Don't move or I shoot,' the boy shouted."

At this moment the doctor's wife entered, holding a revolver, with which she covered the boy, who ran downstairs into the arms of a policeman who, seeing the revolver he still held, arrested him.

"When he was searched, two loaded revolvers, a bowie knife, a black mask, and a book, containing a number of addresses of Americans staying at various hotels, were found on Binay's person.

In court the boy said: "I went to the doctor's because Mr. Lawrence promised me a million francs if I would get him a bottle of chloroform." The court took the humane view that the boy's mind had been unhinged by much reading of dime novels, and sent him to a penitentiary for six years to restore his mental balance.

Pope to Preside Over Vatican Games

ROME, Sept. 26.—Pope Pius X is to preside at a great sports carnival in the Vatican grounds, organized as one of the events to celebrate his jubilee. It will be an interesting athletic meeting, practically an "Olympaid" for Catholics.

The arena will be in the famous Belvedere court, which holds about 20,000 people, and is being converted into one of the finest "stadiums" in the world. The Pope, who has always given great encouragement to "Muscular Christianity" will witness the games from a luxurious bower large enough to accommodate the cardinals and other high church dignitaries.

FROM STAGE UP TO THE PEERAGE

ANOTHER GIBSON GIRL LANDS THE TITLE

Gossip of Some Recent Sensational Marriages in London, as Told by Lady Somerset.

(BY LADY HENRY SOMERSET.)

LONDON, Sept. 26.—Once more the stage has provided a bride, in the person of Miss Sylvia Storey to a member of the peerage, and one of the last of the band of the so-called Gibson girls who were celebrated for their beauty.

The bridal party numbered six, and must have looked more like the small band gathered to witness the marriage of an artisan who has a day's holiday for the occasion than the fashionable marriage which usually takes place in St. James' Church, Piccadilly.

Some time ago the claim of the Earldom of Poulett was disputed by William Turner Thomas, known in the streets of London as an organ grinder, who used to ply his trade with a large card hung in front of his instrument with the inscription, "Viscount Hinton." The organ grinder's claim, however, was investigated by the House of Lords and rejected.

PEERAGE AND STAGE.

The interest, however, of such a wedding does not so much rest on the fact that an actress has become a countess as on the strange change which has taken place with regard to the peerage and the stage. When in 1831 the Earl of Harrington married Maria Foote and the fifth Earl of Essex in 1838 married Kitty Stevens, the original of "Pretty Polly Perkins of Paddington Green," these marriages were very rare, but since the nineties they are becoming very constant, and we have Lord Orkney, Lord Francis Hope, Lord Clonmel, Lord Headfort, Lord Rosslyn, Lord De Clifford, Lord Ashburton, Lord Aberdare and the Hon. J. Yarde Buller all allied to ladies from the stage.

NO LONGER A GULF.

I think that the solution is not far to find. Between the point of view of the manners and the dress of the actress and of the lady of the great world there used to be an impassable gulf.

Between the manners, the dress and the mode of thinking of a lady of the "smart set" and the actress today there is no perceptible difference, except possibly that the balance of morals is on the side of the actress.

Among the marriages which have caused a surprise, no secret has been more carefully guarded and no matrimonial alliance has ever caused more amazement than the alliance between Mrs. Marshall Field and Mr. Maldwin Drummond.

INFORMALLY ANNOUNCED.

Not even her most intimate friends had an idea that the marriage was arranged, and only when she sat at her luncheon table after the ceremony with her husband and the best man did she pencil a little note to an intimate friend, and as she left the room gave her the information that she had just been married.

I think most people will congratulate the lady on her sense, for the interest aroused by the marriage of a woman who owns millions from the fact that her vast wealth can be neither gratifying nor convenient, and consequently this quiet and unassuming ceremony points to much good taste and, if I may add, good feeling.

ANENT GENERAL BOOTH.

That great old man, General Booth, has left a notable message before setting sail for South Africa, and, Pope that he is, has left word that this encyclical "was to be read in all places of worship where the army assembles, without any comment."

In it General Booth declares his firm faith in the equality of woman with man, in the value of her gifts and the extent of her influence. "I insist," he says, "on woman's equality." Every officer and soldier should hold to it that woman is as important, as valuable, as capable and as necessary to the progress and happiness of the world as man.

Unfortunately a large number of people of every class think otherwise.

IMPORTANCE OF WOMAN.

They still cling to the notion of bygone ages that, as a being, woman is inferior. Oftentimes she is treated with less consideration as to health and comfort than the horses that run in omnibuses, or beasts that are fattening for slaughter. The Salvation Army has done and is doing something to combat these hideous heathen notions.

He then goes on to detail how as the work of God woman has been placed on an equality with man in the army. "I do not say," he continues, "that every individual faculty of woman is equal to the corresponding faculty in man, any more than I would say that each particular capacity possessed by man is equal to the same in woman.

"They differ both in character and degree, but where one is weaker the other is stronger," and he concludes by saying, "Let us then determine to pay woman more regard in the position assigned to her by the providence of God, as a wife, as a mother, as a daughter and as a comrade in the Salvation Army."

Give Taft a Fair Show.

Immediately prior to the publicity given by William R. Hearst to the Archbold-Foraker correspondence the Chicago Daily News, an ardent supporter of Judge Taft and a consistent advocate of the Roosevelt policies, printed the following trenchant editorial:

"The time has come for Mr. Taft to demonstrate that he has fighting blood. The Tammany process has gone on too long. The people of the United States do not want to elect a grand llama to the White House. They want for President a mortal statesman with sweat on his brow and strong words in his mouth. It is the opinion of the Daily News that the campaign of William Howard Taft is being mismanaged abominably. The effort to make a tame cat of a great man is enough to make the blood of every honest American boil.

"These ridiculous managers of Taft's are trying to deprive him of his priceless possessions—the political enemies he has made. They have succeeded in attaching Foraker to him in a more or less spectacular manner. Foraker! What a calamity is his friendship in view of his crawling subservience to the Standard Oil Company for money in hand paid! They have brought George Cox into line Cox! The denunciations hurled at him by Taft made for the Republican candidate many thousands of enthusiastic friends and supporters. They sent out Cannon to speak for Taft!

"Taft has got to brush aside these amazing bunglers. He has got to step out before the people and be himself to the full extent of his commanding personality. No Samson with shorn locks is going to be acceptable to the people of the United States as Roosevelt's successor."

Recent events have given the above additional force and significance. There is an earnest desire all over the country that the Republican candidate for the Presidency should break loose from leading strings and assert his own individuality. By precipitating himself into the Hearst-Haskell-Foraker fray, the President has again unpleasantly suggested that he is running the Republican campaign and the Republican candidate. It is no disrespect to President Roosevelt to say that he is not doing anything of the kind and should not, by his acts and letters, give out that impression. His laudation of Taft over the prostrate form of Foraker was in bad taste, and not at all complimentary in its cold significance to Taft. His action in giving out Taft's private political correspondence to emphasize his detestation of Foraker suggests proprietorship. Giving out that letter to Vorys or withholding it from publication should have been left to its author, who is the Presidential candidate in this contest. Certainly Judge Taft is competent to manage his own affairs and dispose of his affairs.

The President said he made public Taft's letter to Vorys without Taft's knowledge or consent. Probably he did not appreciate the force of his statement. Why should he take it upon himself to make public, without the knowledge and consent of the writer, letters written by Taft to his political manager in Ohio? The action rather broadly suggests that the President dictated the writing of that letter and has assumed general supervision over Taft and the Republican campaign.

Too much zeal may spoil the good offices of friendship. President Roosevelt is immensely popular with the people of the United States, who admire him for his fight against trust evils and his fine courage in toeing the scratch on every issue; but they shy at dynastic succession and government by deputy. They believe rightly that the occupant of the White House should be master of himself and his actions. They believe Taft is his own master, a man of initiative, force and independence who stands by the Roosevelt policies because they claim his conscientious conviction, and not because he received them as an inheritance and an instruction from someone else. Hence the President's activity in writing letters and giving directions to the campaign managers is calculated to create a wrong impression injurious to Taft's magnificent talents and abilities. In his eagerness to serve a friend he should be careful not to appear as the master. Therefore Taft should be left to lead his own fight and captain his own army. It is all right to invest him with the ring and staff of the prophet, but too much to let it appear that he is not the general of his own campaign. Few men so well equipped and admirably fitted for the Presidency as Judge Taft is have appeared as candidates before the people. He needs no warmer endorsement from the White House than he has already received, and reiteration serves only to give color to an assertion that has been bandied about ever since the Chicago campaign. It is time to stand out of the way and give the Republican nominee a free hand and a fair field. He will show to better advantage, as the Chicago News says, as a leader and not a follower.

Frank S. Hastings, executor of Grover Cleveland, is out with the statement that he is now convinced the posthumous article commending Taft, printed in the New York Times, was never written by the ex-President. He says Mrs. Cleveland was convinced from the first that the article was spurious. It had that appearance from the start, and it was our opinion at the time that it was a mistake to use this apocryphal document as campaign material. It can well be imagined that Mr. Cleveland entertained a poor opinion of Bryan's statesmanship, but in two previous campaigns, when he was in the full possession of his physical and mental powers, he had an opportunity to speak his mind in regard to Bryan's Presidential aspirations, and he held his peace. Even the flood of abuse poured on him by Bryan's rabid followers failed to move him from silence. Personally he held McKinley in high esteem, and McKinley was championing his views on the coinage question, but he refrained from comparing McKinley and Bryan while the campaigns of 1896 and 1900 were in progress. It was altogether improbable that he would depart from his established rule of conduct when in the throes of mortal disease long after his administration had ceased to be a bone of political contention. Nor was it entirely just to Mr. Cleveland that the Times article should have been published after his death, and thus revive over his newly-made grave the bitter animosities that raged around him while he sat in the Presidential chair. Good taste and good politics alike dictated that the ex-President be left to repose in peace during the campaign.

Spreckels appears to have paid dearly for the nomination of Judge Dunne by the Democrats. His Good Government League, under the ostensible leadership of Isador Jacobs (thirty cents on the dollar) swallowed the Democratic boss almost whole because of the taste of sugar imparted by Judge Dunne.

The San Francisco evening organ of the Lincoln-Roosevelt League argues that Judge Melvin should be defeated because he is a Republican. A score of excellent reasons for the election of Judge Melvin can be cited, but the fact that he is a Republican is enough.

Judge Melvin's Successor.

The Superior Bench of Alameda county will lose nothing in strength and character by the elevation of District Attorney Everett J. Brown to the seat vacated by Judge Melvin. The Alaments of its members, and for the moral attributes which constitute ments of its members, and for the moral attributes which constiute the substructure of high-principled jurists. A strong, capable and upright jurist was lost from the Superior Court when Judge Melvin took his seat on the Supreme Bench, but his place will be worthily filled by Mr. Brown, who has earned promotion by his course in the District Attorney's office. While still a young man, Mr. Brown has displayed qualities very desirable on the bench. His sense of justice is keen and he is ambitious for distinction in an honorable way. He is talented, courageous and studious; and he is upright. His personal habits and associations are above reproach. As THE TRIBUNE said when he was nominated for District Attorney, "he is square, clean and manly," and he has since shown that he has the right stuff in him Possibly the impulsiveness of youth and an ardent nature may require the curbing of self-restraint, but it is certain Mr. Brown will strive conscientiously to be right. Of course he will be elected by an immense majority. Hence we congratulate him in advance on his elevation to the ermine. We are confident he will honor it.

Oakland's Wonderful Charm.

The traveler who passes through Oakland on the train, no matter from what direction he approaches, sees only the most sordid and shabby parts of the city. He skirts the water front, with its grimy tangle of smoking factories, dingy tenements and littered streets. The beautiful homes and clean, flower-bordered streets of the residence districts are hidden from his view. Only the seamy side of industrial activity and marine life comes within the range of his vision. The vast stretch of residences spreading over the background and overrunning the slopes of the foothills is all unseen. In the heart of the business district even there is little evidence of the beauties to be found within a few minutes' trolley ride. It is a truth that many old residents of Oakland know little of the charms and attractions of the newer city that has sprung upon the surrounding heights within the last fifteen years.

Oakland is fast becoming one of the most beautiful cities in the world. When Lake Merritt is improved and the park system fully developed, the city will have a beauty spot hardly equaled anywhere. In a few years the heights which encircle the city from Claremont to Leona Heights will be covered with artistic mansions set in beautiful gardens and inhabitated by people of the wealthy, cultured class. Nowhere else is such a panoramic vision of loveliness spread to the view. Nowhere else is the climate so nearly perfect, or the conditions of life so idyllic The view fairly intoxicates. The softness of the breezes captivates the senses while the salt in the atmosphere serves as a tonic. On these high grounds the air is remarkably pure. The drainage cannot be improved upon, and those who love flowers can revel among them at all seasons of the year.

It is a treat to drive or walk over the more elevated sections of the city and observe the march of improvement, the architectural variety, and the development of taste and design. It is like a beautiful picture growing under the brush of some master painter—it is always getting more brilliantly colored, more coherent and more harmonious in its blend of objects. It emerges from a confused blur at the beginning like a dream of fairyland. That is what Oakland is doing today. She is just taking shape, just getting the right color to her cheeks, the right cut to her garments. She invites inspection; her charm increases on acquaintance. Even her inhabitants have only begun to appreciate her magnificent possibilities as a place of residence, or how readily she lends herself to adornment. People who rave about places like Pasadena and Riverside ought to go crazy over Oakland.

An anonymous interview from London says Japan is preparing for war with feverish activity, strengthening her army, navy and fortifications with secrecy and expedition. Direct information from the Orient contradicts this statement with emphasis. Japan is suffering from a severe financial and industrial depression. Her credit is low, and her revenues insufficient to meet the demands on them. It is all very well to say that the policy of retrenchment adopted by the Japanese government is only a blind, but no proof has been furnished to support the allegation. The foreign holders of Japanese bonds are not deceived in regard to the internal condition of the Mikado's empire. They know, or ought to know, what the real situation is, and they scout the suggestion that Japan is preparing for war. Japan is recuperating from the ravages of war, striving to reorganize her disordered finances and build up her commerce and industries. She could not borrow a dollar for a war, and she has no vast reserve at her command. It is fair to conclude, therefore, that she has no warlike intentions for the present.

The President says Taft will carry more States than he did in 1904. Then why all this sound and fury? There is no need to beat the long roll for a skirmish.

SAILORS OF UNION MAKING PROTEST

Say That Reduction of Life Saving Crew on Coast Is a Grave Menace to Them.

SAN FRANCISCO Sept 26—Claiming that the Pacific Coast Steamship Company is endangering the lives of its passengers and visiting hardships on its employes by its action in cutting down the number of men employed in its life saving and deck crews the Sailors Union of the Pacific has sent a statement to Washington to the commission on the revision of laws relating to the safety of life at sea The trouble arose over a federal law that went into effect on July 1 The statute was passed at the solicitation of the Sailors Union and gives to the local inspectors of hull and boilers the power to fix the number of seamen that shall be employed on steamships

As soon as the law went into operation the Pacific Coast Company tried to defeat the purpose of the union by applying to the local inspectors, John K Bulger and Obed F Bolles to have the number of men on its ships reduced The inspectors refused but the company gained its request by applying to Supervising Inspector Bermingham

Now the sailors are up in arms against Bermingham and will send Andrew Furuseth the president of the union on his return from England to argue their case before the deciding commission next month The commission is composed of L J Chamberlain, commissioner of navigation George Uhler supervising inspector general of steam vessels and W Shoffner Smith, commander United States navy

To the officers and members of the Democratic Central Committee of Alameda county Gentlemen

Believing now as I always have believed that the judiciary should be removed as far as possible from party politics and political influences in order to better secure honest fair and impartial judges for the administration of justice and having learned that Mr Walter Gallagher one of the nominees on the Democratic ticket for the office of superior judge of Alameda county has caused to be organized in his behalf a political club to work especially in the interest of his candidacy which movement his part would seemingly if he were elected place him under special obligations to the officers members and friends of such organization which obligations will not be shared by other citizens of the county and believing that no nominee for a judicial office should seek office in such manner and through means which has a tendency to place the office under special obligations to a limited number of persons in the community I find myself unable to support Mr Gallagher for the office in question

REFUSES TO RUN

Not can I be consistent with my convictions of what constitutes due honesty and fairness in politics remain in as a associate candidate for a like office upon a ticket that I cannot wholly support

While I did not seek the nomination so generously tendered me by the Democratic County Convention lately assembled I am mindful of and I fully appreciate the high honor conferred upon me by such nomination and have this opportunity to thank my many kind personal and political friends for so honoring me

NOTIFIED OF WITHDRAWAL

However to be consistent with principal and in justice to my friends and all concerned, I must withdraw from the field my name as candidate for Superior Judge, and I do hereby notify you of such withdrawal

With ten hopes for the success of Bryan and Kern I am yours
Sincerely and clean politics

INGRAM TO HEAD MEXICO RAILROAD

Former General Superintendent of S. P. to Manage Southern Lines.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 26.—R. H. Ingram, who has been general superintendent of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, with headquarters in Los Angeles, for four years past, has been named vice-president and general manager of the Harriman Mexican lines, which comprise about 900 miles now in operation and contemplates an extension of 3000 miles. He will have charge of working out further deails of construction of the lines and the active management of all work. The lines which will be under his control are the Sonora Railroad from Nogales to Guaymas; Cananea, Yaqui River & Pacific, from Guaymas to Navajo, and the Southern Pacific extensions from there to Guadalajara. The main line is now in operation from Nogales to Culiacan, 350 miles south of Guaymas.

Ingram's new headquarters will probably be at Guaymas, although he will continue to maintain his home in this city.

DISMISSES CHARGES AGAINST HASKELL

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Sept. 26.—Judge R. E. Campbell of the United States district court in session here today handed down a decision, dismissing the case of the Baileys of Ottawa, Ohio, against Governor Haskell and the Indianola Contracting company of Muskogee.

The court was asked by the Baileys, who own 240 shares of stock in the company to appoint a receiver to take charge of its affairs on the ground that they were being mismanaged by Haskell, who is president of the company. The court held that all charges were unfounded.

They fell about 12 feet.

DRAYMEN WILL FIGHT THE WAGE REDUCTION

Special Meeting for Today in Central Theater at San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 26.—The effort of the Draymen's Association to reduce the wage of their drivers will be discussed Sunday morning at the Central Theater by the Brotherhood of Teamsters, which has called a special meeting to consider the attitude of the employers. The draymen want the men to accept a cut of 50 cents a day, making the new scale $3 a day for men driving two-horse teams, and $3.50 for drivers of four-horse trucks. The drivers of one-horse vehicles will be reduced to $10 a week, a cut of $2 per week in their pay. All other teamsters driving two of more horses would suffer a reduction of $3 a week. The sentiment of the men as expressed at the meetings when the subject was considered were strongly against accepting any reduction, the members holding that the present wage was hardly more than sufficient to meet the cost of living as conditions exist in this city.

TO REJECT PROPOSITION.

The special meeting will undoubtedly reject the proposition of the employers. It is likely that a committee will be appointed to confer with the Draymen's Association next Tuesday evening to see if a settlement cannot be effected without bringing on an industrial conflict that may involve the city in a bitter and protracted strike, similar to that of 1901, when transportation workers were idle for six months.

The union is hopeful that a strike may be averted, but the great majority of the members will, so it is said, vote to quit work rather than allow a reduction to the scale suggested by the draymen. The draymen give as a reason for their attitude the existing financial conditions and dullness in trade which resulted from the slump last October. The competition for business has been so keen since, so it is claimed, that the merchants have secured concessions in prices of truckage, and the draymen's profits have been so reduced, they claim they cannot pay the existing wages.

BRITISH CONSUL HAS HIS TROUBLES

Sailors on Ship Sold By U. S. Marshal Insist He Must Support All of Them.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 26.—The ors of the ship British Yoeman are causing a lot of trouble for Walter Risley Hearn, England's local consul, by refusing to return to Australia until they receive nine months' wages, and by insisting that he pay for their board and lodging until the money is forthcoming.

Because the master of the ship could not find the consignee for the cargo it was sold here by the United States marshal to the highest bidder and later the vessel itself was disposed of because of claims against her, thus leaving the crew without home or recourse.

MONEY TIED UP BY COURTS.

The proceeds of the sales, almost $10,000, are tided up in the federal courts and there is no prospect that the money will be available for several months. Each man has about $130 coming to him and demands that he be supported until he gets it. In the meantime the consul is lodging them at the Seaman's Institute at the expense of the British government and is boarding them at an East-street restaurant.

But he is trying his utmost to get them off his hands and wants them to go to Australia, their home port, at his expense. They refuse, however, arguing that they would then be in a worse fix than at present unless he will guarantee that they will be taken care of on their arrival and until they get their pay from here.

MISS THEIR TOBACCO.

As the matter stands, the men are still earning money, as they have not signed off the ship and their account will continue to pile up until they give a receipt for what is due them and take passage for Australia. Their claims, they say, must be paid first out of the money that is tied up in the courts and the only thing that worries them is that Hearn will not advance enough cash to buy tobacco and other immediate necessities.

FOUNTAIN LODGE IS ACTIVE LOCAL ORDER

The next regular meeting of Fountain Lodge No. 198, I. O. O. F., will be devoted to the conferring of the first degree by the point team of Fountain and Oakland Lodges and the members thereof are requested to report early to Drill Master Price for further instructions. The district meeting held on the 21st instance was an enjoyable affair. The N. G., Newman Jensen, after transacting the regular business of the lodge, requested D. D. G. M. E. C. Curtis to preside, as it was a meeting of his district. Most of the lodges were ably represented and a delegation from Encampment No. 34 paid a fraternal visit and all received a hearty welcome. Brother Curtis showed remarkable ability as a presiding officer and his opening address convinced the assemblage that a bright future awaited him in the order.

An instrumental selection by Brother William Gough was followed by P. G. S. H. C. Kemp, who kept the audience convulsed with laughter by his reminiscences of the past. Col. J. K. Ritter, C. of S. Patriarchs militant, gave some interesting statistics. D. Sinclair, P. G., spoke of the Odd Fellows' home at Thermalito, and how happy and contented the old brothers and sisters were with the kind treatment and pleasant surroundings. eH was followed by fraternal address by Dec. J. C. Stout, P. G. cneign, a vocal selection by Brother Gough, speech by J. Maginini, N. G. of No. 401; P. Gs. Arlett No. 118; Nutting, No. 189; George Bray, No. 272; W. A. Sturgeon, C. P. Encampment No. 34, and N. G. Newman Jensen, who is also the president of the general relief committee of Oakland. After partaking of light refreshments the meeting adjourned.

SEEKS DATA ON FIRE FIGHTING

National Conservation Commission Will Find Out Expense of Fighting Fires

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—The National Conservation Commission is trying to find out what it costs the country to fight fires. The Geological Survey, which is conducting this particular branch of the inquiry for the commission, is sending out letters to city officials all over the country asking for data on additional cost of city water supplies for fire protection beyond what is necessary for domestic use.

This information will be combined with other statistics of a similar nature to throw light on the general topic of the conservation of life and property through the prevention of fires for the United States commission when it meets here in December to prepare its report for President Roosevelt.

REDWOOD PARK LANDS TO BE PUT ON MARKET

A unique method of real estate advertising has been adopted by the California Suburban Land Company in bringing thenr new tract, Redwood Park, before the public. The company has set aside a large number of lots which it is selling to first comers at $10 each. In these cases a clear deed is given without any further payments or conditions.

Purchasers of these lots are allowed to select their property from the entire tract in the order of their reservations. The plan has satisfied the owners thus far, and they report such an active demand that it is their intention to withdraw the advertising lots in a few days and place Redwood Park on the market in the regular way. By that time, they believe, this tract will be one of the most talked of subdivisions around the bay.

Redwood Park is situated about six miles west of Redwood City, or thirteen miles by road from San Mateo. It has an elevation of nearly 2000 feet and is covered with beautiful redwood trees. It is an ideal place for a summer home, and should soon rank in popularity with similar summer resorts among the redwoods on the Russian river and the Santa Cruz mountains.

STEAMER DELAYED BY FIRE IN HOLD

Blaze Starts Among 700 Bales of Cotton in Hold of the Steamer Nachochee.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 26.—The steamship Nachochee of the Ocean Steamship company lies at her dock with her forward hold full of water that was pumped into it by twenty lines of hose to drown fire that had started in the cotton stowed there.

The vessel, commanded by Captain Howlett, was to have sailed at 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon for Boston. At 6 o'clock smoke was seen issuing from the forward hatch and fire was discovered among 700 bales stowed in the hold.

The alarm was sounded and the dock crew, the vessel's crew, the city department and several others began directing streams into the hold.

The hold will be pumped out and the vessel may sail tonight. It is not believed she was damaged.

Gay World Condemns Fat

The Empire and the Directoire gown having come to stay, fatness is de trop—that is to say, "not in it." Fat ladies are threatened with being wiped off the map.

There is one loop-hole of escape, however, for the overfat lady. Let her get one of the large cases of Marmola Prescription Tablets, and take one after each meal and at bedtime, and pretty soon she will notice she will be wearing the new mode with satisfaction to herself and the consternation of her dear enemies.

These cases of Marmola Prescription Tablets, which, by the way, being made strictly in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription, are perfectly harmless, contain such a generous quantity of tablets that they last a long time and are found to be most economical, costing, as they do, only 75 cents. They are also a very pleasant method to adopt, for they render dieting and exercising entirely unnecessary. All druggists keep them, or they may be obtained from the Marmola Company, Detroit, Mich.

GANG OF FORGERS ARE CLEVERLY CAUGHT

BAG OF TREASURE IS HANDED TO WHEELER

Mysterious Stranger Calls Upon State University President With Money to Help Some Deserving Student.

BERKELEY, Sept. 26.—There is a real mystery on the campus. A stranger called about 9 o'clock last night at the home of President Benjamin Ide Wheeler and left with him a sack of gold as a "grub stake" for some student working his way through college. He told Dr. Wheeler that the money came from another stranger, a "man up in the hills or somewhere," whose identity he did not care to reveal and who wished to give some young man a start in life. There was $894 in the sack, a canvas bag such as express companies and banks use for treasure, and the strange guest of Dr. Wheeler said he had taken $1 out as his fee for messenger service.

TOOK OUT A FEE.

"I was to be given $1 if I brought the sack to you and I have taken it," said the man laconically, as he stood in the parlor of the Wheeler home at 1820 Scenic avenue. The man stood the scrutiny of his host.

"Maybe you think I am a crank and I don't blame you, but I aint," he explained. "I am simply acting for another man. Just call the money a grub stake. I am only a messenger. I had hard work finding your house and I am glad the job is over." Dr. Wheeler sought to learn more of the donor of the money and the motive for its coming.

WANTED NO RECEIPT.

"There are no terms attached to the gift," he replied. "I don't want even a receipt for it. My man lives up in the woods and he don't care to have his name known. Maybe some student needs books or instruments in his work. For myself I think its a rather queer way to help a young fellow. I have seen lots of them that it did no good. I never saw money do anything but harm, I believe."

The man departed as mysteriously as he came. Dr. Wheeler this afternoon turned the money over to the regents as a fund for assisting deserving students and is still puzzled over the affair.

MESSENGER IS MYSTERIOUS.

"It was a rather odd affair," said Dr. Wheeler. "After stepping into the hall he said that he was the messenger for another man who I would probably think was a crank. This last man, he said, "lived up in the woods," from which I inferred he was a miner somewhere in Northern California. At any rate he would give me no definite information or any names, saying simply it was the desire of his friend to 'grub stake' some poor student. He didn't care as long as the money went to help some fellow get a start in life. My visitor then handed me a small canvas bag such as express companies use, but well worn and with various ink spots upon it and one or two marks of sealing wax. He said the original was $350, but that he had been allowed $1 for bringing the money to me as a messenger."

COUNTED THE MONEY.

"I counted the contents and sure enough there was $349. I could not even obtain the name of the messenger. After some further conversation I told him that I should turn the money over to the regents and use it as a loan fund for deserving students who were working their way through college. He said he was satisfied that there were no conditions attached. He did not want even a receipt for the money. I told him that his receipt would appear in the published accounts of the secretary of the board of regents."

Dr. Wheeler says the man was fairly well dressed and apparently used to outdoor life. He was about 45 years of age.

BUILDERS SHOW APPRECIATION

Birthday of Faithful Custodian Remembered by the Bestowal of Purse.

Yesterday afternoon a very pleasant surprise was given Henry Rhodes of Alameda, the custodian of the Master Builders' headquarters at 550 Eighteenth street, which was at the same a source of pleasure to the members of the organization, many of whom were in attendance.

esterday was the sixty-fourth anniversary of the birth of Mr. Rhodes who, for a long time, has been an esteemed employe of the organization and his fidelity and efficiency were recognized by the presentation of a purse of $50 which was all the more appreciated because its bestowal was unexpected.

The presentation was preceded with a mock trial which was conducted in a very entertainingly manner, the beneficiary being the accused and the jurors being Harry L. Walker, O. M. Magneson, J. C. Veitch, J. C. Finger, V. L. Fortin, A. K. Goodmanson, J. E. McCormac, George Lackie was attorney for the defense. FRAUD WAS GIGANTIC, IS CLAIM

SUIT IS BROUGHT AGAINST BROWN CO.

The Santo Domingo Gold and Copper Concern Is Alleged to Be An Amazing and Gigantic Swindle.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—The inside history of the Santo Domingo Gold and Copper Company, one of the ventures launched through the bankrupt firm of A. O. Brown & Co., has been revealed by suits started by Pittsburg stockholders. When the company was capitalized for $64,000,000 the stockholders were promised a gold yield of $1,000,000 to the acre and full return on the investment in six to eight months.

The corporation suit, in behalf of the Pittsburg stockholders, who bought certificates through the brokerage house of Whitney, Stevenson & Co. of that city, is brought in the name of Albert N. Fuller, in the New York Supreme Court. Fuller also has sued for fraud in his own behalf on an investment of $1000 which, he contends, would have yielded $10,000 had all the promises been fulfilled.

NAMED IN SUIT.

Albert O. Brown, G. Lee Stout, Edward F. Buchanan, Lewis O. Young, Sam C. Brown, and W. Rhea Whitman, as co-operators in A. O. Brown & Co., and George I. Whitney, Francis L. Stephenson, Irwin Fleketson, as co-partners in Whitney, Stephenson & Co., also bankrupt, are named as defendants in the suit against the Santo Domingo Company.

The gold company was organized as a Maine corporation in September, 1906. Stories were made public that the company obtained control of 65,000 acres in the Republic of Santo Domingo, upon which had been discovered an old Spanish gold mine. The legend had it that the rights of the Spanish invaders to work this mine had been revoked by royal decree, and that the property had been filled in and remained hidden until purchased by the new concern.

STOCK IS SOLD.

The company proposed, in order to purchase dredges and machinery, that $5,000,000 stock, at $20 a share, be sold, at the same time announcing that a full corps of engineers was on the ground to install the machinery. Then, it is charged, stock to the value of $42,000,000 was sold among the friends of the promoters, and $10,000 each was allotted to four of the interested officials and promoters.

In January, 1907, the stockholders were notified that the property had proved practically worthless, and were then told that their deposits would be returned with interest one year from date.

MONEY IS SPENT.

In January, 1907, the Whitney-Stephenson company became bankrupt, and in the same month the Brown company turned over to the gold and copper concern $257,080 with which to make restitution to such purchasers as had bought through that firm. This did not provide for the buyers through the Pittsburg firm.

Fuller declares that a small engine, with a disintegrating cylinder, and one or two oil engines were the only machinery, and at the test of 1600 pounds of red clay, one piece of gold, the size of the head of a pin, was discovered.

REPEATS CHARGE AGAINST SQUIRES

Monnett Flatly Contradicts Statement Issued Contradicting Original Story.

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 26.—Former Attorney General Frank S. Monnett, whose affidavit furnished the basis for William R. Hearst's charges that Governor Haskell of Oklahoma was a party in the attempt to bribe him in the Standard Oil proceedings in Ohio, when shown the interview of C. B. Squires from New York in which Squires says that he never gave Monnett the names of C. N. Haskell, F. B. Squires or Frank Rockefeller in connection with the Standard Oil case, said:

"The use of the names, F. B. Squires, Frank Rockefeller and C. N. Haskell, were exactly as given by C. B. Squires to myself and the Hon. Smith W. Bennett, special counsel to the Attorney General, the names and initials having at the time been recorded by Mr. Bennett in his pocket memoranda. They were given to us by Squires.

FORAKER NAMED.

"I can recall but two other names mentioned by him to Bennett and to me. They were those of Abner McKinley and Senator Foraker.

"As to the statement of C. B. Squires in his interview that I offered to protect him if I were allowed the use of his name, the facts are that after he had broached the subject of bribery I threatened to have him arrested unless he told me the names of the people figuring in the scheme.

"I might have told him if he did so I would be lenient with him, as prosecutors do, to get the whole truth.

SAYS SQUIRES GAVE NAMES.

"On this threat, Squires gave me the names just as they appear in the information afterward filed by me with the court.

"The effort to discredit this story by C. B. Squires was suddenly stopped at the request of S. H. Tolles and Larry Neal, attorneys of the oil trust, who got an order from Chief Justice John A. Shauck of the Supreme Court, compelling me to cease the taking of testimony."

IT'S CORKER PRESIDENT SAYS

POLITICAL PLAY GOOD, ASSERTS ROOSEVELT

Declares That Accusations Made in Drama Are Nearly True to Life of Today--Pays Tribute to the Actors.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—"Ten years ago I would not have believed the accusations in your play against men in high political places, but now I am afraid it is true."

These were the sentiments which President Roosevelt voiced at the White House today when he discussed with Messrs. Brady and Grismer the new play, "A Gentleman from Mississippi."

To Messrs. Wise and Fairbanks, who portray the leading roles, the President remarked:

"It was so hard for me when, on Thursday night, I witnessed in your performance the difference between your acting and the real political situation. I felt that I was witnessing a scene in actual political life, and not merely a stage reproduction of those acts. I wanted to leave the box, go upon the stage and help out in the discussion.

HIS PROFESSION.

"When you produce a political play, you know, you are taking part in my own profession. Naturally I was interested in every speech in this 'Gentleman from Mississippi.' Many of the types, from the Mississippi Senator to the newspaper men, were very familiar to me, and it was all I could do to keep from entering into the real spirit of the problem involved. I am sure that the strong plays on political problems are doing a great deal of good to mould public opinion in the proper direction, and I wish we had more of them."

"THAT'S A CORKER."

Asked what he thought of the "Gentleman From Mississippi," as a play, the President stood erect and, with much feeling and in his inimitable way, said:

"By George, that's a corker from start to finish."

The members of the party who visited the President by appointment included William A. Brady and Joseph R. Grismer, producers of the play; Thomas A. Wise, who plays the role of the Senator, and Douglas Fairbanks, the Secretary to the Southern Senator.

Postmaster-General Meyer, who accompanied the President to the National Theater to see the play, was also present during the interview.

ROCKEFELLER WILL NOT TAKE SWORD OF OLIVER CROMWELL

Magnate Balks at Offer Made by English Woman; May Auction Relic

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Unless John D. Rockefeller sends to the appraisers' stores for the antique sword, said to have been worn by Oliver Cromwell, which was consigned to Rockefeller by an English woman, an admirer of the capitalist, the weapon will be put up at auction by the government and sold to the highest bidder, October 6.

In a short note attached to the sword the sender says the relic was vouched for as having belonged to the great commoner and that only pecuniary reasons influenced her in disposing of an heirloom of such priceless worth. Under the circumstances the donor of the sword expressed the hope that Rockefeller would accept the sword and send a draft for a sum commensurate with the value of the weapon.

When the sword reached the customs house it was addressed merely to "Mr. Rockefeller, 4 West Fifty-fourth street, New York."

Rockefeller was communicated with, but has declined to accept the sword or pay the accruing duties. The letter accompanying the sword also remains unanswered.

It is reported that Rockefeller sent a representative to inspect the relic. His report is understood to have been unfavorable to the purchase of the weapon.

ALLEGED FORGER IS BROUGHT BACK

Supposed Swindler Who Surrendered in Reno Arrives in Custody of Detective.

Bernard Marvin, a young man wanted in Oakland for passing fictitious checks, arrived today in the custody of Detective McSorley from Reno, Nev. A few days ago Marvin walked into the Chief of Police's office at Reno and surrendered himself.

California Man to Represent President

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—William R. Wheeler, assistant secretary of Commerce and Labor, has been designated by President Roosevelt as his personal representative at the National Irrigation Congress to be held in Albuquerque, N. M., and at the Trans-Mississippi Congress to be held at San Francisco. Mr. Wheeler will leave tomorrow for Albuquerque.

To Make Tour of Inspection: Washington—Captain Edward H. Campbell, judge advocate general of the navy, has been detailed by Secretary Metcalf to make a tour of inspection of the naval prisons at Mare Island and other points.

TROOPS ARE REACHING CAMP

ATASCADERO PRESENTS AN INSPIRING SCENE

Regiments Are Pouring Into Rendezvous for Maneuvers ---Many Social Affairs Are Planned for Officers.

PASO ROBLES HOT SPRINGS, Sept. 26.—From almost every point of the compass, on journeys from Arizona, Nevada and New Mexico, as well as from various military posts in California, thousands of troops are now heading for Atascadero to attend the autumn maneuvers under command of Colonel Marion P. Maus.

Monday night will witness the arrival of over 2500 to join the 800 men already in camp, and the next few days will see the coming of many more.

CAMPS EVERYWHERE.

All along the various roads leading to the camp and for many miles out are encampments or troops en route on the line of march. At San Miguel, a town twenty miles northeast of the maneuver camp, are now over two regiments in tents, resting after a march of two hundred miles from Monterey and San Francisco. They are the Eighth and Twentieth Infantry regiments. Besides these soldiers are various departmental detachments and companies, all encamped in hundreds of portable tents. After a rest of two days the men will complete their journey.

MANY SOCIAL AFFAIRS.

The troops from Arizona and New Mexico will arrive next week, as will also the regiments of the California National Guard. Plans are under organization in Paso Robles for many social events to take place when the maneuver ceremonies and all of the officers arrive. A number of society folk are on their way down, and the town will present an animated sight at many dances and dinners.

The enlisted men have also been remembered, and several balls for non-commissioned officers will be carried out later on.

PLANNING THE BATTLE.

Paso Robles is fifteen miles from the camp, but a special service of automobiles and stages will meet the requirements of visitors when all the troops arrive.

Colonel Maus, with his staff, is now engaged in formulating plans of the campaign for the sham battle, and the bloodless warfare will be watched with interest by a number of attaches.

MRS. ED. W. BURROWS,
Chairman of Entertainment Committee of Wendigoes Council No. 70, Degree of Pocahontas.

AN EVENING OF MUSIC AND DANCE

Wendigoes Council of Degree of Pocahontas Gives An Entertainment

Wendigoes Council, No. [illegible], Degree of Pocahontas, gave an entertainment Friday night in Golden Gate Hall, San Francisco. The program consisted of musical and literary numbers. Mrs. Ed. W. Burrows acted as chairman of the evening. She was assisted on the "Food and Welfare" Committee by Mrs. Leah Hoffmann, Mrs. Josephine Gear, Miss Ella Bodermann, Ed. W. Burrows, H. S. Charmak, C. Troppmann, M. L. Keller and R. Winters.

Among the entertainers was Ed. W. Burrows, who cleverly impersonated eminent actors in acts from famous plays. Miss Pauline Hess of Oakland gave an original recitation. A song and dance were given by Miss Blossinson Eckstein. Dr. Charles I. Troppmann made a few remarks. Miss Gladys Murray and Master Ralph Gardner contributed to the evening's entertainment.

CHOPS FIVE CORDS IN A SINGLE DAY

WINDSOR, Vt., Sept. 26 [illegible]-Edward Moot of Weatherford, this State, proved himself the world's champion woodchopper today when, in the presence of railroad presidents, lumber kings and millionaire New Yorkers, he chopped down five cords of wood that had been standing trees, put them to stove lengths and piled them into regulation piles between sunrise and sunset, and with an hour and a half to spare.

At the end of the unprecedented feat several thousands were paid to Maxwell Evarts, who had backed Moot's prowess with the axe against a half dozen cynics. The names of the losers were not given out, but it is understood that among them were L. F. Loree, president of the Delaware & Hudson Railroad, and [illegible]. Coolidge, assistant secretary of the United States Treasury.

CUT DOWN 18 TREES.

At 10:30 a. m. Moot had cut down eighteen trees ranging in length from sixty to seventy feet and from nine to fourteen inches in diameter at the base. He had chopped and split three and a half cords and he said his muscles were as good as when he began.

During the morning Moot's progress was watched by over 150 persons. At 2:30 p. m. Moot had finished chopping and splitting the stipulated five cords and had piled one-third of it.

WOULD KILL ARRESTING OFFICER

FORGER WHEN CAUGHT ATTEMPTS TO SHOOT

Napa Officers Have Desperate Encounter With Man Who Is Wanted in Oakland and Other Cities.

NAPA, Sept. 26.—Fire Chief Charles Otterson, who is deputy sheriff also, and Police Officer Mark Hamilton narrowly escaped being shot late last night by an Italian forger whom they were attempting to capture.

During Friday afternoon E. Maglori, his wife, and Gueda Rosallene, all Italians, passed three fictitious checks for sums aggregating $96 on hotel keepers at St. Helena. Officers here were advised that the trio had started back here and Otterson and Hamilton overhauled them near the city limits.

When Rosallene, who was on horseback was ordered to stop, he drew a revolver and took aim at the officers but was disarmed and dragged from his horse.

On the man were found a large number of checks on the Bank of California of San Francisco, some ready to be passed, and bearing the forged name of Frank Lucci, a wealthy St. Helena rancher. Many others were in blank.

It was learned today that two men have been victimizing their countrymen all over Napa county for weeks. They arrived here about six weeks ago, Mrs. Maglori claiming that she and her husband came from Lovelock, Nevada.

They are in jail and today signed an order to have the sheriff pay back out of the funds taken from them the amounts they secured Friday. Maglori drew checks and Rosallene floated them. They are wanted at Sonoma, Oakland and other places.

ASKS T. R. TO OUST ADVISERS

Manufacturer Declares Trust Magnates Are in President's Campaign Cabinet.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 26.—Thomas Sawyer Spivey, president of the Victor Lock and Safe Company of this city, gave out a telegram tonight which he had sent to President Roosevelt demanding the removal of the President's cabinet of campaign advisers, Senator Murray Crane and other prominent men, on account of their connections with trusts.

Spivey is a successful manufacturer and says he makes the plea in the interest of his employes, who are desirous of a return of prosperity. The telegram is as follows:

"The Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, Washington, D. C.: Inasmuch as you have put off the robes of state to take an active part in the present campaign, and as I am an employer of several hundred workingmen who feel the evil effects of the present industrial depression, I do not deem it improper to suggest that the enforced withdrawal of Messrs. Haskell and Dupont from further official participation in the conduct of the campaign is commendable.

URGES ALL SPEED.

"But, as neither of these gentlemen has been charged with conduct of which others are not equally guilty, it would be doing them a gross injustice to retain in your cabinet of campaign advisers Charles F. Booker of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company, against which company are pending anti-trust suits; William B. McKinley, the Illinois traction magnate; George R. Sheldon, affiliated with Morgan, Harriman and the Standard Oil Company; Senator Murray Crane, head of the Bell Telephone trust; Frank G. Lowden of the Pullman car trust, and Arthur I. Vorys, who was disbarred from practice before the pension department for alleged fraudulent pension transactions. I believe it is in your power to have these men removed and to be consistent you should do this and do it quickly. (Signed)

"THOMAS SAWYER SPIVEY."

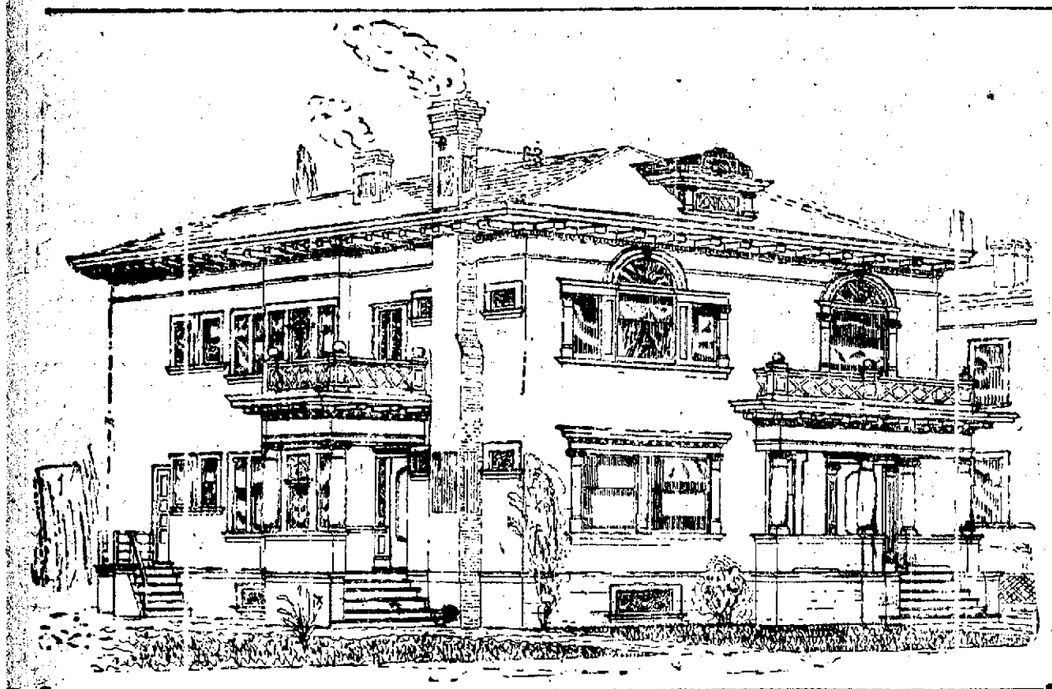
MUST STAY 12 YEARS ON WATER WAGON OR GO TO PENITENTIARY

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 26.—Twelve years on the water wagon was the punishment meted out to John Moran this morning by Judge Hughes for stealing two rigs from Sacramento residents, to which he pleaded guilty.

On the first charge of grand larceny Moran must spend two years in Folsom, and when that term is over he must spend ten years of his life in total abstinence from liquor or the prison gates will open for him.

Moran recognizes that John Barleycorn is his undoer, and this morning appeared penitent and anxious to cut short the acquaintance if given the chance. With ten long years hanging over his head, Moran said he was sure he could walk the chalk line. Accordingly, the sentence was imposed by Judge Hughes, and then withheld. If Moran touches a drop of liquor for the next ten years after his two years' term he will be rushed to Folsom.

MANY CONTRACTS ARE LET FOR NEW BUILDINGS



PERSPECTIVE OF RESIDENCE FLATS TO BE ERECTED BY MRS. F. THOMAS ON WEST SIDE OF SEVENTH AVENUE, SOUTH OF EAST TWENTY-FIRST STREET. A. V. ALDER, ARCHITECT.

NEW BUILDING RECORD BROKEN

Oakland Forging Ahead and Nothing Can Stop Its Phenomenal Growth or Progress.

The number and valuation of building permits issued in Oakland during the year 1908 will equal, if they do not exceed, the number and valuation of building permits issued in the record breaking year, 1907.

This building record only includes the actual city limits of Oakland, and does not include the building operations of Emeryville, Piedmont, Fruitvale, Melrose, Fitchburg, Elmhurst and other suburban sections, which physically constitute a part of Oakland though not within the corporation at present.

WONDERFUL RECORDS.

As was predicted last month, Oakland's building record for the month of August reached the half million dollar limit, missing it only by the narrowest margin—less than $200.

A city whose rate of growth moves steadily on without diminution during a year of bank closure and distress and general financial depression, is a city whose position, resources and attractiveness to the outside investor are hard to beat.

This wonderful progress, be it known, has materialized without advertising of special effort. In this respect Oakland's growth resembles Topsy's, who "jest growed."

MANUFACTURING CENTER.

From being as heretofore a city of homes—certainly a fine thing to be—Oakland is now becoming a manufacturing center. From West Berkeley to San Leandro the growth of manufacturing enterprises is a marked feature.

But Alameda's latest move to build up a great amusement resort on the shore of the bay is certainly a thing that could have been done long ago. The bay population need not go far for recreation, as California climate and seashore are near at hand.

And Oakland, like the rest of California, is expanding and has come into possession of its own. The panic does not stop Oakland's growth.

MORE SCHOOLS FOR THIS CITY

Board of Education to Provide Additional Room in Various Crowded Districts.

The board of education, in order to accommodate the large number of pupils in the crowded districts, has let contracts for the erection of temporary structures of two and three rooms and also an addition to one of the main buildings.

A two-story school house is to be erected at the northwest corner of Thirty-second and Magnolia streets at a cost of $2000. A one-story building of two rooms is to be built at the northwest corner of Bruce and Millbury streets. The structure is to cost $1000.

Two rooms are to be added to the Emerson school at the southwest corner of Forty-eighth and Cherry streets. This addition will cost $2500.

In many districts of the city the board has found that the present accommodations for school children are too small, and that all the rooms are overcrowded. This condition has led it to provide more room for those who have been crowded out of the regular schools.

ADVANTAGES OF CITY BOOSTED

The committee of progress and prosperity of the Chamber of Commerce is making gigantic strides toward the advancement of Oakland. The committee is now composed of twenty-five leading men of this city, and it has already obtained eighty-four new members. The committee is at present educating the people of Oakland to boost for the town and from all accounts the residents are proving good scholars.

The committee intends advertising Oakland to the whole United States and to provide inducements for tourists to come here and see it, as well as for homeseekers to come and settle here. There are many propositions now on foot and according to the members of the committee the campaign for a larger city will be successful.

HAT FACTORY TO BE BUILT

It is likely that the proposed hat factory, which James Moran of Danbury, Conn., is desirous of establishing in this county, will be erected in Emeryville. A resident of Emeryville has come to the front, offering Moran and his colleagues a site, free of charge. It is likely that the negotiations will be closed shortly and the building erected. Moran has purchased a large amount of machinery already and is now looking for a site and additional capital.

IS MODEL CITY FOR SESSIONS

Oakland Now Becoming Mecca of all Those Who Hold Big Conventions.

Oakland is certainly becoming a convention city. In the next three weeks two big conventions will be held here and at each there will be between 200 and 300 delegates. These delegates generally bring one or more members of their families with them and as a result many people will flock in to the city, with the resultant expenditure of much money here.

Edwin Stearns, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, states that he is in communication with many lodges and others who hold conventions and that he has invited them to come here to hold their sessions. At each convention the Chamber of Commerce tells the delegates, as its guests, on tours of the county. This is believed to be a good way to show the advantages of Oakland and the entire county.

Secretary Stearns says that many of these delegates become so well impressed with Alameda county that they often come here and purchase homes.

TWELVE FLATS TO BE BUILT

In One Week Contracts Are Let for Dozen of This Style of Structure.

In the past week contracts have been let for the erection of twelve flat buildings, which is considered a record. These flat buildings are scattered throughout the city, but the majority of them are to be on East Fourteenth street in East Oakland, and on Sixty-third street in north Oakland.

The following is a list of those who are to build flats and the size of the flats, as well as the cost:

Henry Muller, two-story, eight rooms, northwest corner of Santa Rosa and Vernon streets; $4220.

W. E. Ainsworth, two-story, eleven rooms, north side of Sixty-second street east of Dover; $4160.

M. Greenfield, three-story, five and six room flats, west side of First avenue, north of East Twelfth street; $6000.

M. E. McDonald, two-story, twelve rooms, $4000, and one-story two room storeroom, $200, at the corner of Fourth avenue and East Fifteenth street.

R. Shannon, two-story, ten rooms, south side of Thirty-third street, west of Grove; $3800.

Wallace Clark, two-story, twelve rooms east side of Chetwood street, south of Santa Clara; $5250.

H. Beach, two-story, eleven rooms, south side of Forty-fourth street, east of Grove; $4000.

L. H. Bishop, two-story flat and store building, north side of East Twelfth street west of Twelfth street; $2810.

Victor H. Ritchit, two-story, ten rooms, north side of Sixty-third street, east of Dover, $5000.

Charles Bennett, two-story, 12-room flat, northeast corner of Fourth avenue and East Fourteenth street; $4850.

Mrs. F. Thoms, two-story, twelve rooms, west side of Seventh avenue, south of East Twentieth street; $4900.

William Schirmer, two-story, twelve rooms, north side of Sixty-third street, east of Dover; $4800.

GETTING READY NOW FOR LARGE STRUCTURE

Work has been commenced on the Kelly property at the corner of Fourteenth and Clay preparatory to the erection of the new three-story steel frame building for the occupancy of Sherman & Clay. The old frame residence structures which have stood on the ground for several years are being torn away. The building which is to occupy this site will add another to the modern business structures in that neighborhood. It is just across the street from the new building of Taft & Pannover, which is being filled with the stock of the latter firm and into which they will move within a few days.

There has been a transfer of the title of the Kelly property from Loreta W. and L. E. Kelly to the Balfour-Guthrie Investment Company, a transfer necessitated by the arrangements for the construction of the new building which Sherman & Clay have leased for a long term of years.

EXCAVATING FOR NEW 3-STORY BUILDING

Plans have been completed by Architect F. D. Voorhies and the excavation work finished for a three-story pressed brick front building to be erected on the northwest corner of Tenth and Franklin streets. The owner of the property, J. C. Marre, will push the completion of the structure as rapidly as possible.

The building as planned will have on the ground floor a large storeroom and offices for the transaction of the business of the E. Marre & Bro., importers and wholesale dealers in liquors, who will occupy it.

The deep basement extending to the edge of the sidewalk will also be used by this firm. The upper stories are planned so that they can be finished and fitted to suit the needs of tenants. Several parties are understood to be already negotiating for the upper floors and the details of the arrangement of the interior will depend largely on which of these make the leases.

TWO-STORY STRUCTURE FOR EIGHTEENTH ST.

Theodore Gier is to erect a two-story building on Eighteenth street west of San Pablo avenue. The structure is to be of brick and steel and will cost about $30,000. The basement is to cover two lots, that under the building and that under the house adjoining. It will be 120x100 feet. The building will be 60x90 feet and will contain two stories. Architect Charles Mau is preparing the plans.

$5000 RESIDENCE TO BE CONSTRUCTED SOON

J. M. Alexander is to erect a two-story dwelling on the west side of Warwick street, south of Euclid. The residence is to contain ten rooms and is to cost $5000. Alexander obtained his permit for the erection of the structure this week.

$500,000 HOTEL MAY BE ERECTED SOON IN BERKELEY; BUILDING VERY ACTIVE

BERKELEY, Sept. 26.—All the interest the past week has been in the new town of Ocean View, as far as the real estate men are concerned. It is predicted that there will be an increase in values in that direction and an impetus given to building. While the class of structures are not expected to be of the costly kind, the real estate dealers say that there will be many small cottages and stores erected along San Pablo avenue and vicinity within the next few months and that the growth will affect the territory lying between Berkeley and Richmond. They reason that the new town of Ocean View has been well advertised, that the announcement that it is to be "open" in contrast with a closed Berkeley will attract business as well as saloons and that many of the people of the factory district will require home sites at once. Already they say there has been a marked activity in the sale of small and low priced lots.

A FEW OBSTACLES.

The only serious obstacle to the advancement of the section is the absence of water and street lights. The greater portion of the property was sold by large tract owners on the understanding that water supply was included in the purchase, as well as street work. The People's Water Company declares it is perfectly willing to furnish water if somebody else will furnish the pipes and mains. The Ocean View Improvement club has already held several conferences with Louis Titus and they now declare that it is up to the original owners of the acreage to lay the pipes before any adequate water supply will be in sight. The last are tardy and as a majority of the lots have passed from their hands there is a prospect that water will not be forthcoming until the end of winter.

MUST BUILD STREETS.

The matter of raising revenue for street improvements is also a deterrent. Prospective purchasers fear that there will be a high tax rate, as the district covers much territory and has a scant population. The passing of the cars of the roads and streets from the country to the new municipality adds a burden that the people have not heretofore directly felt.

The assurance that the Bankers' hotel in Oakland will be built has revived interest in several projects to provide Berkeley with a first-class hostelry. The people behind the Claremont hotel say they are hopeful of resuming work on the big building at the head of Russell street, that has stood partially completed for over a year, but they are making no specific promises. There are negotiations in progress for the sale of $400,000 bonds in New York and if this deal is successful, according to Duncan McDuffie, there will be money available to complete and furnish the big hostelry and the work will be rushed.

$500,000 HOSTELRY.

The death of Mrs. Rosa M. Shattuck has been followed by no change in the management of the big interests owned by her and the public is awaiting an announcement from William E. Dooley, in charge of the estate, relative to the prospects for the construction of a $500,000 hostelry on the corner of Shattuck avenue and Allston way, where the Shattuck house is now located. The site is one of the most central in Berkeley and the hotel would be surrounded by beautiful grounds.

MUNICIPAL WHARF.

The new municipal wharf in Berkeley is requiring repairs and alterations. Thus far very little business is passing over it. Shipping men say that it is too narrow for traffic and already the trustees are confronted with an outlay of $3000 for widening the outer portion, to enable scows and steamers to unload economically.

The apartment houses are increasing. C. B. Heywood is building a new 20-room structure on the southwest corner of Grove and University avenue and the announcement is made that the upper floors of the brick building being erected at the head of the Key Route line on University avenue will be fitted up for apartments instead of offices.

BUILDING PERMITS.

The building permits for the week include:

One-story 5-room bungalow on Dwight way, near Waring street; cost $3000; owner, Mrs. Mary R. Coolidge.

NOW BUILDING PRETTY HOME

Dr. E. E. Evans Will Have Picturesque Residence in Latham Terrace.

Dr. E. E. Evans is having erected a picturesque bungalow at Twenty-fourth avenue and East Twenty-fourth street, in the Latham Terrace. The plans for the home were prepared by Hanselmann & Thayer, architects, of San Francisco. A perspective of the structure is shown herewith today.

The residence is to contain six rooms. The exterior is to be in shingles and plaster. One of the features will be two large klinker brick chimneys. A large porch, eight feet in width and thirty-two feet in length, will extend across the front of the house. The dwelling is 58 feet in length.

The interior will be finished in slash-grain pine with fumed oak stain. A six foot open fire place is to be one of the attractions of the house and will be located in the dining room. The dwelling is to be fitted with automatic water heaters, gas and electricity.

A large attic will be fitted for a banquet and billiard room. In this attic there will be eighteen windows. At the entrance to the residence will be a pergola, which will be covered with vines.

TWENTY-THIRD AVENUE IS BEING IMPROVED

The work of improving Twenty-third avenue is now well under way and the section between East Fourteenth street and the railroad tracks is widened and bituminized. For many years this street was a mud hole in the winter months. The city council ordered that it be improved, and the work is now under way.

The Oakland Traction company is laying new tracks on Twenty-third avenue north of East Fourteenth street. As soon as these tracks are laid the work of improving this portion of the thoroughfare will be taken up.

IMITATION MARBLE PLANT FOR OAKLAND

Messrs. Haskell and Butterfield are now in the city showing samples of an imitation marble, which they claim can be manufactured at a less cost than natural marble can be bought for. They are desirous of starting a large plant here. They claim that they can manufacture this imitation marble at $1 a foot, which is about a fourth less than natural marble costs. Haskell and Butterfield are negotiating with several parties and it is expected that within a very short time their plant will be established somewhere along the estuary.

PETROLEUM ADVANCE

The feature of the year, as disclosed by the returns was the advancement of petroleum to the first place, surpassing gold in the value of output for the first time. The production of gold and silver fell off $2,070,708 in 1907, as compared with the preceding year. Petroleum, owing to the increase in price, was more largely produced and was brought up to the first rank in aggregate values.

Metallic substances, including precious metals, represent $24,896,083 in the grand total for 1907. The metallic substances include gold, silver, quicksilver, copper, lead, tungsten, zinc, platinum and chrome. The production of zinc, which was first reported in 1906, continued in 1907. In metallic substances the figures for 1907, compared with 1906, show a falling off that amounts to $1,206,619. As the decrease in the precious minerals amounted to $2,070,708, the other metallic substances are seen to have been more largely produced than in 1906.

The gains are in copper, pyrites, chrome and platinum. As usual the value of silver is given at the commercial average rating in New York.

THE COAL OUTPUT.

The non-metallic substances were produced in 1907 to the value of $2,495,000. Under this heading are included coal, mineral waters, borax, infusorial earth, salt, magnesite, manganese, gypsum, mineral paint, Fuller's earth and gems. The production of the non-metallic substances in 1906 was $2,589,984.

The great increase for 1907 was in hydrocarbons and gases. The combined values of these substances was $18,029,937, a gain for the year over the total value for 1906 of $7,959,664. The hydrocarbons are asphalt, bituminous rock and petroleum. Values are estimated for the several grades of petroleum on the basis of f. o. b. in the various fields, the barrel prices on unexpired contracts being also taken into account. There were produced 7,837,171 more barrels of petroleum in 1907 than in 1906. The production of asphalt rose from 77,756 tons to 79,718 tons and the value from $777,560 to $1,058,400.

STRUCTURAL MATERIAL.

Structural materials made a record of production for 1907 of $8,011,810, as against $7,859,126 in 1906. The list of California structural materials includes brick, pottery clays, cement, lime, limestone, rubble, macadam, concrete rock, marble, granite, sandstone, slate, glass sand and serpentine. The largest gain in any branch of the structural materials industries must be credited to the brick and pottery clays, taken together.

The minerals in 1907 took the following order in values: Petroleum, gold, copper, clays and their products, cement, borax, silver. This is the same order as in 1906 with the exception that petroleum succeeds to the first place and gold takes the second place.

The productions of the several counties are summarized as follows: Placer county produced the asbestos, asphalt was produced in Alameda, Contra Costa, Kern, Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, San Luis Obispo and San Francisco counties. The bituminous rock all came from Santa Cruz and San Luis Obispo counties.

Borax is credited to Inyo, San Bernardino and Ventura counties; cement to Napa, San Bernardino and Solano counties; chrome to Calaveras and Shasta counties.

ALAMEDA COUNTY.

Brick clays were utilized in Alameda, Contra Costa, Fresno, Humboldt, Imperial, Kern, Kings, Los Angeles, Marin, Merced, Madera, Mendocino, Orange, Riverside, Sonoma, Santa Clara, San Joaquin, San Mateo, San Diego, Santa Barbara, San Bernardino, Sacramento, San Francisco, San Luis Obispo, Shasta, Solano, Tehama, Tulare and Ventura counties.

Pottery clays are credited to Alameda, Amador, Calaveras, Los Angeles, Placer, Riverside and Sonoma counties.

Coal was mined in Alameda, Amador and Monterey counties.

The great bulk of the copper was produced in Shasta county, the copper output of that county alone being more than 27,000,000 pounds. Calaveras produced 3,341,883 pounds. Fresno stood third in copper production, with 250,000 pounds to its credit. The other copper producing counties in 1906 were Amador, El Dorado, Inyo, Los Angeles, Madera, Nevada, Orange, Riverside, San Diego, San Bernardino and Siskiyou.

Kings county produced Fuller's earth. San Diego, Riverside, Sonoma and Tulare counties reported productions of gems. The negligence of producers in making reports is responsible for the relatively small showing for gems.

SERPENTINE GRANITE

Nevada, Placer, Riverside, Sacramento, San Bernardino and San Diego counties were granite producers, and Colusa, Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, Siskiyou and Yolo the sandstone producers. Some serpentine was quarried in Los Angeles county. Alameda, Colusa, Contra Costa, Los Angeles, Riverside, Sacramento, San Benito, San Bernardino, San Francisco, Santa Cruz, San Luis Obispo, Shasta, San Mateo, Solano and Sonoma are entitled to credit for the production of macadam. Marble was quarried in Inyo, Los Angeles, Riverside, San Bernardino, San Diego and Tuolumne counties, and rubble in Alameda, Los Angeles, Marin, Napa, Placer, Riverside, San Diego, San Bernardino, Santa Barbara, Sacramento, San Francisco, Solano and Ventura counties. Glass sand was produced in Monterey county; paving blocks in Riverside, Solano and Sonoma.

IRON ORE.

The sole producer of iron ore was Shasta county. Santa Barbara was alone in the production of infusorial earth. Kern, Los Angeles and Tulare counties were gypsum producers. Madera, Mariposa, Orange, San Bernardino, Inyo and Riverside were lead producing counties. The zinc came from Inyo and Orange counties.

Lime or limestone were in the mineral output of Amador, El Dorado, Kern, Los Angeles, Monterey, Placer, Riverside, Santa Clara, Siskiyou, Santa Cruz, Shasta, San Louis Obispo, San Bernardino, Sonoma, San Benito, Tuolumne, Calaveras, Santa Barbara and Plumas counties.

Four counties brought forth magnesite, namely: Alameda, Riverside, Sonoma and Tulare counties. Plumas alone produced manganese. Stanislaus is credited with the mineral paint. Mineral waters were produced for market in the counties of Butte, Colusa, Lake, Los Angeles, Mendocino, Monterey, Napa, San Benito, Santa Barbara, San Luis Obispo, Santa Clara, San Diego, Shasta, Sonoma, Sierra, Siskiyou, Solano and Tehama. The natural gas producers were the counties of Sacramento, San Joaquin, Santa Barbara, Ventura and Solano.

PETROLEUM PRODUCERS.

The petroleum producing counties included Fresno, Kern, Los Angeles, Orange, Santa Clara, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara and Ventura. Quicksilver was mined in Colusa, Lake, Napa, Santa Clara, San Benito, Santa Barbara, Solano, San Luis Obispo and Sonoma counties. Pyrites came from Alameda and Shasta counties. Calaveras alone produced quartz crystals.

The salt production of the State was due to Alameda, Colusa, Los Angeles, San Diego, San Mateo and Solano counties, the largest being Alameda county. All the slate was produced in El Dorado county. Tungsten is credited to Kern and San Bernardino counties.

The counties that reported gold production are Amador, Butte, Calaveras, Colusa, Del Norte, El Dorado, Fresno, Humboldt, Inyo, Kern, Los Angeles, Orange, Ventura, Madera, Mariposa, Merced, Monterey, Mono, Nevada, Placer, Plumas, Riverside, Sacramento, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Luis Obispo, Shasta, Sierra, Siskiyou, Stanislaus, Trinity, Tuolumne and Yuba. Silver was also mined in each of the gold producing counties with one exception.

JAMES J. JEFFRIES TALKS OF THE PUSILISTIC GAME

By JAMES J. JEFFRIES,
Retired and Undefeated Heavyweight Champion of the World.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 26.—The old-time members of the sporting fraternity love to get together and talk of the bare-knuckle days and of the period when two great fighters trained for weeks, and even months, before engaging in an important battle on the turf. I don't begrudge the veterans the privilege of living over again the far-away events that have become a cherished memory with them, but I will have to take issue with them to the extent of stating my belief that the real "Palmy days" of the ring are the present ones.

One has but to stop and consider the enormous amounts of money that have been paid out in support of the boxing game during the past five years to realize what a tremendous hold this great red-blooded sport has obtained upon the American public—upon the entire English speaking world, for that matter.

PUGILISM A POWER.

A nation that will support pugilism will never become a nation of weaklings. The enthusiasm and nerve-racking interest that attends a meeting between two well-trained boxers is in itself an inspiring sight. Teach your young son to box and he will grow up to be a better man both morally and physically. Take him and the neighbor's boy out behind the barn and let them slug away at each other for two or three rounds every afternoon. Somebody may come out of the fray with a bloody nose or a cut lip, but these little things soon heal, and you are strengthening the character of the lad.

The one fault I have to find with the present-day boxers is that they are too greedy in financial dealings. Nine out of ten of them are honest to the heart when it comes to their performances in the ring. They realize that honesty in purpose and action is the greatest safety valve in the game. Notwithstanding the constant hammering of the ignorant in regard to "fixed" fights, I am confident that most contests before a reputable club are decided upon the merits of the boxers.

BOXERS HAVE INTEGRITY.

A boxer generally values his reputation above everything else, even above the dollars they are so greedy to obtain. This takes me back to my statement in regard to the pugilist of today demanding too much money for his services.

Pick out a high-class boxer, or even a good second rater, and offer him a match with a man whom the public demands that he meet, and Mr Boxer will immediately ask for a guarantee of a certain sum on a win, lose or draw basis. If he is a champion, or, what is more to the point still, a "card," he will not be satisfied with a guarantee of a certain percentage of the house receipts, but will want an additional "bonus," the latter being the bugaboo of every conscientious match-maker of the country.

As long as I was the active champion of the world, or before, for that matter, I never asked a club official or boxing promoter to guarantee me a dollar. I always entered the ring on my own merits as a drawing card and took a gambling chance with the club and with my opponent on the financial end of the battle.

WHERE TO PLACE BLAME.

Just who is to blame for this state of affairs in the monetary affairs of the ring today it is hard to say. The boxer, or his grasping manager, is sure to demand the last nickel possible when it comes to signing for a contest, and the match-maker is hedged in between the pugilist's greed and the fear that a rival club will outbid him and take the match away.

It seems to me that a sweeping agreement between the different clubs of the country would be about the best solution possible to this unsatisfactory state of affairs, because this frenzied financial phase of the game works more evils than one. In the first place, it stands in the way of many good matches—matches that the freight-paying public really demands. A boxer, instead of going to the front and signing with his most logical opponent, will sidestep the dangerous adversary and seek out one he stands a better and surer chance of defeating.

Take the case of Tommy Burns, the present heavyweight champion, for instance. The public clamored for a Burns-Johnson match, and wants it still. Burns could have placed the matter on the shelf for all time to come simply by stating that he drew the color line and for this reason would never give "Black Jack" a chance at the title.

WOUNDED BOY PADDLES HIS CANOE TO SHORE

ASHBURY PARK, N. Y., Sept. 26.—Weakened by the loss of blood from a shattered right leg and injury to the other, Leon Osborne, who accidentally shot himself in a canoe on Shark river this morning, paddled down the river to Buhler's pavilion, where he was placed in an automobile and hurried to the Spring Lake Hospital.

The boy's only thought was for his mother. At the hospital an attendant said that the right leg would have to be amputated.

Young Osborne, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Osborne of Bradley Park, was out running for snipe along the west shore of the river. He saw a bird and reached for his gun, which slipped from the motion of the canoe and exploded. The charge struck young Osborne's legs. He paddled over to another boat where a man was fishing. The two then began a pull for the nearest pavilion.

AGED WOMAN SCALDED IN A WALDORF TUB

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Mrs. George H. Helme, 75 years old, widow of the founder of the town of Helmetta, N. J., and a woman of wealth, is confined to her bed from scalds sustained while taking a bath in her room at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Dr. J. G Dennelsbeck of Trenton, N. J., said last night that although his patient's injuries were extremely painful, he did not believe they would prove dangerous.

After visiting at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John W. Herbert, of No. 1 West Seventeenth street, Mrs. Helme went to the Waldorf-Astoria to spend a few days. After turning on the hot water she did not notice how rapidly it flowed and how hot it was until it became painful, and then she became alarmed.

In attempting to leave the tub, Mrs Helme slipped, fell back and struck her head. With the scalding water rushing into the tub, Mrs. Helme was unable to arise, but screamed until an attendant heard her. By the time a pass key to the bathroom could be obtained and the water shut off Mrs. Helme was seriously scalded.

CONTRACTED DISEASES (GONORRHOEA) IN MEN
IF Men could only realize the very grave danger attending every case of contracted disease, they would seek a COMPETENT SPECIALIST'S advice AND HIS TREATMENT upon the manifestation of the very first symptom. To attempt to cure gonorrhoea by the use of patent nostrums, recipes, or prescriptions, is most dangerous. Treatments of this nature NEVER CURE, though they may temporarily stop the discharge.
Though regarded by some as a trivial disease requiring but simple treatment, gonorrhoea actually RESULTS IN DEATH as frequently as does that hideous disease—syphilis. Unless every particle of infection and inflammation is removed, the disease will work backward into the neighboring glands, CAUSING LOSS OF SEXUAL POWER, will ... the bladder, and PERMANENTLY RUIN THE HEALTH. When IMPROPERLY TREATED frequently, even after years of APPARENT health, relapses come in various aggravated forms. During the last four years we have treated over 4000 cases of gonorrhoea, and have effected an absolutely thorough and safe cure in each instance. No relapses, no unfavorable developments. Our patients are CURED in less time by our thorough methods of treatment than other methods require to produce doubtful results. Remember we GUARANTEE OUR CURES.

CLAIRVOYANTS.

J. Hobart Deane

WORLD'S GREATEST CLAIRVOYANT AND BUSINESS MEDIUM. The Acknowledged Adept and Recognized Authority of Hindoo PHILOSOPHY AND OCCULT MYSTERIES.

has permanently located at The Hotel Adams, 12th and Clay streets, in the Orpheum Theater Building.

During the past two months Mr. Deane has been located at the St. Mark Hotel and has proven to the hundreds of people who have called on him that he is the most powerful clairvoyant that has ever visited Oakland, and at the urgent request of many of his patrons has decided to make Oakland his headquarters while on the coast.

Mr. Deane has appeared before the faculties of all the Eastern colleges, as well as the leading Psychical Research Societies, and by his wonderful feats in mental phenomena has convinced his auditors beyond a doubt that he has the power to read the aura and predict events that will happen in the lives of those with whom he comes in contact. It is by the use of this wonderful God-given Power that Mr. Deane is able to give never failing advice on all matters of life, to reunite the separated and cause the erring husband or wife to return to their allegiance, to bring happiness to the once heart-broken wives or mournful husbands, by curing their mates of their evil ways; to locate lost and stolen articles, cause a speedy marriage to the one of your choice, overcome obstacles, make your enemies your friends; tell whom and when you will marry; if wife, husband or sweetheart is true or false; to settle the estate that time has put beyond the lawyer's shrewdness. Mr. Deane tells you just what he sees, be it pleasant or unpleasant. No doubt but that many have experienced unfortunate losses by following the advice of some well-meaning friend, while others have been influenced by the claims of the so-called clairvoyants and mediums. Realizing that all cities are overrun with these pretenders and that there are many of Oakland's best people desirous of consulting a man gifted and capable of advising in a scientific manner, Mr. Deane will, in order to advertise his new location, give his full life, five-dollar clairvoyant reading, confirmed by palmistry and Astrology, for one dollar ($1). Never before in the history of Occult Science has a man of Mr. Deane's professional standing consented to place his services at the disposal of the public for such a small compensation.

"Merit brings its own reward" and Mr. Deane is a clairvoyant whose merit has been rewarded by the respect and patronage of every community he has visited. Though people may enter his parlors prejudiced and skeptical they will depart with respect and praise for his wonderful powers. He is always pleased to meet those interested in this line of thought, and is ever ready and willing to give any word of advice possible, making no charge for consultation.

Special full $5.00 reading $1.00.

Owners of Lots in Toler Heights

AND OTHERS

For the past ten days the sale of lots has decidedly increased and this increase naturally goes to increase the value of every lot in Toler Heights.

DON'T BE SLOW

to grasp a good opportunity when it is presented to you right. Just think of these prices and terms. Imagine paying only for a lot on the finest boulevard in the State, with an unparalleled view and climatic conditions. Only down and balance in payments of 1%, or

$200

$20

per month. Such an opportunity is seldom, if ever, presented to the people; in all probability never will be again. All improvements guaranteed, and three railroads to pass directly through.
Friends, you or anyone else will grant that a bare piece of land, improved, would advance in value. Well put three new railroads through it and it will increase just that much more, and to be absolutely sure, have this land high up and directly in the path of a growing metropolis and the increase in value will surprise and surpass the estimates of the most conservative buyers. The West is very primitive in this subdivision work. All this land between Oakland and Hayward is being picked up by Eastern capital, and just as soon as the Key Route, Southern Pacific and Western Pacific are running their lines through it, all values will jump; they can't help but increase.
Come in and make us a call and we will gladly take you out in our automobiles and show you this property. It costs you nothing and undoubtedly will make you LARGE PROFITS ON EVERY LOT YOU PURCHASE.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Important Railway Deal Is Expected

SHARP ADVANCE SHOWN IN STOCKS

Rumors of Change in Frisco Road Management Has Influence in Wall Street Securities.

(BY THOMAS C. SHOTWELL.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—There were few important developments in the course of the short session of the stock market today, but the most conspicuous of these clearly confirmed the statement that important developments are pending in the financing, if not the actual control of the Rock Island and the St. Louis and San Francisco railroads. All of the stock and bond issues of these two systems were exceptionally strong at the opening, and held part of their recent sharp advance throughout the general decline that set in during the last hour of the session and which was to be fully expected after the sharp advance that the market enjoyed in the last week.

FRISCO LINE SOLID.

While there was no definite announcement regarding the financing of the Rock Island and St. Louis and San Francisco, it was universally accepted in the street that the two roads will not in the future be in need of money to take care of their small pressing obligations. It is not so much the amount of the financing that has been arranged for as it is the fact that possible receivership proceedings have been eliminated from the situation that cheers the Wall street district.

EVERY ONE OPTIMISTIC.

In spite of the small reaction that took place in the latter part of the session caused by the desire to take profits, there was a general, if not almost universal feeling of optimism in the financial district. At no time did the volume of the trading reach large proportions and at no time during the decline did there appear to be anything like serious pressure to sell stocks.

A BULL POOL.

There was an interesting report to the effect that a bull pool has been organized by a group of prominent operators, headed by Daniel G. Reid, for the purpose of acquiring a line of low-priced railroad and individual stocks. A house that would quite naturally be employed in the operations of such a pool was a conspicuous buyer of several of the low-priced issues, such as Rock Island, Erie and Southern Railway, in the decline of the latter part of the session.

POLITICS SIDE TRACKED.

A report of the formation of such a pool was regarded as of large significance, as some of the operators who are understood to have gone into the undertaking have steadfastly held aloof from market operations for a long time on the ground that the uncertainty as to future was the greatly obscured by politics and the uncertain business conditions to make operations safe.

On the curb the session was almost entirely without interest, except that all stocks in that market were dull and strong.

IN THE STREET.

The number of shares of stock sold today, 380,145, against 374,100 last year.

The par value of bonds sold today, $2,025,000, against $962,000 a year ago.

The largest reduction in the number of idle cars since the clearance first began was reported today, when the committee on car efficiency of the American Railways Association announced its report of September 16, that for the two weeks ending with that date the number of surplus idle cars decreased 50,562.

COPPER STRONG.

Strength of Amalgamated Copper today was due to rumors that the dividends would be increased.

The St. Paul is in the market for 1000 to 3000 steel under frames.

Persistent rumors that the Chicago Great Western would be taken over by the Canadian Pacific through the "Soo," which it controls, have caused many traders to remember the reports that were circulated about six years ago regarding the acquisition of this property by the St. Paul. On these reports Chicago Great Western stock was advanced to 32 and just when the public began to come in the terms of the deal were circulated. They were so ridiculously high that those who had purchased the stock were forced to take large losses of the decline.

TUBERCULOSIS CAMPAIGN IS ON

International Conference Will Take Up Fight and Discuss Spread of Disease By Milk.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 26.—A commission of seven, headed by Dr. Robert Koch of Germany, was appointed today by the tuberculosis congress to inquire into the danger of tuberculosis from milk infection. The commission was appointed on motion of Dr. J. F. Haymans of Belgium, who said that until proof to the contrary has been established the conclusions of German and English commissions, which investigated the subject, "force us to admit that human tuberculosis can have its origin in bovine tuberculosis."

The danger of tuberculosis infection from milk and how to prevent it was one of the principal subjects taken up today at the closing session of the international conference on tuberculosis. Reports of what other countries are doing in demonstrating the presence of bovine bacilli in milk sold for human consumption were made.

TO STUDY QUESTION.

It was suggested by Professor J. F. Haymans of Belgium that, with a view to ascertaining precisely the danger of spreading tuberculosis infection by the medium of milk and of unifying in all countries the prophylactic measures to preconcise against this contamination the conference appointed an international commission charged with studying the question and elaborate on the prophylactic measures it may recommend.

What the Red Cross Society is doing in the crusade against tuberculosis was presented by delegates of that body. Aid for the tuberculosis poor in their homes was also discussed.

TALKS ON TEETH

BY THE REX DENTAL CO. (INCORPORATED)

Comfortable Alveolar Teeth

If Alveolar teeth were not first of all comfortable they would be a failure. Looks wouldn't commend them alone, although they are beautiful looking.

The man who wears them will have relief from the misery of using "false" teeth, and rolling his food around in his mouth between plates instead of cutting it up as he can do with Alveolar teeth.

Again, the false teeth which are stuck on partial plates are always falling out, to the great embarassment of the wearer.

If this is the first time you have heard of the Alveolar Method of supplying missing teeth without plates or ordinary bridge work, we shall briefly outline the plan—

We require two or more teeth in each jaw and with these to work from we build our structure, supplying every missing tooth, each in its own socket, so that each takes its own strain—following nature's plan, you see—and when the work is completed the patient has a new set of teeth as perfect and serviceable as nature's—in nearly every respect. We don't bore into the gums nor perform any surgical operation, to do this work, nor is there anything about it to be dreaded from start to finish.

One can leave our offices and begin to chew beefsteak, or anything else, the same day the work is completed.

Imitators have attempted to do the work, but because of our broad patents granted by this government and by many of the governments of Europe, they dare not infringe on the basic principle which makes the whole work a success.

If you are wearing a partial plate or a torturesome, insanitary piece of "bridge work" come to the nearest one of our offices for a free diagnosis of your teeth. Don't delay, for without good teeth you can't have good health.

If it is not possible to come now, send for our free book, "Alveolar Dentistry," which tells all about the method.

CAUTION—Look out for imitators and impostors. We have no OFFICES outside those given below.

NILE CLUB WILL GIVE JINKS IN PIEDMONT

Dictator Carlton Has Issued a Call for the Ceremonies to Be Held Next Thursday Evening.

The following mandate has been issued by the dictator of the Nile Club, Harry P. Carlton:

Brothers of the Nile:

The season approaches when we make our annual pilgrimage. Owing to the heavy inroads that have been made upon the Royal Treasury by acquiring the new club home, it has been deemed wise not to go far away into the mountains or distant valleys, or to listen at this time to the Cry from the Desert. A voice summons us to Hills of Piedmont, and there amid the trees of the park we will listen to the beautiful story and most tuneful music of "The Legend of the Forest," written by our fellow member, Edwin Dunbar Crandall, and played and sung by other club mates.

And the evening will be Thursday, on the first day of October, Nineteen Hundred and Eight, and the hour nine p. m.

BY CLUB MEMBERS.

The opera will be sung and acted by the the club members. There are ten in the cast and a chorus of forty voices selected from the Orpheus club.

The scene is laid in an ancient forest in Sayles, three or four hundred years ago. The legend is historical and taken from old English history. The scene opens in the forest when the captain gives the story to his huntsmen, which is as follows:

THE STORY.

"Many years ago the huntsmen devastated the forests, killing the birds and game, which aroused the ire of the forest god, Art-vor. He warned them against this wanton killing, but they only laughed and mocked and repeated the offense the next year. They refuse to accept the warning of the forest god, who after warning them a second time changes them into loathsome cringing gnomes." It is from the old legend that the play is woven.

HAS SOLO PART.

Dr. Harry P. Carlton, as chief of the gnomes, has a splendid bass solo entitled "Lo the Bow." There are several unique dances introduced by the band of gnomes.

The chief hunter will be represented by Carl Anderson; Willard Barton Jr. will be the friar; Abe Leach will represent the forest god Art-vor. Others who will have important roles are Frank Hus, Guy Reynolds, Austin Sperry, Ernest H. McCandlish and Carl Schlinghyde.

A LARGE ORCHESTRA.

An orchestra of fifteen pieces will under the direction of Edwin Dunbar Crandall.

The play will open on the stroke of nine. At 10:30, immediately following the play, a sumptuous collation will be served at the Piedmont club house.

The play will be produced under the management that has given the Grove Plays of the Bohemian club a world-wide reputation.

Messrs. Crandall and Carlton will be assisted by the following famous Bohemians:

Mr. Frank Mathieu, stage director and coach; Mr. E. J. Duffey, electrical effects; Mr. George Lyon, scenic effects; Mr. Jack Merritt, costumer; thus insuring an artistically beautiful production.

The congregation has donated the use of a room in the synagogue to be the permanent home of the San Francisco Zionist society.

An appropriate program has been prepared for the evening, and M. Warcerwitz, president of the congregation will speak and the Rev. Dr. M. S. Levy will also deliver an address of welcome.

Dr. Henry Epsteem, president of the local society, will preside, and G. Ringolsky and Elliot M. Spsteem will also be among the speakers. A selection by Miss Mildred Edises will conclude the evening.

LOOKING FOR SITE FOR BIG PILE PLANT

Edward Gold is in the city, showing samples of a teredo proof pile. He is desirous of establishing a plant here for the purpose of manufacturing these piles and is now negotiating with several parties toward this end. Gold states that his patented pile will stand the action of the water better than any other pile, and that it is longer-lived than any pile now being used in the construction of wharves about San Francisco bay. He believes there is a large market here for his product and for this reason desires to locate a factory here.

Gold comes from Vancouver, B. C., where the pile is now being used with great success, he says. Samples have been shown to members of the harbor commission and they back up Gold's statement to the effect that his is a good proposition and should be fostered.

FORMER OAKLAND MAN IS DEAD IN PORTLAND

George Mothersole, formerly of this city died recently at Portland, Ore., and Captain Petersen has been requested by friends of the deceased in Portland to ascertain if there are any relatives in Oakland. The deceased was prominent in Oakland a number of years ago, and was the first man to open up the Macdonough theater.

The amount of goods contracted for by Jackson's buyer during the furniture exhibition in Chicago and Grand Rapids last July surprised the manufacturers; made them get down to bottom prices and wonder just what kind of a town Oakland really was; it's buying in large quantities and doing a volume of business which assures success on a small profit.
